

S.O. 30

tiaga point out that the same pattern of economic warfare as we have seen in Grenada in the past is now being practised in Nicaragua.

The war games that the United States is carrying on in Honduras involve a similar invasion of Honduras by some enemy, presumably from Nicaragua. There would be a cry go to the United States for help and the United States would move in. This is the whole purport of those war games. There are 5,000 United States Army and Air Force personnel in Honduras at the present time.

There has been a lot of talk about the airstrip in Grenada. Several Honduran airstrips are being enlarged so that 250 foot long Galaxy transport planes can fly in U.S. military personnel. They are spending $150 million on air and naval bases on the Atlantic Coast and a new radar system is now in operation. All of this is intended to intimidate Nicaraguans, as President Reagan put it, into peace. We have seen a refusal to consider the Nicaraguan offer of non-aggression pacts with the United States and the Honduras and other countries in that area.

As we condemn what has happened in Grenada and condemn that invasion, there should also be a condemnation of all attempts to destabilize the Government of Nicaragua. Let us condemn them before they send in the marines. Let us call for a withdrawal of marine troops from Grenada, but let us also call for an end to the destabilizing efforts in Nicaragua.

We have to ask what it is the United States has to fear from these countries in Central America. It is a strong country.

There is basic goodwill among their people, yet they live in a kind of paranoid fear. This underlines the basic problem of our times. Like the Korean Airlines 007 incident and the invasion of Grenada, the American paranoia about Cuba and Nicaragua underlines the fragile nature of the world society. The arms race in which both the United States and the Soviet Union are participating is destabilizing our entire world. That is the name of the game. Our entire world society is being destabilized by the arms race. It fits the kind of paranoia that leads to the shooting down of a passenger jet and the invasion of a helpless little island by the mightiest power in the world.

We have to redouble our efforts to put an end to the arms race. We have to speak out loud and clear at this time. We have to condemn the invasion and we have to call for a withdrawal of troops. We must ask the United States to recover its right mind and deal with the problems at home instead of trying to destabilize and destroy other nations.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Earlier this day it was moved by Mr. Broadbent, seconded by Miss Jewett, that this House do now adjourn. Is it the wish of the House to adjourn.

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Agreed and so ordered. Accordingly, this House stands adjourned until eleven o'clock this morning.

At 12.10 a.m. the House adjourned, without question put, pursuant to Standing Order.
