

Halifax, N.S.—
Dear Chum:

I am enjoying my visit with grandma and grandpa hugely. Yesterday grandpa took me down to the docks to see the whoppers. I bought me my third box of Moir's Chocolates. They are the sweetest candies ever. The chocolate outside is a really smooth and rich, and the inside is cream, jellies and nuts. Those called Moir's Chocolate Chips taste like Nougatines are so good that I teased grandma into promising me another box tomorrow. I'm not a bit homesick.

Your old chum,
Tommy.

Use it for Dish-washing

Go to your grocer, buy a package of Asepto—it will cost you five cents—take it home and dissolve a single teaspoonful in a pan of dishwater.

That's what you do—then see the result. Note how it cuts the grease—how it leaves your china and glassware bright and shining—how clean and wholesome it leaves your pots—your pans—your cooking utensils.

It does all that—and more. It destroys every trace of the germ life that exists wherever there is sustenance for these microscopic trouble breeders to feed upon—it sterilizes and sanitizes everything antiseptically—surrounds every glass, chinaware, cutlery, and any article used for eating or drinking with a germicidal film. It makes contagion impossible.

Perhaps the very best reason for using Asepto is that it saves you a good deal of money. It saves you a good deal of time. It saves you a good deal of trouble. It saves you a good deal of worry. It saves you a good deal of money.

REGENERATIVE FORCE THROUGH HUMAN SOCIETY

future peace and prosperity of this world, than in the recently ending and effective of the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon race for each other. Similar in their aims and ambitions, similar in blood and laws, they are similar in upholding the principles of justice and fair dealing wherever their mighty flags float.

War Hatched Buried

Fortunately for mankind, the hatchet of war is forever buried between them, and in their serene confidence in each other, in their good will and good-fellowship, they have decided to sit down side by side and smoke the pipe of perpetual peace. Under the beneficent influence and sway of this joint association, the dream of a greater and a grander civilization will eventually be evolved. The expansion of human life, the pursuit of peaceful methods of arbitration in international disputes, the elimination of unnecessary conflict of war and our honest trust in the desire for universal justice and fair dealing are truly the greatest aims and ambitions that can well be attained by two such enlightened peoples.

Henceforth, and even at the present time to a certain extent the approval of the people has been greatly given to the daring deeds of military chieftains. This esteem has been carried in process of praise in contemplation of the men of war. They have exulted in the glories and crash of battle. With death-dealing contrivances they have belched forth shot and shell into the ranks of the enemy until fields have been red with smoke and flame, and humanity has been wont to acclaim such performances as the highest pinnacle of moral and physical possibility.

From the remotest periods of antiquity great men have extolled the virtues of the men of war. The loftiest flights of oratorical eloquence have been given to the valiant hero who returns clad in the spoils of the enemy. Poets have attuned their harps of immortal memory to those who have hazarded their lives upon the field. Artists have left upon canvases the prototypes of ancient and modern wars. Madmen, even, have reserved the lies of affection for the youth who has returned besmudged and besmeared from the din and dangers of battle.

War and Its Glorifications

The history of nations has been the history of war and its glorification. Mankind from time immemorial has stamped his approval on the deadly encounter of armies; this, too, with Heaven's mighty commandment ringing in their ears—"Thou shalt not kill."

Fain would I offer my tribute in admiration of chivalrous deeds wherever they are performed. Fain would I lend my approval to the untold examples of self-sacrificing heroism that has frequently gone floating on the wings of smoke and flame. But notwithstanding all these we claim that the trumpets of peace are greater than the achievements of war. The white doves of commerce are more beneficial to mankind than a brawling brood struggling in battle.

A people who devote themselves to the peaceful pursuits of life, who dedicate themselves seriously to the betterment of mankind and the general welfare of humanity are eminently worthy of some of the acclaim that surrounds the halo of heroism. It is the generous broadmindedness of men, the honest men, the kindly men and every-day friendly men who are the great bulwarks of any nation. The prosperity and happiness of a people does not depend upon the geographical extent of its territory, not upon its golden fields of grain, not upon its industrial products.

"Not high-raised battlements or labored mound,
Thick walls or moated gate,
Not cities proud with spires and turrets crowned,
Not bays and proud armed ports
Where, laughing at the storm, rich navies ride,
But men, high-minded men,"

From the earliest times saints and sages looked forward to a day when peace would be universal. Isaiah predicted the time when swords would be fashioned into ploughshares, spears into pruning-hooks, and the lion forgetting his ferocious instincts would lie peacefully down by the side of the lamb. "Virgin in his graceful flowing robe allowed his fertile fancy to stray into such peaceful regions in his peripateticism into futurity."

Plato in his ideal republic, and Sir Thomas Moore in his Utopia delighted in depicting a state of human society when war would be no more.

The Accomplishment

This blissful state of humanity may feel assured will not be introduced by any system of socialistic leveling, not by the destruction of individualism, but rather by making individualism complete in a masterful humanity. There is no equality in Heaven above, and we are absolutely sure there is none in the earth beneath. Inequality and diversity are the rules of nature, and a world at peace will be a world where diversity shall have resulted in perfect harmony. What we require to introduce this blissful period, this era of universal brotherhood of men is rebirth with higher aspirations, nobler purposes and a purer morality. No economical nostrum, no political expedients will bring about this wished for millennium of the human race. Nothing will accomplish this but a regenerative force permeating human society; a moral influence dominating life and conduct; imperative in its demands; restitutive in its force.

Doctors Agreed Toronto Nurse Had Bright's Disease

Dodd's Kidney Pills. Cured Her After Five Years Suffering—Felt a Benefit After First Box

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 18.—(Special)—Mrs. Alberta Giffin, a nurse, living at 40 Wright Avenue, in this city, has been interviewed in regard to her reported cure of nervous or kidney trouble by Dodd's Kidney Pills. She states that the report is true in every particular.

"My sickness," Mrs. Giffin says, "was really a nervous condition, but it was treated by three doctors and long weeks of nursing. I suffered for five years. I was treated in hospitals but gradually got weaker. I finally decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. At that time I was so weak and nervous that I could not get up of bed without feeling some of its contents."

"I felt a benefit after taking the first box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and eight or nine boxes cured me so completely I can now walk a mile without fatigue."

"If you have not used Dodd's Kidney Pills yourself almost any of your neighbors will tell you they always cure kidney disease in any form."

MORNING NEWS

OVER THE WIRES

Armand Lavergne, addressing the University of Toronto students last night, said that the Nationalists were going to have a candidate in every constituency in Quebec at the next dominion election and that he would speak in every province. The two-year-old child of Benjamin Weiss, a section foreman in Charlottetown, was buried to death yesterday. The first started from a spark from a stove. In the international military jumping contest at the New York horse show in New York yesterday, Lieut. Clifford Sifton, son of Hon. Clifford Sifton, was thrown from his horse and narrowly escaped being crushed under the animal. President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, says he did not intend to convey that he wanted the negro eliminated from labor unions, but that the condition of the negroes as a class made their case a difficult one to deal with. With the prospect of bringing natural gas into Montreal and the construction of the street railway, Montreal real estate has taken quite a boom, and there are options on several properties.
