County Council Will Ask to Have Jurisdiction of Police Magistrate Ellis Extended.

MINIMUM SALARY WILL BE $600

A Surplus Which is a Debt—Legislation to be Petitioned for Various Changes.

York County Councillors final act on Saturday was to recommend the extension of the jurisdiction of Police Magistrate Ellis, so as to cover the whole of the Township of York and the suburbs of the city in Etobicoke and Scarborough. Where a police magistrate is appointed, justices of the peace within that jurisdiction have no power to try cases other than those which are assigned to them by the justice of the peace in his office, the right to try these cases are infractions of bylaws and other trivial offences provided for in the general act. It was urged in support of the motion that the county would save double the cost of the magistrates' salary, which cannot be less than $600 a year, by dispensing with the fees of court clerks, jury and sheriff in court a prisoner on a criminal charge elects to be tried summarily. The present arrangement would, under the new system, go to the county.

No Necessity for It. Councillor Lundy thought that there was no immediate necessity for extending the jurisdiction, and as a session of the justices of the peace is shortly to be held, he thought it would be well to have their opinion, and that of the municipalities interested, and moved that the matter be left over until the next session. The motion was carried, all standing, with the exception of Councillors Lundy, Baird, Ley and Taylor.

Will Curtail His Duties. Quite recently the suburbs of Brantford and Woodstock, which were under the government of the appointment of a local justice of the peace to deal with the cases of young men who were visiting the locality, and about a month ago Mr. Henderson was appointed. His duties will be greatly curtailed should the commission be granted. The objection to the jurisdiction being extended is that local justices of the peace do not have the necessary information for the cases that they cannot try, and that the jurisdiction in the extreme north of York Township extends to the southwest of Etobicoke, will have to find Police Magistrate Ellis before information can be laid. Arrangements, however, might be made with local justices of the peace who have the necessary information for the cases that they cannot try, and that the jurisdiction in the extreme north of York Township extends to the southwest of Etobicoke, will have to find Police Magistrate Ellis before information can be laid.

Amend Municipal Act. The legislature will be petitioned to amend the Municipal Act so that the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace will be placed the same as townships in regard to accidents on highways. A petition will also be presented to the legislature, requesting that the act be amended so that ratemakers of any given locality to assess themselves for improved roads, under similar conditions as bonuses are granted to street car lines; and further to allow a share of the fund set apart for improvement of highways to be available.

Discovered a Surplus. Mr. Hill discovered that York County has a $100,000 surplus, and suggested that it might not be necessary to issue a county rate this year. The amount of the surplus was received from floating debentures last year.

After passing a resolution of condolence on the family of the late Judge McDonald and naming "God Bless the King," the council adjourned until June.

A Sure Cure for Constipation. Some remedies cure this distressing complaint in a day, some in a month, but Nervine never fails to cure in a few minutes. Just ten drops of Nervine in sweetened water—that's enough, and away goes the dysentery, cured to stay. Nervine also cures Cramps, Colic, Pain in the Stomach, and Sick Headache. It has five times the strength and curative properties of ordinary remedies, and should be in every household. Better buy a 25c bottle and try it. Nervine is all right. The great vitality and grit of Louis Goldsmith, the victim of Friday night's shooting, may yet save Walter P. Romaine from facing a charge of murder. MRS. DONALD'S WELL She Was Given Up to Die, But is Now Fully Recovered.

Is To-Day in Better Health Than She Ever Was Before

Facts of the Case Investigated by a Herald Reporter.

(From The Hamilton Herald.) That consumption is a germ disease has long been conceded. For an equally long time it has been regarded as incurable. Medical men recognized the fact that if the germs of the disease could be destroyed there would be no further trouble. It was to get something sufficiently powerful to destroy the disease germs, that would not at the same time injure the different internal organs of the body. Experience taught that the one remedy to completely eradicate germ life was oxygen, but the difficulty was to administer it in sufficiently large quantities to effect a cure. For this reason it has been customary for physicians, with consumptive patients, to advise them to reside in a part of the country of high altitude, where there was a large amount of oxygen in the air. This with many people has not always been possible, and the result has been that the death rate from consumption has increased from year to year.

In the advances of medical science, however, a process of liquifying oxygen was discovered, and audacious chemists began to experiment with the manufacture at such a price that all sufferers could use it freely. So success fully has this process been carried out that the cures are numbered among the thousands, and this excellent remedy is regarded as being one of the greatest medical discoveries of the age.

Cures have not been confined to any particular locality, but come from all parts of the country. The most recent is right here in Hamilton, the fortunate patient being Mrs. Louise Don, who now conducts a boarding house in America. Hearing of this cure a Herald reporter decided to investigate the case, and after a short time he was able to make a question as to whether she had been cured as reported. Mrs. Don said: "It is a wonderful cure. My neighbors are in a position to corroborate what I say. I have been so ill that I could not get up. My doctor told me that I was to die, and for a time his medicine helped me considerably. He told me that I was to die, and for a time his medicine helped me considerably. New License Law Permits Magistrates to Close Many of Them.

Chief Effect of Measure Will Not Be to Restrict the Individual Drunkard.

London, Feb. 8.—Birmingham, Nottingham and Manchester, saloonkeepers are just now discovering that the new license act is much more far-reaching than they ever suspected. It makes it possible for magistrates to obtain detailed information in regard to licensed public houses and the proprietors themselves, and to cause notice of objection to the renewal of old or the granting of new licenses to be served without incapacitating the magistrates themselves from deciding thereon. It also settles the point that misconduct is not the only legal ground for refusing the renewal of a license. The magistrates and the county are taking advantage of this, and are reducing the number of public houses by refusing renewals wherever they think a district is oversupplied with these places.

The anger of the public house keepers when they consider their betrayal by the government is steadily rising. The government will undoubtedly feel the effect of it when it next goes to the country on a general election, for the Licensed Victuallers is one of the richest and most powerful organizations in the United Kingdom.

The justice of the measure is dealing with the malpractice of voluntary surrender. The latter declares that which shall be sacrificed and compensation to the sufferers. As an instance, the license-holders of Birmingham offered to surrender fifty licenses before February, 1904, provided it would not cost their society over £100,000. This has now become plain that the chief effect of the act will be not so much to restrict the individual drunkard as to reduce seriously the number of public houses.

EQUINOCTIAL DISTURBANCES. Attributed to influx of Cosmic Matter Towards the Sun.

J. C. Hamilton, M.A., LL.B., read an interesting paper on Saturday night before the Canadian Institute. Its subject was "The Monroe Doctrine—Its Origin and American Development."

Arthur Harvey took part in the discussion which followed. He took exception to the stand of Mr. Elving and quoted Lord Kelvin as refuting the idea that there was any connection between sun spots and magnetic disturbances. He referred to an interesting series of observations of the deviation of the magnetic needle. The observations which he had made with the assistance of Mr. Stupart at Toronto Observatory, extended over a period of fourteen years, and were the longest continuous observations that had been made in America. Los Angeles came next with observations extending over seven years.
