

MORE TIT-BITS

It is the Recorder's desire that an accurate record be kept of each member's address. You will, therefore, note that fact and promptly notify him of any change you may make.

The variance in the use of certain words and everyday expressions in England and Canada has frequently been commented upon, but here is an item that will be new to some of us. In England when speaking of second-hand garments they say, "left off," while we say, "cast off." The following advertisement appeared in a London paper:

Mr. and Mrs. Battenburg have left off clothing of all kinds. They can be seen any day from 3 to 6 p.m.

Noble Art Markley, our festive Treasurer, is still putting down one and carrying one—the gout is a nasty thing.

Over in Lethbridge the other day a pretty young lady stepped into Heintzman's, and, tripping up to the counter where Noble J. Harry Alexander was assorting music and in the sweetest tones asked: "Have you 'Kissed Me in the Moonlight?'" Noble J. Harry turned half way around and answered: "It must have been Herb Reid in the Victrola Department—I never go out nights."

The woman who goes around lecturing about the way to make home happy, doesn't fool anybody.

What is seen or heard within the tiled walls of Al Azhar Temple should be held sacred. Secrecy is an essential feature of our work, and should be of our business affairs and what to you may appear trivial is at least worthy of being retained within Shrine circles. A small leakage becomes a flood when passed to profane lips. See to it that you use the soft pedal on your voice when conversing on Shrine matters, especially in public conveyances and in public places or anywhere else while in the presence or hearing of others than the members of the Nobility. An organization is judged by the actions and conversations of the members comprising it. We are jealous of our Shrine's good name. So are you.
