CINCINNATI, Feb. 26th, 1896

Messrs. Heintzman & Co., 117 King-Street, Toronto: CINCINNATI, Feb. 20th, 1890.

GENTLEMEN,—I am writing you from Cincinnati to say how thoroughly I have enjoyed singing to your Grand Pianoforte, which has been used on the Albani tour in Canada. Your instruments have a beautiful tone, and the piano sent to my room has convinced me that the touch is equally good. Wishing you every success. Believe me, very cordially yours.

George McCullough of St. Alban's Methodist Church will conduct the morning service at the Bennett street Methodist Church at 10 o'clock.

Bell Telephone Company employees working in Brock avenue have planted gum poles along the east side of that thoroughfare, to the small disgust of residents, who, in some cases, talk of protesting against the company to compel the removal of the poles, which are placed obliquely, and give the street decidedly unattractive appearance. It is thought the company's charter does not allow it.

The Late J. J. Vickers
The remains of the late John J. Vickers were moved yesterday afternoon from the family residence, Adelaide street, Rev. Canon DuMoulin officiating at the service. Deceased was buried in the Masonic cemetery, which he brought from Ireland. The deceased, named J. J. Vickers, of Chicago, W. Walbridge Vickers, Toronto; George G. Vickers, Montreal; and Arthur Vickers, Chicago, were the chief mourners were: Prof. J. P. Flinn, J. J. McMurrin, son-in-law; Thomas J. Brock, son; Stephen Leach, son; W. B. McMurrin; Stephen Leach, son; J. J. Brock, son; and Thomas J. Brock, son. The remains were plentiful and beautiful.

from now until the first of April will mark the receipts of spring imports—bought for money down in the land that produces the finest woolen fabrics in the world. This season's designs, colorings and effects are very novel and harmonize most agreeably with the very artistically cut garments that characterize the fashions for this spring.

Half a dozen or more different styles of cloth will be used for business suitings, and a dozen varieties of each style. A choice made now means greater diversity—an order given now extra time can be given to—but no matter how rushed we'll never slight the garments you are to wear.

MORE RAILWAY CHANGES.

District Freight Agent John Earls Retires After Long Service.

One of the changes under the new management of the G.T.R. will be the retirement of Mr. John Earls, who has been district freight agent for many years. He will be succeeded by Mr. Quinn, the Liverpool agent, who, in his turn, will be succeeded by Mr. Walnwright, district freight agent at Montreal.

Mr. Earls retires on an annuity from the company, with the privilege of entering upon the service of another railway.

Improved System of Train Despatching.
G. C. Jones, formerly chief train despatcher of the Wabash, but now of the G.T.R., is in the city. He is making an inspection of the line, previous to the change that will be made in the train despatching system. The changes, if adopted, would be the introduction of the standard code of American signals, which defines the right of way trains shall have.
