

Then a fierce squall struck the 'Loch Achray',
And bowed her down to her water-way ;
Her main-shrouds gave and her forestay,
And a green sea carried her wheel away ;

Ere the watch below had time to dress
She was cluttered up in a blushing mess.
Hear the yarn of a sailor,
An old yarn learned at sea.