ELECTION CHARGES.

Interesting opinions as to corruption in election campaigns are published in the Toronto News of Saturday last in connection with the protests entered by the Liberals in Chateaugay and the Conservatives in South Bruce. The Liberals have been hinting at a "saw-off" whereby neither petition will come to trial, and Mr. Morris, Conservative, will take his seat in Chateaugay, and Mr. Truxax, Liberal, in South Bruce, Ontario Conservatives, as represented by the News, do not view with favor the idea of a "saw-off" but prefer to have the law take its course in each case. On this point the News' article is of particular interest. It says:

"It is to be hoped that there will be no saw-off between South Bruce and Chateaugay. The people have the right to know just what methods were employed by both parties in both contests. The chances are that if the protests go to trial we shall have a revelation of Liberal methods that will reduce the Liberal politicians and their organs to silence for some time to come. If it is found that the Liberal managers are as corrupt in Opposition as they were in office the country will look elsewhere for moral teaching. An Opposition resolutely determined to have honest elections would deserve public respect. An Opposition which denounces corrupt practices by its opponents and is flagrantly corrupt in its own methods deserves only public contempt."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the organs supporting him were particularly blatant regarding Chateaugay. The leader of the opposition, himself, declared that the constituency was stolen by the Government. The statements, however, were supported by a very meagre collection of charges, not nearly so formidable as those preferred by the Conservatives in South Bruce.

The Liberals also made a wild outcry over the result in Macdonald. Out there they were only too ready to have the seat voided by confession of bribery by agents and to escape inquiry into the methods adopted by the corrupt Saskatchewan machine. It is understood that if the real facts had been declared it would have been proved that the Opposition spent between $28,000 and $30,000 in the effort to defeat the Government's candidate. It is admitted that there was bribery in behalf of the Conservative candidate, but it is just as certain that the Opposition did not face a full investigation into their own methods.

Now there are charges both in Chateaugay and South Bruce. By all means they should be tried. The voice of the people should not be interfered with, no matter which political party is responsible.

THE MAIL QUESTION.

There can be no two opinions on the question whether first-class British mails brought to St. John should be forwarded to Montreal via C. P. R.—a 480 mile run, or by the I. C. R.—a 741 mile run. On this matter Liberals and Conservatives are united in demanding the more direct route. When correspondence, arising from the routing of the Tunisian's mails (which we are told were largely composed of newspapers and parcels), is used as a pretext for abusing Hon. Mr. Hazen, Conservatives and Liberals are not united. The Times deals with "Hon. J. D. Hazen's cynical reply to constituents." Mr. Hazen's reply was neither cynical nor discourteous. If there has been any discourtesy toward St. John the gentleman responsible for it is Mr. R. M. Coulter, deputy postmaster-general. If Liberal papers desire to assail any person in connection with the "discourtesy" to St. John, Mr. Coulter is the man to take the blame. Incidentally it might be mentioned that he was appointed by the Laurier government to the position he now holds, the date of his appointment being August 1st, 1907.

As far as Mr. Hazen is concerned he was asked to communicate the claims of St. John to the Post Office Department. He did so, and communicated to the President of the Board of Trade the answer he received. If the answer is regarded by Liberal newspapers as discourteous, surely that is not Mr. Hazen's fault. But these Liberal newspapers are not inclined to be particularly logical or fair in apportioning credit or blame when there is a Conservative government in power. Their present attitude is merely a part of the old political game.

CONCERNING NEW DANCES.

Despatches indicate that "the tango" has not found favor in Britain and that the court has decided it shall be barred from official recognition. On the other hand leaders of advanced thought in social circles in the United States have expressed the opinion that it represents the poetry of motion and is thoroughly in accord with the spirit of the times. Both views may be correct, but is the "spirit of the times," as used in this sense, the correct spirit? Years ago young people attended dancing parties and enjoyed themselves to the full without "tangoes," "turkey trots," "bunny hugs," or any of the atrocities now presented under the guise of dancing. Are social conditions any better today than they were twenty years ago? It is not wise to wish for a return of old times in all things, but it was never necessary to ban the dances of our fathers or mothers on the ground of immodesty. If the "tango" is in keeping with the spirit of the times is it not advisable to curb the spirit?

THE JUBILANT GRITS.

Jubilantly the Times quotes the Montreal Daily Mail to the effect that "the result in East Middlesex and South Bruce has been protested by the Conservatives on the ground of corruption, bribery and practically all other forms of election rascality; the Liberals in Macdonald were glad to receive an admission of bribery by a Conservative agent in order that their own misdeeds might not be proved. Truly the Liberals should be more than encouraged; they should be tickled to death. But, will they be so happy when the whole story of the peculiar activities of Mr. Truxax, the Liberal candidate in South Bruce, is ventilated in the courts? Truly excessive mirth goeth before sadness."

AS OTHERS SEE US.

A matter of much interest to the people of St. John is thus briefly treated by an exchange:

"St. John Liberals are attacking Hon. Mr. Hazen and the present Government because it is feared that St. John is not going to get its share of traffic coming over the National Transcontinental."

"These modern Rip Van Winkles should look up what happened while they slept as far back as 1903. When the big project was first proposed, New Brunswick Conservatives in Parliament and out of it were solidly in favor of St. John being made the terminus of the road. That stout-hearted Liberal, the late Hon. A. G. Blair, was of the same opinion. Fleiding and his 'solid eighteen' had Laurier on their side, however, and instead of being built directly to St. John, the line was routed across the centre of the province, through tracts of swamp and forest, to the town of Moncton."

"From the standpoint of the City of St. John and its aspirations toward being the winter port of Canada, the action of the Laurier Government was indefensible, and no matter what the Laurierites and Pugsleyites may say to the contrary, they can never erase from the public mind the knowledge that if St. John loses business because the G. T. P. is headed for Halifax the responsibility rests directly on their shoulders."

"The people of the New Brunswick city to save the 'political skin' of Hon. W. S. Fleiding in Nova Scotia. And, moreover, when Hon. J. D. Hazen sought to remedy the evil by constructing the Valley railway, Pugsley and Carvell fought to delay its being built at every turn. Upon these two men, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the blame must rest for the Transcontinental blunder."

Apparently our Western friends have not been forming their opinions on the situation in St. John from the views expressed by the Telegraph and the Times.

Last evening's touch of winter brings forcible reminders of the approach of Christmas. Have you done your Christmas shopping?

CURRENT COMMENT

Giving the Farmer the Worst of It (Toronto News)
 Sir Wilfrid Laurier's adoption of reciprocity cost the Liberal party the loss of office, and it looks as if he has now made another false step on the tariff question. He proposes to deprive the Canadian farmers of all protection on what they sell and still make them pay duties on what they buy. This is a proposal which the agricultural constituencies will scarcely favor.

Towns Draining the Country. (Toronto Weekly Sun)
 The artificial stimulus given the towns has so drained the country of labor that agricultural energy has been turned to those lines in which the demand for manual labor is least, and which at the same time tend to soil and impoverish. Even in these lines there is, in the last year or two, evidence of stagnation.

Explaining the Egg Shortage. (Mail and Empire).
 There appears to be an egg shortage at the present time, but this is not to be wondered at when so many valuable hens are gallivanting about as poultry shows instead of remaining at home and standing to their domestic duties.

DIARY OF EVENTS

HISTORIC DAYS IN CANADA

One hundred years ago today Col. Murray and his little army of 573 regulars and a small body of militia and Indians encamped on Twelve Mile Creek, and began the final preparations for an attack on Fort George, near the mouth of the Niagara, which had been in the possession of the Americans since the preceding May. Gen. McClure, although he had 2,700 men at his command, decided that discretion was the better part of valor, and evacuated the fort on the following day, Dec. 10, 1813. Before leaving, however, McClure was guilty of a waston and cruel act that was condemned almost as bitterly by his own countrymen as by Canadians. He ordered his men to set fire to the houses in the neighboring town of Newark, once the capital of Upper Canada. The village, consisting of about 150 houses, was almost wiped out, only one small dwelling, a part of St. Mark's church, and the Indian council house escaping the flames. The 400 inhabitants, mostly women and children, were driven behind the walls of the village. If a dog brush against them, they were plunged forthwith, clothes and all, into the flames. The conflagration was visible to Col. Murray and his men and they marveled at once to find the village a mass of smoking ruins, and the Americans in full retreat, leaving their guns and stores behind. Several American villages were burned by way of retaliation and Fort Niagara, on the American side, was captured by the English.

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

AN ANARCHISTIC PRINCE.

Prince Peter Alexeyevitch Kropotkin, scientist, explorer, geographer and anarchist, was born in Russia seventy-one years ago today. The Nihilist Prince comes of a family that is said to have as good a claim to the Russian throne as the Romanoffs. In his youth Prince Peter traveled all over Manchuria, Siberia and China, and won the medal of the Russian Geographical Society. It was forty years ago that he joined the International Workingmen's Association, the parent body of both scientific socialism and philosophic anarchism. The Prince was locked up in a dungeon in the grim fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul. For three years he was kept in close confinement, spending the time in writing scientific articles for the Britannica, as well as two volumes on glaciers. He used the heavy stool which was the only furniture of his cell as a medicine ball, and walked five miles each day by pacing his narrow dungeon. Eventually he was sent to the hospital, from which, with the assistance of friends, he managed to escape, and made his way to England.

THE PASSING DAY

PERUVIANS CELEBRATE.

On this beautiful summer day—for it is summer now below the equator—the people of Peru and Bolivia will celebrate the eighty-ninth anniversary of the battle of Ayacucho, in which the patriots under Gen. Sucre defeated and killed the British. The army of Spain, for Peru, and to a lesser extent Bolivia, that battle ushered in a period of peace, prosperity and liberty, broken only by disastrous wars with Chile and a few minor revolutions. The last message to congress of President Senor Don Guillermo E. Billinghurst, which was published as advertising at the expense of the Peruvian government in several North American papers, apparently shows that Peru is now riding on the top wave of prosperity, and is highly hopeful of vast benefits to be derived from the opening of the Panama Canal. This opinion is apparently shared by North American, English, German and French capitalists, who are covering the ancient province of Pizarro with a network of railways. Two months ago the Peruvian congress abolished the section of the constitution which made Roman Catholicism the state religion and prohibited the exercise of any other religion. For many years the government had maintained the building of Protestant churches and schools, in spite of the constitutional prohibition, but the latter has now been removed. President Billinghurst, of Spanish descent, and was elected by the progressive party.

General Sucre, the hero of the battle which drove the Spaniards from Peru and Bolivia, was rewarded with the presidency of the Upper Peru, now Bolivia, and the capital was named after him. Son of a poor Argentine patriot, assisted by the Chilean navy under Admiral Lord Cochrane, the immortal English sea fighter, had previously driven the Spaniards from a large part of Peru, and when Sucre finally crushed the Royalists at Ayacucho on December 9, 1824, a republic had already been established with its City of the Kings.

In Lima the brilliant half-modern, half-ancient capital, today's celebration of the battle of Ayacucho will centre in the Boulevard of the Ninth of December, the fashionable thoroughfare of the city, named to commemorate Sucre's victory. At the end of the avenue, however, there stands a statue which commemorates the name and fame of one whose immortal glory was gained in the hour of defeat and death. It is the sad and tragic bronze figure of Col. Francisco Bolognese, who commanded Peru's legions at the battle of Ayacucho. He was a brave and gallant soldier, but he was also a man of few words. He was dashed to death hundreds of feet below. Every Peruvian fought until killed or mortally wounded, and only a few survivors of the battle were left. Later Lima fell before the Chilians, and Peru was forced to pay, not only the blood of its heroes, but was also exacted from any nation in the history of the world.

Small wonder that Peruvians weep when they pass the tragic figure at the end of the Boulevard of the Ninth of December.

IN LIGHTER VEIN

Rose to the Occasion.

Christie MacDonald, leading woman in Sweethearts, recently gave an amusing illustration of feminine ignorance in the presence of things mechanical.

"Picking her way daintily through the grime of the locomotive works, a young woman visitor viewed the huge operations with visible awe. Finally, she turned to a young man from the office who was showing her through, and, pointing, asked: 'What is that big thing over there?' 'That's a locomotive boiler,' the young man replied. 'She puffed her brows. 'And what do they boil locomotives for?' she asked. 'To make the locomotive tender,' he replied. 'And the young man from the office never batted an eyelash, either.'"

Concealed Seta.

There are sets in India that will drink water out of a cloth fastened over the mouth. This is to prevent the killing of animals. These sets employ a servant to hold a long goat while the set is ing. This is to prevent the hearing of profane remarks from passersby. If a dog brush against them, they plunge forthwith, clothes and all, into a bath. They have a horror of defilement from folk of lower caste than themselves. Lower caste folk not only must not touch them, but if a lower caste shadow fall across their raiment it is at once removed and washed. And yet there are some rich American snobs who would give these people cards and spades.

Observing Popular Tendency.

"Is this play perfectly proper?" "Yes, ma'am," replied the man in the box office. "What made you doubt it?" "The string of automobiles in front of the theatre. I never heard any to have as good a claim to the Russian throne as the Romanoffs. In his youth Prince Peter traveled all over Manchuria, Siberia and China, and won the medal of the Russian Geographical Society. It was forty years ago that he joined the International Workingmen's Association, the parent body of both scientific socialism and philosophic anarchism. The Prince was locked up in a dungeon in the grim fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul. Eventually he was sent to the hospital, from which, with the assistance of friends, he managed to escape, and made his way to England."

They Passed Him.

The civil service examinations for the fire department of Chicago contained the following: "Name three fire-extinguishers." When the papers were returned for correction, an answer to the above was: "Chief, lieutenant and sergeant."
