

Atoi.	English.	Atoi.	English.
Hemanaa,	A house, or hut, where they bury their dead.	Erahoi, dehoi,	Tbin; as, tbin cloth, board, &c.
Herooanoo,	Wooden images in a burying-house.	Pattahae, or he roui,	A sort of musical instrument or rattle, ornamented with red feathers.
Tooraie,	A kind of bead-dress, or helmet on an image.	Eappanai,	A plume of feathers they wear.
Eahoi,	Hire.	Etooo,	The Cordia sebestina.
Pohootoo noa,	A cream-coloured whetstone.	Whatte,	To break.
Poota paire,	A district at the Western part of the isle.	Ocea,	Yes; it is so.
Eonnotaine,	A short cloak of black and white feathers.	Heoreeoree,	A song.
Ottahoinoo,	One article, or thing.	Parao,	A wooden bowl.
Epappa,	A board used to swim upon.	Apooava,	A shallow wooden dish they drink Ava out of.
Oneete,	A kind of cloth.	Etoohc, toohee,	A particular sort of cloth.
Heorro taire,	A small scarlet bird, or merops scarlatina.	Ootee, or otee, otee,	To cut.
Taa,	An interjection of admiration.	Pappaneeheomano,	A wooden instrument beset with sharks teeth, used to cut up those they kill.
Epoo,	A bracelet of a single shell.	Maheine,	A wife.
Eou,	To swim.	Homy,	Give me.
Tearre,	Gardenia, or Cape Jasmine.	Moena, or moenga,	A mat to sleep on.
Heoudoo,	A refusal; I will not do it, or take that for this.	Eeno,	An adjunct, when they express any thing good, though by itself, it signifies bad. Thus they say, Erawha eeno, good greeting, as the Otakeitans say, Ehoa eeno, or my good friend.
Eeorre,	A rat.
Ehooo,	A gimblet, or any instrument to bore with.
Epao, or ooapa,	There is no more; it is done, or finished.
Matou,	A particular sort of fish-hook.		