A Wonderful Woman.

LONDON, July 7.—Mrs. George Cornwallis-West added another to her claims to be considered one of the most versatile women in London by launching her first play at the Hicks Theatre. The play is a society comedy, entitled "His Borrowed Plumes."

Mrs. Cornwallis-West had the adventage of the finest possible acting vantage of the finest possible acting and mounting, which made the most of her play. The gowns were gorgeous. of her play. The gowns were gorgeous, and the hats marvel affairs. Mrs. Pat Campbell took the principal role, that of a literary woman whose husband, also with literary ambitions, loved another woman of the adventuress type. The "borrowed plumes" was a play which the husband cribbed from his wife's manuscript of a novel which which the husband cribbed from which the adventuress, unknown to him, had stolen. The story centres about this incident, and the heroine's efforts to win back her busband's love were against Ontario municipalities for usaginst Ontario municipalit

CHICAGO FIRM CLAIMS

MONOPOLY OF ANERODES

Therefore Municipalities Ask Government to Ascertain Their Rights.

That a Chicago firm should claim the monopoly of anerodes, sewer rats, or by whatever other fancy name they may be called, is the latest problem that Ontario municipalities who have installed septic tanks are contronted that the use of septic tanks is an in-fringement on their patent, and the concern has made such demands for compensation that over thirty munici-palities have united for mutual pro-tection. Among the ottics and towns tection. Among the cities and towns
