GLENCOE, ONT., Aug. 15th, 1911.
 "So much has been said and written about 'Fruit-a-tives' that it might seem unnecessary for me to add my experience. But 'Fruit-a-tives' were so beneficial to me when I suffered with distressing Dyspepsia, that I feel called upon to inform you of the remarkable and satisfactory results I have had from using them.
 Dyspepsia and indigestion everyone knows, can give you more uncomfortable hours and days than most common complaints.
 "I am glad to be able to say to you that although in the past I suffered excruciating agony with Dyspepsia, I am now in perfect health.
 "Fruit-a-tives" accomplished the desired result and I have to thank them for my very favorable and satisfactory state of health."

PLENTY OF ROOM FOR WOMEN

There is plenty of room for women in the world, married or unmarried; there are so many trades that when necessity arises they fall into haphazard, why not train them from their youth up? Why not give a girl the money that would be spent without a murmur in the case of a son, and let her learn to be self-supporting, a gardener, an architect, a decorator, a farmer, a dress-maker, an hotel keeper, a land and estate agent, a milliner? If she will only look round there is almost nothing in the common walks of life that she may not make money at, providing she enters into the thing in a business spirit.—Mary Götting.

If you are troubled with chronic constipation, the mild and gentle effect of Chamberlain's Tablets makes for sale by druggists and dealer.

The World too Small for War.

The declaration of war in the Balkan States increased the cost of food-stuffs to the people of Britain within ten hours, and the report that a Greek navy had taken command of the Dardanelles raised the price of wheat in Chicago. Stock markets in London, Berlin, Paris and New York were furiously affected, and hundreds of Canadians who knew little and cared less about the Balkan question suffered serious financial loss. Trade has been interrupted in all parts of the world. Industries for a time were paralyzed, not only by the sudden confusion of the world's credit, but by the withdrawal of thousands of workmen from economic labor to return to their native countries as soldiers at the expense of those engaged in remunerative production. The loss of seven hundred Bulgarian workmen "bound for the front" caused delay and loss in the construction of the National Trans-continental Railway across Canada.

All this means that the world is getting too small for war. Every advance in civilization, every discovery of science, every improvement in the means of international communication, and every widening of the bounds of human thought makes war between any two nations an archaic, pagan, and intolerable nuisance to every other nation in the world. Were it not that the so-called powers are themselves still the victims of the military delusion, this now exploded bluff of the Turk would not long ago have been ended, as the antics of a half-drunken desperado in a Rocky Mountain pining camp or a hold-up gang in a railway cutting would be ended by a squad of Northwest mounted police.

What is needed in Britain and Germany today is not so much the annual expenditure of $500,000,000 on the means of war, the incitements to the warlike temper, and compulsory training for war, but rather a common-sense appreciation of the stupid folly of war, its humbug patriotism, and its impertinence as a disturber of the legitimate business of the community of interdependent nations. What civilized local society had done with the brawling and bullying nation. War is out of date. It is brutal. It is stupid. And even at best it leaves the real question at issue to be solved by international law, reason and arbitral justice.

If war in the little Balkan territories put out of gear the machinery of the world's industry, trade and credit, what would war between Britain and Germany mean? That question makes world-treason out of war scares and the war talk that feeds the war fever. War anywhere is an injustice and a curse everywhere. The world is too small for it any more.—Toronto Globe.

Cottonseed.

Forty years ago cottonseed was regarded as a nuisance. Southern Legislatures enacted laws prohibiting the dumping of it into running streams. It was suffered to accumulate and rot until it could be used as a manure.

Slowly it was put to other uses. It was crushed and some use made of the oil but the product was gummy and therefore unavailable as a lubricant. By 1880 the annual product was of the value of $7,000,000 but most of it still went to waste.

Now the cottonseed is fulfilling the prediction of Edward Atkinson, who said, in 1880, that "the cottonseed, weighing twice as much as the fiber, would some day be worth quite as much."

The Boston Monitor in an article on the wonders of cottonseed says: "People now eat and wear cottonseed products and do all manner of things with them. The lintels yield batting, wadding, stuffing for pads, cushions, comforts, horse collars and upholstery, mixing for shoddy, for wool in hat-making and for lambs' wool in fleece-lined underwear; also for felt and low grade yarns used in making lamp and candle wicks, twine, rope and carpets, a so cellulose used in making artificial silk and writing paper, and as a basis for explosives."

"But this is not all. The hulls are used in feed, fertilizer, paper stock and stuffing. The cake and meal are also used in fertilizers, in dye-stuffs, in feed for cattle, poultry, horses and swine, as well as in confectionery and flour. The oil enters into the manufacture of hard compounds, white cotteole, butter oil, cooking oil, salad oil, 'olive' oil and oleomargarine. It is used in the packing of olives and sardines, in miners' oil, in lubricating oil, in paints, in mixing for putty and in automobile tires. It is an ingredient of soap, washing powders, etc. Altogether there are fifty-three products. Millions of capital and thousands of persons are employed in the industries growing out of the use of cottonseed."

A Des Moines man had an attack of muscular rheumatism in his shoulder. A friend advised him to go to Hot Springs. That meant an expense of $150.00 or more. He sought for a quicker and cheaper way to cure it and found it in Chamberlain's Liniment. Three days after the first application of this liniment he was well. For sale by druggists and dealers.

You may as well destroy that old ticket you have been carrying about with you for future use. The conductors on the D. A. R. have had a circular issued to them by the management to the effect that tickets issued by the road are good only for thirty-days, whether used or not. Heretofore tickets were considered good until used. A recent case in the Canadian courts has handed down a decision giving the above as a limit.

Our Daily Bread.

Isn't it time for the people of the world to wake up to the fact that a universal police system, under one federation of general government, would work for the betterment of all mankind, and would increase the numbers of producers of daily bread? The best specimens of physical manhood of all nations are now required for standing or lying around loafing armies. Instead of producing, these strong, healthy men eat the food produced by the rest and they are also clothed and sheltered. These same men could produce sufficient for not only their own needs, but for the sustenance of many thousands of others as well and not lose any of their efficiency as defenders of their homes.

By disbarring all armies and establishing a universal police system, requiring every male person to devote a certain time between the age of sixteen and twenty to physical training and drill in the national guards or federation police service, all of the tremendous force, now worse than wasted in loafing, destructive armies of the world, could be turned into the producers of daily bread.

When I say that the amount of cereals grown would not last over eight months I am speaking of the entire world; but if the energy of the men now idly consuming daily bread were properly directed into an industrial army and should devote an average of five hours daily to the production of useful things, the whole world would be the richer and better.

There is another idly army much smaller indeed, but handled in much less intelligent manner, and that is the army of law-breakers.

If a common laborer gets drunk and commits a crime we punish (?) him by placing him in a jail building that has cost the decent people many thousand dollars; we supply cooks and waiters and janitors to wait on him; serve his meals on time, keep him warm and comfortable while his wife who needed his daily wages, must go out and earn bread for his children. Every prison for every offence should be an industrial enterprise and every person who is against society should be placed at work as soon as confined therein, and the result of that labor should, after deducting the cost of his expense, be placed to his credit, and if he has anyone dependent upon him for support the money should be used for that purpose and he should be charged with the amount so spent.

The plan of allowing the State to keep the profits earned by prisoners in penitentiaries and allowing county jail prisoners to do nothing is not just to the innocent family of the criminal; while a knowledge of the fact that he was earning the daily bread for his family would be a great factor in changing the attitude of the prisoner to his labor.

The man of the army, if it must be maintained, should be taught trades, professions, arts and crafts, so that when the term of their enlistment is over they are not helpless, but are competent to at once engage in useful work that will earn their daily bread.

THE SHALE DEPOSITS IN ALBERT COUNTY. (Sussex Record)

There is ample evidence at hand now that Mackenzie & Mann are devoting serious consideration to the oil shale deposits which are owned by them in Albert county. For months past six drills have been constantly working on the property, but little information has been allowed to get to the outside world concerning the workings. The fact that the firm is employing over one hundred hands to carry on the preliminary work being done on the property shows that the experts who have been engaged during the past few months have received encouragement and it is understood that the investigation of the shale values will now be carried on apace.

Rosedale is the centre around which it is hoped enormous oil reduction works will spring up. For over a year options on land surrounding the district have been quietly secured and the owners of the shales are now in possession of a large tract of property which will in the light of prospective development acquire an enormous value. The property is being worked by experts brought from Pennsylvania and they have with them a complete staff of men who are familiar with oil workings. The borings have been made of all materials which the drills have brought to the surface. These are fully tested and numbered and their location indicated and other information which may prove valuable is carefully noted.

Better Roads for Nova Scotia

HON. E. ARMSTRONG IS SECURING INFORMATION ABOUT ONTARIO'S SCHEME.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—Hon. E. H. Armstrong, Commissioner of Public Works of Nova Scotia, was a caller at the Parliament Building today. He spent some time with Hon. J. O. Reame, Minister of Public Works, and with R. P. Fairbairn, Deputy Minister. The Nova Scotia Minister was anxious to secure information about Ontario's highway improvement scheme, and the method of apportioning the cost. In Nova Scotia the Government builds the highways, and Mr. Armstrong stated that a movement was on foot to build better roads, and he wanted to get the benefit of Ontario's experience in that direction. Unfortunately W. A. McLean, Engineer of Highways, was not in Toronto.

Since then he has been promoted quickly, holding many valuable positions. At one time he was ticket agent at Northampton, Mass., for the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. Czarevitch is Ill

Doctors Insist he Must go to Gagry, on Black Sea.

London, Dec. 5.—A St. Petersburg despatch to the Daily Mail says the Czarevitch is still confined to his bed and a doctor is in continual attendance. An apparatus for the support of the boy's left thigh and leg is being made for the journey to Gagry, on the Black Sea, where the doctors insist that he must go. It is uncertain as yet whether the Crown Prince will ever recover the use of the leg. The Czarevitch is attached to Dr. Derevenka, one of his physicians. This name happens to be also that of his sailor bodyguard, of whom he is very fond.

The Czar and Czarina did not believe the illness of the boy was a grave one for some time, and were not convinced until Dr. Fedoroff, specialist, saw the young Prince at the castle at Spala.

Fearful Accident

Boy's Tongue Torn Out—HAD LICKED COLD STEEL BAR.

Montreal, Dec. 13.—Arthur Merns, 12 years old, had his tongue torn out this morning.

He tried to lick a steel bar in front of his home and it stuck fast. He had been there half an hour when neighbors saw him. His mother brought hot water to loosen the icy band which held the boy prisoner, and when it was poured he instinctively jumped back, tearing his tongue to ribbons.

Florence McGuire, 13 years old, was drowned on Saturday afternoon not far from her home at Victoria Mills, N. B. The girl with a number of others were skating on the St. John river when she skated into an air hole, and the swiftly moving current carried her under before assistance could reach her.
