

Cheap Tea Not Economical!

Many people complain about the poor flavor of the cheap tea they are using, but are trying to put up with it because they think they are saving money.

In reality, cheap tea is rarely more economical, often less economical, than Red Rose Tea.

While Red Rose Tea may cost a few cents more, or even 10 cents more per pound, than common tea three teaspoonsful of Red Rose Tea are equal to five teaspoonsful of common tea.

Less Red Rose Tea is required in the tea pot, because this master blend of Indian-Ceylon teas consists largely of the famous hill grown teas of Assam, India.

These Assam teas excel in vigor, richness and strength. Their leaves yield more liquor and a fuller flavored liquor. Blended with Ceylons they make the ideal tea for flavor and economy.

Try a sealed package of Red Rose Tea and keep count of the extra number of cups it yields in comparison with cheap tea. You will find that Red Rose is worth every cent asked for it—and that it costs no more to use this delightful tea.

DESIRE AID FOR FEEBLE-MINDED

Deputation Interviews Premier Hearst and Members of the Cabinet.

NEEDS INFORMATION

Further Consideration Necessary Before Definite Answer is Given.

After hearing a large deputation from the Toronto branch of the Provincial Association for the care of the feeble-minded yesterday Premier Hearst said that there were a couple of questions in regard to the establishment of colony farms for the care of the high-grade feeble-minded children that he desired further information upon before he could give the deputation a decisive answer regarding the proposition, which has already been accepted by the board of education and the city council.

The project is to establish two colony farms, one for girls and the other for boys, on land provided by the city adjoining the two industrial farms. The plan is to erect cheap cottages on this land, each large enough for 50 children, the total accommodation being for 500. The financial and supervision would be in the hands of the city, and the board of education has voted $100 per annum for each public school child sent there. The deputation asked the government to provide as its share $50 per annum for the maintenance and education of each inmate.

Dr. Conboy explained the proposition, and stated that there might at first be some objection to the site being near the industrial farms, but parents sending children to the colony would not show any silly sentiment in the matter. He urged the immediate need of something being done in the matter before it became impossible. Only the higher grade of mental defectives would be taken there and looked after until they were 21 years of age and then would be turned over to the provincial institutions.

Wanted Reasons. The premier asked why only the high-grade feeble-minded would be taken in the colony and why they would only be supported there until the age of 21. Dr. Conboy said that the best way to deal with the greatest menace to society and under the supervision of experts a few might be so helped that they would be able to look after them for life.

Dr. Hearst said he recognized the importance of the question and the province was prepared to do what was right and having regard to the financial situation. There were, however, some points on which he would have to confer and obtain advice. He did not know whether it was best to start with handling the high-grade mental defectives only. Then turning them over to the provincial institutions after the age of 21, as it had been admitted that many of these people would be as great a menace to society as the feeble-minded, was another question that required consideration.

Any advice he had received had led him to believe that better results might be obtained by confining the inmates in the same surroundings to which they had become accustomed since childhood, rather than changing them at the age of 21. He admitted, however, that he might be wrong, but it was a point on which he wanted further advice.

If these two questions could be settled to his satisfaction there would not be so much difficulty so far as the request was concerned, but he wanted to confer with his colleagues before giving a positive answer.

With the premier were Hon. Dr. Pyne, Hon. W. D. McPherson, Hon. G. H. Ferguson, Hon. J. P. Lusk, Hon. C. R. Clarke, Hon. C. H. Evans and Hon. F. J. Conboy spoke on behalf of the deputation.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE TO CURTAIL EXPENDITURES

Dinners and Receptions Will Be Dispensed With—Follow Governor-General's Example.

According to an authoritative statement made yesterday the usual program of dinners and receptions held at Government House during the sitting of the legislature will be curtailed this year. This course is in accordance with that adopted by their excellencies the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire at Ottawa in deciding to omit this year the usual state dinner and reception following the opening of parliament, which are two of the most important social events of the year at Rideau Hall.

Sir John and Lady Hendrie have of late given most of their time to the furtherance of patriotic work and the receptions which have taken place at Government House recently have largely been in aid of such worthy purposes. The curtailment of the usual social functions will enable them to devote even more time to the work in which their interest has been keen.
