

Burn Caused Open Sore Zam-Buk Worked Wonderful Cure

Sometimes a bad burn, a deep cut, or some similar mishap, sets up a more permanent injury in the form of an open, discharging sore. In such cases Zam-Buk will be found of unequalled value.

Mr. J. Nixon, of 901 William avenue, Winnipeg, a blacksmith at the C. P. R. shops, had his foot badly burned by some molten metal falling upon it. He says: "The burn was a very bad one, and after the first few days it left an open sore, which showed marked signs of blood-poisoning. It discharged freely and caused me terrible agony. For three weeks I suffered acutely and could get no ease. At last I obtained a preparation from the doctor, which seemed to stop the discharging and made me quite hopeful, but finally the wound became as bad as ever."

"I was then advised to use Zam-Buk, and from the first application the pain gave me relief. The inflammation was thoroughly checked, and the poisonous matter cleared away in a very short time after beginning with Zam-Buk. Healing then began, and in less than two weeks the wound was thoroughly cured."

"One of the main lessons of this case lies right here: try Zam-Buk first for any injury—sore skin, disease, or wound. Don't spend money and waste time in experiments. Zam-Buk is equally good for piles, blood-poisoning, festering wounds, chaps, cold sores, children's eruptions, scalp sores, varicose ulcers, chilblains, etc. All drug-gists and stores at 50 cents box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. You are warned against harmful substitutes and inferior preparations."

MUSIC TAUGHT FREE Home Instruction Special Offer to Our Readers

In order to advertise and introduce their home study music lessons in every locality the International Institute of Music of New York will give free to our readers a complete course of instruction for either Piano, Organ, Violin, Mandolin, Guitar, Banjo, Cello, Brass Instruments or Sight Singing. In return they simply ask that you recommend their Institute to your friends after you learn to play.

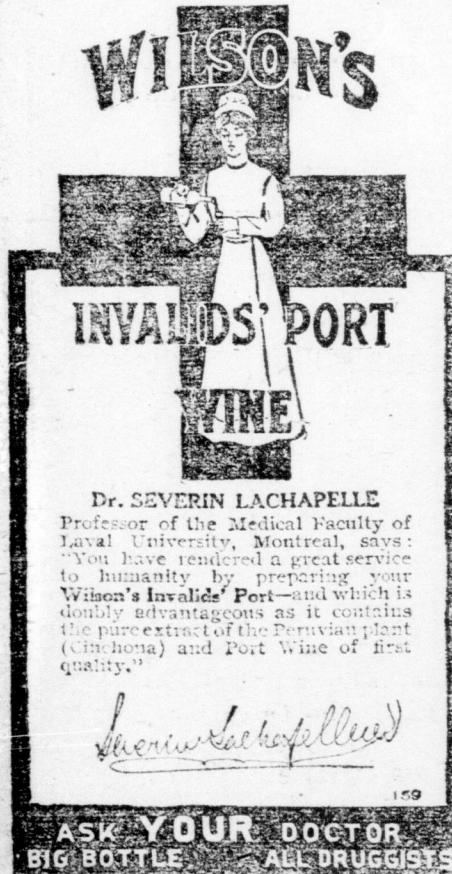

You may not know one note from another; yet, by their wonderfully simple and thorough method, you can soon learn to play. If you are an advanced player you will receive special instruction.

The lessons are sent weekly. They are so simple and easy that they are recommended to any person or little child who can read English. Photographs and drawings make everything plain. Under the Institute's free tuition offer you will be asked to pay only a very small amount (averaging 14 cents a week) to cover postage and the necessary sheet music.

No one should overlook this wonderful offer. Tell your friends about it—show this article to them.

The International Institute has successfully taught others and can successfully teach you, even if you know absolutely nothing whatever about music. The lessons make everything clear.

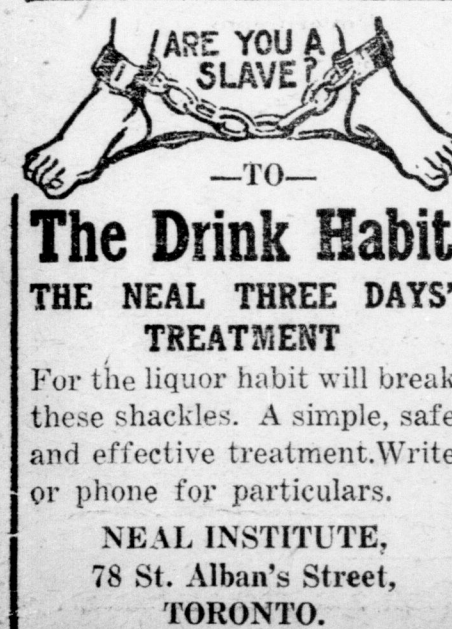

Write today for the free booklet, which explains everything. It will convince you and cost you nothing. Address your letter or postal card to International Institute of Music, 95 Fifth Avenue, Dept. 376 C, New York, N. Y.

THE GUARDIAN

BY FREDERICK ORIN BARTLETT

He was gone four hours. The doctor was away and had to wait for him to come back. When the two men sat down at the door, Tommy met them with a frightened look in his eyes.

"Gee!" he cried, "ye'd better hurry! She's wuss."

Nat led the way into the little room, where he found his mother by the bed, side holding the child. The stranger was tossing half-conscious in the throes of a fever. The doctor gave a glance at her and ordered Mrs. Page out of the room with the child.

"Throw up the wipers," he ordered. "Nat, as soon as the two had left, 'Give her all the air you can.'"

"He administered a big dose of whisky, which he had some difficulty in forcing down the throat now fast closing up. The effect was immediate. It brought her back to consciousness for a minute. She beckoned Nat to her side.

"Better find out her name," whispered the doctor. "It may be too late in a minute."

As Nat bent over the frail form, he saw her hand groping for the child for whom she held the child. The stranger was tossing half-conscious in the throes of a fever. The doctor gave a glance at her and ordered Mrs. Page out of the room with the child.

"Throw up the wipers," he ordered. "Nat, as soon as the two had left, 'Give her all the air you can.'"

"He administered a big dose of whisky, which he had some difficulty in forcing down the throat now fast closing up. The effect was immediate. It brought her back to consciousness for a minute. She beckoned Nat to her side.

"Better find out her name," whispered the doctor. "It may be too late in a minute."

CHAPTER XXX.
"S' Long."

At three o'clock on Monday morning Nat picked up "Gene" on the road to camp and gave him a lift as far as Dutton's. "Gene," he began, "I've got a message for ye."

"Who from?" questioned "Gene" in surprise.

"I dunno her name," answered Nat. "She was a little woman with three eyes and her hair done up high."

"I was well for 'Gene' that the dark hid his face. He turned ghastly white and hunched forward, ready to spring out and make a dash for it. He did not answer.

"Know her?"

"Where's she from?" asked "Gene" through dry lips.

"I dunno where she's from. I found her longside the road Saturday night when I comin' home."

"What—what she have to say?"

"Not much," answered Nat. "It was just 'S' Long.' Says she, 'If ye see 'Gene, tell him 'S' Long.'"

"Then—she's gone?"

"Yes, she's gone."

"Where?"

"She's dead. Died at my house yesterday morning."

The blood rushed back to "Gene's" face. He breathed more easily. He was able to think.

"What did she send the message to me for?" he demanded.

"Said ye was a friend of hers."

"Probably someone I met when ashore," he suggested. Then he waited to see if "Gene" knew. The latter answered only, "Likely."

Nat relapsed into silence. The vivid picture of the thin form lying in that room under the sheet oppressed him. It was not until the silence assured "Gene" that this must be all his brother knew that he ventured to inquire further.

"She's up there—now?"

"Yes."

"Who's gotter bury her?"

"I am."

"Didn't she tell her name?"

"Said it didn't matter."

"Had it not been for the relief and joy of the narrow escape, 'Gene' might have felt really sorry. This was not such an end as he would have wished for Bella. He lifted a heavy burden from his shoulders.

"Thought m'by ye knew her name."

"No," answered "Gene. "I sort of remember such a person, but I don't recall her name."

"Seems kind of hard to bury her without a name," mused Nat.

"That's so," agreed "Gene."

Two Years Suffering
Brought On By A Severe Strain
—How a Cure Was Found.

Mr. Joseph Stephens, Rosemount, Ont., one of the great host who continually endures the praises of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and he has brought him from suffering to health after he had spent much money and other treatment. Mr. Stephens tells his experience as follows:

"In the month of January, 1908, while working in a logging camp at Creston, B. C., I got my back badly injured. I suffered a great deal of pain, and was almost helpless. I tried plasters, thinking they would help me, but they were of no use. I took several medicines, equally without benefit. I was advised to try electrical treatment, and did so for a time, but without getting any permanent relief, and it began to look as though I was going to be permanently crippled. Then I was advised to undergo treatment with a specialist at Spokane, Wash. After examining me he said I was in a very bad shape and that the trouble was likely to result in Bright's disease. However, he told me that he felt sure he could cure me. At a heavy expense I was under his treatment for three months, but did not get the least benefit. I was almost in despair; work was plentiful, and wages good, but I was unable to bend, I was in this condition for about two years, when my brother, who was with me all the time, came across one of Dr. Williams' pamphlets and read of the great work Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were doing. He urged me to try them, but I thought it would be useless to spend more money after all the other treatment had failed. He insisted, however, and gave me a dozen boxes. Before I had used a half-dozen boxes I felt relief, and I continued taking the Pills until every vestige of the pain was gone, and I could raise my hands above my head and then bend until I could touch my toes with my fingers, something I had not been able to do for over two years. My cure was a great surprise to my comrades, and you may be sure I told them what brought it. I am now as well as strong as any man in the camp, and I owe it all to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Sold by all Medicine Dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

"Reckon we'll just have to call her 'The Stranger,'" concluded Nat. "The funeral's Wednesday. Ye can come if ye want."

"Kind of suppose I oughter,"

"Just as ye please," Nat probably have your hands full in camp for a while."

"What?"

"You've got to work hard to live down last week."

"The best thing to do is to forget it," growled "Gene."

"The men won't forget it till ye make them forget it."

"How?" questioned "Gene."

"By knocking out every man son of them that dares look crosswise at ye. And where, as ye want, there's a dozen. I'll keep ye busy."

"Ye expect me to wade through the whole bunch?" demanded "Gene" hoarsely.

"Exactly."

"Back to think I am?"

Nat turned his head to face the man.

"You're the husband of Julie Moulton," he answered steadily.

"What if I am? That don't make me a fightin' wildcat."

"It ought to make ye a man. It's got to make ye a man. An' accordin' to your tell ye'd rather fight than eat in your salar days. I'll give ye all the time off ye need, an' your wages'll run as the same. Ye can take till spring if need be, ye'll have to begin today. Ye'd have a good start, but it looks now like ye'd have to begin all over again."

"A man ain't to blame for what he does when he's drunk," whined "Gene."

"He's twice over to blame," answered Nat. "If he can't drink and be a man, then he's got to make up for it when he's sober."

It was the thought of Bella that gave "Gene" courage for a second. She had always been the backbone of the family. A terrible weapon for vengeance if Nat should ever find her out. Now that her lips were sealed forever, he felt free. He squared his shoulders.

"I've had enough of all this," he growled. "Ye haven't any right over me, an' I ain't gotter stand no more."

"Do ye mean that?" Nat asked quickly.

"Every word of it," answered "Gene."

He freed his hands and turned, ready to spring at his brother's throat. The latter drew his horse to a standstill.

"Then," he said, "we might as well get out right here."

He threw off the buffalo robe and sprang to the ground. "Gene" followed, keeping himself, however, on the other side of the punga.

"You go your way an' I'll go mine," he said. "I ain't troublin' ye none, and ye ain't any call to trouble me."

Nat led the horse to the side of the road. It was dark and cold. He tossed the robe over the horse's back and then pulled off his heavy overcoat. "Gene" in the meantime had started back in the direction of St. Croix. Nat called sharply, "Gene!"

The latter, already hidden, now broke into a run. He hadn't gone a hundred yards before he heard Nat's footsteps behind him. Throwing off his coat, he increased his speed, but though fairly good of foot he couldn't shake off the steady tread of "Gene" who followed him to the left and hid himself in the shadows of a large pine. Nat paused almost open-mouthed at a moment, then, after listening a moment, he spoke down upon a "Ye're only wastin' time," "Gene. If ye mean what ye said, ye'd better come out afore your half-brother catches ye. I'm goin' to stay here till daylight."

"Gene" held his breath and listened. He heard his brother take a turn of a dozen steps up the road and then back again, slapping his arms across his chest to keep warm. He took a cautious step backward, but his foot came down upon a pistol shot.

"I hear ye," Nat called coolly. "When you're ready, come out and make good, or climb into the punga and we'll go to camp."

To Be Continued.

FUNERAL OF E. L. SMITH
LARGELY ATTENDED

The Proprietor of the Oxford Tribune Was Buried at Ingersoll.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ingersoll, Feb. 12.—Many citizens gathered yesterday to pay their last tributes of respect to the memory of the late E. L. Smith, for the past seven years proprietor of the Oxford Tribune, whose death occurred with startling suddenness last Friday morning. The funeral was conducted by the Rev. J. C. O. P. and C. O. P., and the officiating clergymen were Rev. Alfred Bright, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and Rev. H. B. Christie, of the Methodist Church. That the deceased was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends was indicated by the many floral tributes. The funeral was a chapter member of Court Marquis of Lorne, A. O. F.

Left for Mexico.

Mr. J. C. Norsworthy, accompanied by his daughter, left last night for Mexico City, on a visit to his son, Stanley Norsworthy, who has been there for some time, and who has been very interesting accounts of that country.

Mr. J. Garfield Gibson has been honored by being re-elected chairman of the public library board for the sixth year. Mr. Wm. Briden, principal of the Collegiate Institute, has also been elected secretary, a position he has held since 1904. Mr. M. C. Elliott has been elected president. The board has appointed a special committee to look into the matter of a "Story Hour" for children.

At a late hour Monday night a plate glass window in the Olympic restaurant, of which Tom Landrith is proprietor, was broken by a stone. Considerable mystery surrounds the incident, and the police are investigating. Whether the window was broken as the result of an accident or by someone with malicious motives remains to be seen. Landrith was fined $20 and costs Monday afternoon in connection with the assault cases which grew out of the London-Ingersoll hockey match last week.

Boy Scouts' Play

Splendid progress is being made by the Boy Scouts in connection with the play which they will present at an early date. The Scouts are attending rehearsals very promptly and regularly, and are doing good work. From what can be gleaned the public will enjoy a treat when the play is produced.

Ingersoll is to have another imposing building, for which the contract has already been awarded to Messrs. Nagle & Mills, local contractors. It is to be a convent, in which Father Gnam has for some time displayed much interest, and which will be erected as a result of his enterprise. The building will be on John Street, and in addition to the ordinary rooms will contain several music rooms, a community room and a chapel. The building will be of red brick and stone facing and the architecture will be very imposing. Judging from the plans the building will be one of the finest in Ingersoll. The work will be commenced this spring, and it is expected will be ready for occupancy next fall.

POP

a packet of Edwards' Soup into the pot or pan when you are making that stew—or that hash or sauce, or whatever it is.

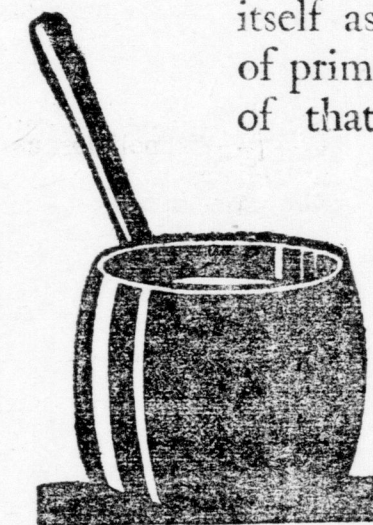

Let it boil for at least half an hour. You'll find that the home-made Irish soup will make your pet recipes tastier than ever, by bringing out their full flavour.

EDWARDS' SOUPS

This is how to make Irish Stew:—

Put in a stewpan twelve peeled potatoes, sliced the thickness of a penny, four large onions sliced—a layer of each—with salt and pepper to taste. By successive layers, half fill your pan. Then take four chops of neck of mutton, the scrag end. Lay these on the potatoes and onions and fill up with additional layers of potatoes, onions, &c., as before. In one-and-a-half pints of water boil one-and-a-half ounces of Edwards' White Vegetable Soup for thirty minutes, add it to the contents of the stewpan, and simmer all together gently for two hours.

Edwards' Desiccated Soup is nourishing and delicious by itself as in one of your own special dishes. It is made out of prime beef and the choicest Irish vegetables, without any of that strong added flavouring which some soups have.

5c. per packet.

Edwards' Desiccated Soups are made in three varieties—Brown, Tomato, White. The Brown variety is a thick, nourishing soup prepared from beef and fresh vegetables. The other two are purely vegetable soups.

U. S. TO MEDIATE

Will Endeavor to Settle Trouble Between United States Railways and Firemen.

New York, Feb. 11.—The threatened strike action of 34,000 firemen on the 54 railroads east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio was placed in the hands of United States Government officials tonight, for them to avert it by mediation if possible. Acting under the provisions of the Erdman act, President W. S. Carter, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, telegraphed Judge Martin A. Knapp, of the commerce court, and G. W. W. Hanger, acting commissioner of labor, at Washington, requesting them to mediate in the crisis which has arisen between the firemen and the railroads.

"What's the news in Philadelphia?" the authorities have decided that the old railroad bridge is dangerous. "I always thought so. But what made them decide?"

From a Man Who Knows

From the Magdalen Islands, away down among the fogs of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, comes a letter from a man who knows that Dr. Chase's Ointment is not only a relief, but also a positive cure for protruding piles.

Too many make the mistake of stopping this treatment when relief is obtained when by persistence they could be entirely cured.

Mr. Joseph Neuse, Grand Entry, Magdalen Islands, writes: "After using Dr. Chase's Ointment as a treatment for piles, I must say that it did not only relieve me but has effected a cure. I had protruding piles for a number of years. Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me, and I have had no return of the ailment. You may publish this statement so that it may be the means of helping other sufferers."

Surgical operations, with all the pain and risk, are unnecessary, for Dr. Chase's Ointment is a proven cure for every form of piles.
