Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHO IS THE TRUE DEMOCRAT?

RUTH CAMERON

There is a certain woman whom I admire very deeply but whom I sometimes hear criticised as undemocratic and snobbish because she makes friends of comparatively few people.

She lives in a small hotel and many of the guests call her standoffish and snobbish and disagreeable because they never reach any intimacy with her.

I call that unjustifiable. And yet it is a rather common attitude. Indeed, I think there was a time in my life when, meeting this woman casually, I would have made similar criticisms.

Economical in Casual Friendships.
But I think now that I would have been wrong. For as I grow older and find out how little time one has to call one's own, I come to realize that one must claim the right to spend it carefully. No one blames the person who is careful about spending money on little things and saves for bigger pleasures. Why, then, should anyone blame the person who prefers to be time-economical in his casual friendships and save for the bigger ones?

One cannot be friends with everyone one meets. One must pick and choose those who interest one the most, appeal the most to one's personality. And one should grant others the same privilege without calling them standoffish or undemocratic.

Why Should He Take Them?
When a man who lived at this hotel started out in his machine on a trip one day, I heard some of the guests saying to each other that it was a pity he wouldn't invite some one to go on that trip with him (meaning some of themselves). Well, why should he? None of those people appealed to him. Why should he endure two or three hours of their companionship? Of course, if they had been people who never had a chance to ride in machines, that would have been quite another matter. But they weren't. So what possible obligation was there for him to fill his seats with people for whom he cared nothing? Yet they branded him standoffish because he didn't.

Of course, one should be courteous and kindly to everyone with whom one is thrown into contact. It takes no more time to say "Good Morning" or "Good Day" and smile than to pass with carefully averted gaze.

The Difference Between Friendship and Friendly Feelings.
But while one can have a friendly feeling towards almost everyone, one cannot be friends with more than a few.

To be courteous to all with whom one is thrown into contact; not to look down upon people because they have no money; not to look up to people (or to oneself) just because they have money; to respect brains, ability, character and breeding wherever one finds them, no matter what the work or the station of him in whom one finds them—these, as I see it, are the marks of the true democrat, rather than the habit of casual friendships.

Nature's Tribute.

A lady who has just returned from visiting battlefields of France and Flanders says that she will never see forget-me-nots without thinking of Vimy Ridge and the heroic gallantry of the Canadian soldiers, many of whose graves now lie scattered over that shell-swept area. For Nature seems to have planted there her own most fitting tribute and reminder of the sacrifices of these brave men. Here and there at intervals all over that trench-scarred ridge, on the edge of shell craters, in the ruins of gun-carriages, or nestling round the mounds marked by little wooden crosses are clumps of wild blue forget-me-nots. Many a wife, mother, or sweetheart overseas must have longed to lay some floral tribute on their loved one's grave. It seems that Mother Nature has interpreted that wish in the most beautiful way she could.

One quart of milk is equivalent in food value of half loaf of bread or three-quarters of a pound of beef.

THE WHEAT FIELD.

WALT MASON

I had a little field of wheat, five acres and a third; through winter storms and springtime heat my vigils were absurd. I thought the climate should be run with my small field in view, with just enough of wind and sun, and timely rain and dew. In other fields of great extent the wheat of neighbors waved; I didn't worry worth a cent if they were lost or saved. The only wheat in all the land for which I cared was that by the zephyrs fanned, before my humble coop. I trembled when the sky was bright, for fear a drought would come; and clouds would fill me with fright, lest wild tornadoes hum. I kicked if there was too much rain, and jawed the brooding sky; and I would grumble and complain if days were hot and dry. I ragged the wind in heated terms when it came from the west; I dreamed of bugs and army worms and every other pest. My wheat is harvested at last, it lived through rust and blight, survived the terror and the blast, and filled my bin all right. And I'd have had as big a crop if I had let things slide, if I had raised no yelping yawn, and had not wept or sighed. I worried over that field so much I aged a hundred years, and now I hobble on a crutch, and see how vain were fears. That'd r r s Dn. (tu med N)

Household Notes.

A little salt added to the fat when frying croquettes prevents spattering. A delicious shortcake is made with biscuit crust and mashed fresh raspberries.

Wash white silk gloves in cold water and dry in shade. They will not turn yellow.

Keep your sewing machine thoroughly cleaned if you would have it operate properly.

A few seeds sprinkled upon the water in your canary's cage will draw him to his tub.

A wooden spoon is best for cake because the round handle does not tire the hands.

Cornstarch applied on white laces and brushed out after a day or two will clean them.

Let buttermilk stand a day or two in porcelain basins which are discolored on the inside.

In summertime vegetables, fruits and cereals should form the chief proportion of the diet.

Sprinkling the concrete porches will do a great deal towards cooling a house on hot days.

Tinware will not get rusty if rubbed well with lard and heated thoroughly in the oven.

Melt rancid butter, skim it; then place a piece of toast in it. Take out after a few minutes.

If flour is baked in the oven till thoroughly heated when used for thickening it will not lump.

Brass stains disappear if first rubbed with spirits of wine, then washed with soap and water.

TRUE WORTH.

You don't have to be rich to be kind. You needn't be rich to be true. You needn't be rich to be honest in all that you say and do.

If it's friendship you're seeking, go make it! The old world is eager for friends.

It's on hearts that are golden not money that all that's worth having depends.

You don't have to be rich to be worthy. You needn't own silver and gold.

To have men rejoice in your presence, for manhood by money's not sold;

And he who is honest and helpful, who lives to the truth that he knows

And gives his full measure of service is welcome wherever he goes.

You don't have to be rich to be noble. You needn't be rich to be great. Not always the men who have fortunes can weather the tempests of fate.

If you will be true to your loved ones, your God and the Flag of the Free

The sum of your gold doesn't matter. You are all that a rich man can be.

This is to certify that fourteen years ago I got the cords of my left wrist nearly severed, and was for about nine months that I had no use of my hand, and tried other Liniments, also doctors, and was receiving no benefit. By a persuasion from a friend I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and used one bottle which completely cured me, and have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in my family ever since and find it the same as when I first used it, and would never be without it.
