Why are country-girls' cheeks like good cotton prints? Because they are warranted to wash and keep their colour.

Chicago damsel: "Isn't the moon too lovely for anything?" Boston maiden: "Y-e-s, it is rather nice; but you should see the moon in Boston!"

Judge: "What is your estimate of the value of the boots that were stolen from you?" Prosecutor: "They cost when new ten shillings. I have had them soled twice, which makes four shillings; total, fourteen shillings."

"Your papa and mamma know what is best for you, Tommy," said Tommy's mother. The little fellow rolled about a good deal on the rug, and then said, "Mamma, do you know sometimes I feel I should awfully like to be an orphan!"

"I am very tired," said the lady at the head of the supper-table one Sunday evening. "You should not be," said her minister, who had been asked in to the evening meal; "You haven't preached two sermons to-day." "No," said the lady absent-mindedly; "but I listened to them."

CHILD OF AN INQUIRING MIND.—A little boy was being shown the engraving of a human skeleton by his father. After studying in silence, he looked up into his father's face inquiringly and said, "Papa, how did this man manage to keep in his dinner?"

HER OWN PASTRY.—They had not been married long, and she made her own pastry. One night she thought she heard a burglar in the house. "I think," she whispered, "he's in the pantry, John." "All right," was the practical reply, born of experience; "just wait till he has eaten a bit of your pie, and then I'll get up and put a finishing touch to him."

"Good-morning, Pompey." "Good-morning, Massa Caesar." "What makes you carry your head down so, Pompey? Why don't you walk with your head upright, like me?" "Massa Caesar, you ever been tro' a field of wheat when he ripe?" "Yes, Pompey." "Well, you take notice—some of de heads stan' up and some hang down. Dem stan' up got no grain in 'em, Massa Caesar!"
