What the London Times Said of the Dundonald Case—Severe Criticism.

Montreal, July 19.—A cable from London gives a different version of the Dundonald meeting at Toronto. The cable says: "Commenting on the Dundonald meeting at Toronto on Friday last, the London Times says that there is always danger that a Reformer who denounces a Government may be utilized by the Opposition for purposes of their own. The paper adds that Lord Dundonald's complaint, while irregular and open in some respects to serious objection, was one deliberately made in an irregular form in order to invite the judgment of the Canadian people upon a subject of the highest Imperial concern, which they alone were competent to judge. Lord Dundonald's statements, which demand a searching investigation, will, if well established, condone his departure from the ordinary rules and constitutional usages."

Times further adds that his allegations create the impression that the Canadian militia is not administered in some respects with a single eye to its efficiency.

"There may have been reasons of State for suppressing large and important portions of the Dundonald's annual reports, but the Minister's decision appears to require an explanation."

"Lord Dundonald's appeal to the people will be heard and determined on its merits. 'We know not,' says the Times, 'what their decision will be. But it will be with keen interest in this country as in Canada; for the issues it would determine are nothing less than the efficiency or inefficiency of the national defence of our greatest colony, and the fitness or unfitness of her present Ministers to provide.'"

SATCHEL OF THE SATELLITE

The city will have to elect better ball players.

Come on St. Thomas. We would like to take you in.

The British Lion is showing her "beast" teeth to Russia.

Every baseball team is not a council nor is every council a baseball team.

No, St. Thomas, that isn't the whole of Chatham that's picnicking at Port Stanley to-day. There's a few of us left at home.

G. G. Martin—Last night at the cooking school, the other day, the teachers all were very much shocked when they saw the salad dressing.

The aldermanic base ball team should copy off Babcock's Tecumseh. If that council aggregation of batters continues to lose, we'll send them over to St. Thomas.

There are just nine in the council and if only takes nine to make a baseball team. How would it do to hire the American League Champions to be the Chatham City Council.

HAD LEARNED A WICKED WORD.
A father recently overheard his young son say that he did not approve, and calling the child to him said:—"My son, if you will promise me never to use that word again I'll give you a silver dime." The little fellow promised, and true to his word, refrained. About a week later he went to his father and said:—"Papa, I've learned a new word worth fifty cents."—Philadelphia Press.

IT is impossible in any kitchen to use with good results the cream of tartar and soda found in the shops, because they contain impurities and vary so greatly in strength that they cannot be mixed in proper proportions. Royal Baking Powder is uniform in strength and absolutely pure. Its results are perfect and always even. Dr. Valade, one of the public analysts of the Dominion, in reporting upon the different leavening agents, says Royal Baking Powder is superior and should be used in every household.

WHO EXPLOITED DUNDONALD?

Mr. Borden Charges Liberals Did So—Makes Explicit Denial.

Denies That Conservatives Were Connected With Receptions—Lively Brush in Commons.

Ottawa, July 20.—In the House of Commons this morning Mr. Borden called the attention of the Government to the statements made by the Solicitor-General in London, as reported in the press. Mr. Lemieux had undertaken to give information to the British public on a number of questions, notably preferential trade. For some time, Mr. Borden said, the Dominion Government had taken the position that the question of preferential trade being still undecided in Britain the Dominion parliament should take no action on this question. Why then had Mr. Lemieux taken upon himself the responsibility of stating Canada's preferential trade? Why had Mr. Lemieux attended a partisan meeting to thus declare himself? Mr. Borden said he regarded the Solicitor-General's statements as to the relations between Canada and Great Britain as particularly unhappy. Equally inappropriate was Mr. Lemieux's assertion that unless Lord Dundonald was recalled the bitterest feelings would be roused in Canada against the Imperial authorities. Mr. Borden said he doubted if the Solicitor-General held a mandate from the people of Canada to speak in this way.

"The Conservative party," said Mr. Borden, "has not endeavored to exploit Lord Dundonald and has had nothing to do with any reception accorded to him on any occasion. I say this as leader of the Conservative party in this House."

Mr. Borden went on to say that the Opposition had a perfect right to criticize the militia and the circumstances leading up to the dismissal of Lord Dundonald. Were the mouths of critics to be closed simply because Lord Dundonald had been dismissed. Was Lord Dundonald denied the right to say a word in his own defence? The Postmaster-General seemed to be of the opinion that Lord Dundonald should be gagged and then submit to every charge that Government and its organs saw fit to hurl at him. Mr. Borden challenged Sir Wm. Mulock to mention any occasion upon which Lord Dundonald had been exploited by the Conservative party. He referred to the attempt of one of the Government newspaper organs to show that Lord Dundonald had discriminated against the French Canadians.

"That," said Mr. Borden, "is what I call exploiting Lord Dundonald for political advantage." It was regretted that the Solicitor-General had taken part in a bitterly partisan gathering in the mother country, and it was to be regretted that Mr. Lemieux had spoken as he did about the loyalty of Canada by Mr. Borden believed that the loyalty of Canada, and especially of Quebec, was made of more substantial stuff than might be gathered from the remarks of Mr. Lemieux.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier thought it unfair to found such a speech as Mr. Borden had made on a partisan gathering report. Until an authorized version of Mr. Lemieux's remarks was received the Premier declined to discuss them.

Mr. Borden—"Is the Premier under the impression that it was not a partisan gathering which Mr. Lemieux attended?"

Sir Wilfrid Laurier—"I do not say that he may not have attended a political gathering."

The Premier then went on to instance a case where he himself attended a partisan gathering by Mr. John Redmond, the Irish leader. On that occasion the Premier paid for his ticket like anyone else and thought he had a perfect right to attend.

Mr. Borden—"My right hon. friend did not make a speech, I suppose. He did not," replied the Premier. He went on to contend that the speech of Mr. Lemieux had been condoned into a sentence of two and it was unfair that Mr. Lemieux should be held accountable for such a report. The only thing to which exception was taken was some remarks about the loyalty of Canadians. The Premier did not think that Canadians, French-Canadians, were called upon to defend their loyalty. It was very much to be regretted that occasion should arise from time to time when it was perhaps advisable to do so. As to the loyalty of French-Canadians, "our history is here," exclaimed the Premier. The commercial relations between Great Britain and Canada were detested by considerations of mutual interest. When Canada gave the preference it was to serve the interests of Canada. If the matter were to be discussed again later on the interests of Canada would again be the thing to be served. As to the observations Mr. Lemieux was said to have made in an interview, he declined to hold Mr. Lemieux accountable until it was certain that he had said what was attributed to him. The Premier held that if there were to be satisfactory relations between party and party, no one should be judged on words attributed to him until the man himself had an opportunity to say whether these were his words.

Col. Sam Hughes spoke at some length and Mr. Fielding replied, declaring that the Government of Canada entirely approved of the expressions used in the British House of Commons with regard to Lord Dundonald being exploited for political purposes by the Opposition in Canada. The comfort which the Government seemed to take from the announcement that Lord Dundonald had been recalled by the War Office has been somewhat dissipated by later and further reports of the debate in the British Commons in the course of which that announcement was made, and by the thrashing out which the subject of Lord Dundonald's dismissal underwent in the House here to-day.

The discussion was carried on in the afternoon by Bell (Pictou), Dr. Sproule, Mr. Northrup, Col. Ward, Mr. Barker (Hamilton) and Mr. Porter (Hastings). These hon. members made it clear that the change of exploiting against French-Canadians. The issue in so far as it is political, was thus brought back to its true bearings, and the course of Mr. Fisher in introducing politics into the Canadian militia was held up to the reprobation it deserved.

The only defenders of the Government were Messrs. Oliver and Thompson, the latter of whom last year gave the militia system of Canada the hardest knock it has ever received from a public man. Yet Col. Thompson had the narrowness to select to-day's debate as the occasion on which to recant, and pour most fulsome praise upon the administration of that same department, and upon his speech to that effect the Government rested its defence.

When this subject was dropped Mr. Taylor offered a resolution condemning Mr. Fisher's administration of the Department of Agriculture, especially with reference to chicken fattening experiments, in which the loan chickens and the food cost more than the fat chickens sold for. The motion was lost.

The items in connection with the Geological survey were passed and the House adjourned at one o'clock.

IN THE SENATE

Senator Kerr's bill to amend the Insurance act was again discussed at length in the Senate to-day, and it was nearly one o'clock this (Thursday) morning when a vote was taken and the committee amendment to the bill concurred in by 26 to 16.
