DARRELL.

This change of weather, after the intense heat of last week, is very much appreciated.

Rev. Mr. McKelvey has gone on a four weeks' visit to friends in Montreal. Rev. Mr. Pickard will occupy the pulpit during his absence.

Special prayer meeting service will be held in French's church every Sunday evening at 7:30.

Miss Verna Duncan, who has been ill with the mumps, is better.

Mr. and Mrs. Allison, of Blenheim, visited Mr. William Bowers last week.

Mrs. Kitchen and daughter, of Detroit, are spending a week with John Brown and Mrs. Edwin French.

Miss Mabel Clements, of Chatham, visited Miss Etta Pugh over Sunday.

Misses Larus, Marian and Maude Hekey, of Detroit, are visiting their mother here.

Henry Wright, of Botany, was out this week last week, and purchased Tom Gee's fine span of Hackney roadsters.

The many friends of Miss Hattie French, former teacher in our school here, will be sorry to learn that she is very seriously ill at the home of her sister, Mrs. Henry Wright, at Botany.

Threshing is the order of the day. E. Mer French is visiting friends in Dutton.

The Misses Hokey, of Detroit, who have been visiting their mother for the past two weeks, have returned home.

Miss Claire Mitton, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Wm. Abraham, has returned to her home in Ridgeway.

Mrs. Allan McNeillage and Mrs. S. Duncan visited friends in Botany one day last week.

Mrs. Robert Blackburn, of Chatham, who has been spending the past two months with her sister, Mrs. Edwin French, has returned home.

Mrs. McDonald, of Chatham, is visiting relatives in this neighborhood.

Quite a number from here attended the Arnold picnic last week.

Mrs. Burke and children, of Blenheim, visited her parents here over day.

It is impossible to gauge the good there is in others by the way they talk.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Smart Linen Robes—Gauntlets For the Short Sleeved Gown.

Linen robes of pink, blue, green or white come in bolero and skirt form richly embroidered with elaborate designs in white.

Tulle is much used for trimming hats. A blue hat has both sides trimmed with it, bound on the edge with blue velvet and a wide plating of tulle around the crown, caught at one side with a bunch of blue ostrich feathers. A pretty purse seen in a bead shop is of white opal-like beads, held together by tiny gold beads. It is gold mounted.

The short sleeved girl will protect her arms from freckles this summer with armlets or gauntlets, which are worn as substitutes for long gloves.

Shade hats for little girls are plentifully trimmed with a curious comb-nation of fruit and flowers, red and white currants being intermingled with apple and peach blossoms, while cherries with their own blooms are a favorite form of decoration for the large Tuscan or Leghorn fropp shapes.

On all the new hats hailing from Paris the ribbon trimmings are wide. Sometimes at the back of a showery hat there is a miniature edition of the familiar nursery sash bow in wide moire or velvet ribbon.

The costume sketched is of cadet blue tussore silk. The skirt is very smart, with a conventional design worked in heavy white silk. A section of the same design appears on the front of the blouse bodice. The chemise and shoulder ruffles are of white batiste and lace. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

A Stunning Belt—Startling Colors in Shoes For the Summer Girl.

A belt of gun metal is in a flower design, the center of each flower set with a jewel.

Honesty compels the statement that for women with feet like Cinderella's stepisters the colored shoes of the season are taboo. Most of these shoes intended for day wear are in calf of a solid shade. Sometimes there is a patent leather vamp with the colored top. Every woman who can afford it will have a few pairs of colored shoes in her wardrobe and, if she is extravagant, a pair to match each gown.

Low tan shoes are much worn in the morning. The style differs only slightly from those of last summer, but perhaps there is a greater fancy for ribbon ties and pumps. The smartest style has one eyelet on each side through which is tied a large ribbon bow.

So ubiquitous has the duck skirt become that we will soon be dubbed "a nation of duck skirts." A dozen wash white waists of varying weights and three or four duck skirts, together with a lightweight woolen suit and a dressy little silk gown, make up a very presentable summer outfit.

White chiffon makes the blouse seen in the picture. The material is tucked all over. Arranged over the entire waist are geometric designs carried out in white cluny insertion. In the openings are worked cobweb stitches in pale green silk. JUDIC CHOLLET.

American Buyer in London.

"My American accent cut me near to taxiing me just $430 on my last trip to London," remarked a cabbman. "When I tried to buy a certain bulldog pup there the kennel man priced it at $500, as he had me sized up as an American and, in his regard, an easy mark. I made a deal with a cabbie at the hotel stand, who went around and bought the same pup for me at $60, a very fair price, as the dog will never be a show winner. I gave a $10 tip to the cabbie, so I made $430 by employing an agent who called his hansom an 'ansom' and his horse an 'orse'."—New York Sun.

Jackdaw and Magpie.

In England the daw is hardly ever mentioned but as Jack, yet daw and not jackdaw is the proper name of the species. It is suggested that the pie owes the "mag" to some corruption of Margaret or Meg. To mag is to chatter, but whether the verb was derived from the name or the name from the verb is a question. It is more than probable that the Jim Crow of America (the old name for a negro boy) was brought across from England in the days when a crow was Jim, as a swallow was Dick.—London Standard.

No Sleep For The Kidneys.

Old people are especially liable to Kidney and Bladder Irritation. The organs are weakened by age. This starts up inflammation—blood is not properly purified as it goes to the kidneys—and the bladder is unable to retain the urine properly. There is a constant desire to urinate day and night—and sound, restful sleep is unknown.

Egg and Bottle.

Take a bottle, egg, remove the shell, have a bottle with a large neck, add a piece of paper to the neck and light it. When in blaze put the egg on it, point down, and the heat will pull the egg with great force inside. Now put again a blazed paper in the bottle and manage to have the egg in the neck point up, and the heat will push out the egg with an explosion.

Perpetual.

"You always appear to be worried about your housekeeping," remarked the sympathetic friend.

"But really," replied the housekeeper, "there are only two occasions when I am really worried. One is when I haven't a servant and the other is when I have."

Ethel—Mamma, what makes the lady dress all in black? Mamma—Because she is a sister of charity, dear. Ethel—Is charity dead, then?

Brought to Book at Last.

Tibbie was a Scotch lass, hardworking and comely. She ruled over a grateful and supple family of New Englanders for eight years, and then announced her intention of marrying within six weeks.

"I suppose it is Rab whom you mean to marry, Tibbie?" asked her nominal mistress, referring to a tall, mild faced young Scotchman who had spent more or less time in Tibbie's spotless kitchen for the last three years.

"It is," announced Tibbie calmly. "Here he's been coming and sitting with me all these times and never a word of marrying. So at long last I said to him, 'If you've no mind to take me, Rab, you can just say so, and I'll spend no more on bright ribbons to sit up with you, but I'll take my money to buy one of those talking machines that plays tunes, after I've paid for a strip of new oilcloth to cover the floor where you've worn out the old one, and then I'll take my reeligious books and settle down in quiet.'"

"Rab" was so concerned at my dear prospects and the thoughts of my savings he said he would have me whenever I got ready."

Shooting Down the Alps on Skies.

The quest for a moral is provoked by a long list of shooting accidents in the Alps. In itself the exercise can hardly be considered more perilous than skating, though the proportion of sprained ankles and twisted tendons is higher, but when the skier seeks a distance from his base and ventures upon unfamiliar ground there are at least three ways in which calamity is liable to befall him. On a glacier he may break through the snow bridge which he is trying to shoot and be buried in a crevasse. On the hillside he may skid violently down a steep place and, unable to arrest his pace, end by skidding over a precipice. Almost anywhere, unless he knows the signs, he may skid in the tracks of an avalanche and be overwhelmed. Examples of each of these several kinds of disaster have lately been presented, and each of the disasters conveys a warning of which amateur skiers, whose name nowadays is legion, would do well to take a careful note.—London Graphic.

Sufficiently Identified.

She walked into a branch bank on upper Broadway and pushed a check through the paying teller's window. "You will have to be identified," said he. "I don't know you, madam."

"You don't, eh?" said the woman, with fire in her eye. "Aren't you the father of the Smith family that has a flat in the Pilemire apartments?"

"Y-e-s."

"Well, I am the red headed janitress that your wife's always complaining about. When you left home this morning I heard you say: 'Emily, if our children get fighting with that old fury in the basement don't quarrel with her. Wait till I get home and let me talk with her.' Now, if you think you can get the best of an argument with—"

"Here's your money, madam," said the paying teller. And she took it and went.

Where Lincoln Put the Whetstone.

A soldier at whose house when a boy Lincoln paused in his tramps in Illinois and who lent him a whetstone to sharpen his jackknife met him during the war in Washington. Lincoln remembered the incident and spoke of the use of the whetstone.

"Ya-a-s," drawled out the old soldier, "whatever did you do with the whetstone? I never could find it. We frowed mebbe you took it along with you."

"No, no! I put it on top of the gatepost—that high one." "Mebbe you did. Nobody else could have reached it, and none of us ever thought to look there for it." There it was found where it was placed fifteen years before. The soldier reported the fact to the president.

Why He Wanted a Pass.

When Jim Fisk was in his glory as a railroad magnate one day he was greatly annoyed by people asking for passes over his road for all sorts of reasons. He was well worked up when a seedy looking individual asked for a pass and asked sharply, "On what grounds do you ask for a pass?"

The applicant replied, "Because I do not want to pay my fare."

Fisk called a clerk and said to him: "Give this man a pass to anywhere and return. He is the first man that has told the truth today."
