Nearly all have been shown through the bank and pointed out the marks the bullets left. Some of them even attempted to extract a bullet from the ceiling of Manager McCandless' office. Pieces of glass in the door of the manager's office that had been hit by a bullet were taken as souvenirs. One unique fact was made known by an owner of a local store. A party from London was shown through the bank, and when shown the place, where a bullet had lodged in a telephone pole at the front of the bank, succeeded in carving out a piece of the wood which still bore the mark of the bullet.
