New York, Oct. 27.—The Post's Dublia special says: Every day brings fresh evidence of the breaking up of the league's influence. The league in Tipperary has gone to pieces. Since Archbishop Croke's letter seventy farmers of that county applied for revision of rent under the land act. The government believe they have scorched the agitation, but will not desist till they have killed the ladies' league. The remarkable precautions the authorities are taking is evidence that they have some information which has not yet been revealed. The chief danger they seem to apprehend is from attemps on buildings. It is not, however, in Ireland the government has most to fear, but in England. The government are now in a legal difficulty
