At $18 per ton, an order for 30,000 tons of rails means an expenditure of $540,000, nearly all of which will find its way into the pockets of United States workmen.

Then why go to the United States for rails? The answer is to be found on page 4277, Hansard, June 9th, 1903 The following - resolution, moved by Mr. R. L. Borden, was defeated by a solid Liberal vote:

"This house is of the opinion that the tariff of customs duties should give such protection to iron and steel industries as will not only secure to our own producers and manufacturers the Canadian market in articles now produced or manufactured in this country, but will also devellon and sustain the manufacture in Canada of other iron and steel products which at present are imported in large quantities from other countries. And that the present tariff of customs duties should be now, readjusted on this principle." The defleat of that proposition means Canadian markets for the United Statics, and in the case of the Canadian Pacific order alone the removal of $540,000, at least, which should be spent at Sydney and the Soo.

Anecdotal.

A Western Congressman was asked if he did not think President Roosevelt certain to be re-elected, barring any "big mistake" the candidate might make. The composer sighed dejectedly. "I suppose," MacDowell remarked, "that she pulled it up by the roots."

It was commonly supposed that his lordship was sleeping, and the late Sir Frank Lockwood, observing that the learned judge was very much awakened by a little tiff between the president and Sir Charles Russell, exclaimed, quite audibly: "This is the dawn of Day!"

Chauncey M. General Neison A. Miles says that during the Civil War there was one conscription fakir who made thousands of dollars before the authorities restrained him. This rascal would send letters broadcast, wherein he said he would communicate for two dollars a sure means of escaping the conscription. Letters, enclosing two-dollar notes, poured in on him, and in reply to each letter he would send a printed slip reading: "Join the nearest volunteer regiment."

An old negro living in Carrollton was taken ill recently, and called in a physician of his race to prescribe for him. But the old man did not seem to be getting any better, and finally a white physician was called. Soon after arriving, Dr. 8.—felt the darkey's pulse for a moment, and then examined his tongue. "Did your other doctor take your temperature?" he asked. "I don't know, sah," he arswered, feebly; "I hain't missed anything but my watch as yit, boss."

"Madame perhaps waited to take her chocolate before coming to church?" To this, madame, by no means abashed, graciously replied: "Yes, mon pere; and two rolls with it."

At the Chatham Grand:-"The Burglar"- Nov. 27. Lyceum Course No. 2-Nov. 30

(Supplied to The Planet by Pres Agents.)

"The Burglar,' Grand Opera House Friday night.-A play somewhat different from the usual order of dramatic offering. Probably no other drama of the kind has the notency in drawing from all classes and conditions of people that is experienced by "The Burglar." Young and old rich and those less favored with the world's goods, are equally absorbed with the story. In a home of wealth and refinement are all the scenes enacted, where the burglary is attempted, frustrated by the artless endea vors of a bright child of six years.

Discontent With Work. That there is much discontent with work among the so called middle class-es in America is due in large part to the pampering of children, to the supplying of their natural and artificial wants and to the sentimental idea that "their day of toil will come soon enough." In general, work is not a curse, but a blessing, a positive means of grace. One can hardly begin too early to impress upon children lessons of self help by tasks appropriate to their age and forces and to beget in them scorn of idleness and of dependence on others. To do this is to make them happy through the self respect that comes with the realization of power and thus to approximate Tennyson's goal of man, "Self reverence, self knowledge, self control."-Century.

Two Views of the Bells. A clergyman on his way to church one Sunday morning pulled up to rebuke an angler. "Don't you hear the bells summoning you to church?" he asked. The fisherman put an inquiring hand to his ear. Encouraged, the cler gyman repeated the question. But once again the fisherman asked for a repetition, and then again, and even yet again. Flushing from overmuch bawling, the parson was about to proceed on his way when the fisherman spoke. "Very sorry, guv'nor," he said, "but them bloomin' bells makes such an infernal clatter that I can't hear a word you says."-- London Globe.

Durable Whitewash. A very durable whitewash that will stand nearly as well as paint is made as follows: Slake a bushel of lime with boiling water and thin sufficiently with cold water to make a good whitewash; dissolve a pint of white vitriol (sul-phate of zinc) in boiling water, only enough to thoroughly dissolve it; also a quart of fine salt. The bushel of lime will weigh about seventy pounds, and by keeping the above proportions a greater or less amount can be made.

A small bottle of Scott's Emulsion costing fifty cents will last a baby a month-a few drops in its bottle each time it is fed. That's a small outlay for so large à return of health and comfort.

Babies that are given Scott's Emulsion quickly respond to its helpful action. It seems to contain just the elements of nourishment a baby needs most. Ordinary food frequently lacks this nourishment; Scott's Emulsion always supplies it.

LEAMINGTON. This Celebrated Spa Is a Favorite Resort

One of the favorite resorts One of the favorite resorts in Warwickshire is Leamington, the celebrated spa. It is much frequented by invalids on account of its healing mineral springs, and is also a convenient stopping place for sight-seers who wish to visit the famous castles and towns in the vicinity. Learnington is an ancient town, and passed in early days through many vicissitudes. In the old book of records, called the "Domesday Book," is found the earliest mention of this place. Here, in the year 1086, it is recorded as a manor, owned by one of the Warwick family. After this time it passed into the After this time it passed into the hands of many proprietors, and among these was a brother of the Earl of Leicester. Toward the close of the eighteenth century it was a quaint village, of which a few small cottages even now remain to tell of its original simplicity. There is also an ancient church, with its attendant phyrchyard not far from the form thurchyard, not far from the ford across the little River Leam. The streets are lined with tall, majeseic elms, and on the village highway two public houses may be seen, one of which for many years has rejoiced in the name of "Dog Inn." These old buildings date back to the end of the eighteenth century, when the discovery of saline springs had created a reputation for the town. Everything was at this time on a very small scale, and arrange-ments were extremely simple. As the visitors came in greater numbers, it was found necessary to have more conveniences, and the authorities caused a tub of considerable size to be sunk in one of the ditches near the spring. A man was retained as a "regular dipper," and many invalids attributed their cure to immersion in this primitive bathtub.

When sulphur and other mineral springs were discovered in 1784, the first bath was built, and Learnington grew rapidly into the well known spa it has been for many years.

In 1803 the Royal Pump Room and baths were built over one of the springs, and the buildings are well equipped and luxurious. are situated near the beautiful Vic toria Bridge, and contain swimming baths and reading and reception rooms. They are surrounded by well cept and extensive grounds. When the town is full of invalids and their families the "Parade" is the favorite resort, and many people go up and down, exchanging the greetings of the day. The central position of Learnington, in War-wickshire, makes it attractive as a dwelling place, especially in the hunting season, when the devotees of the chase disturb somewhat the us ual quiet of the town.

Among the modern patrons of Lea-mington, Dr. Jephson easily ranks first, and he is often spoken of as the "Father of Leamington." many ways he advanced the interest and increased the reputation of that town, and now an imposing monument stands as a memorial to his hame and public spirit.

It is a beautiful drive from Leam-ington to Kenilworth. The first view of the ruins of Kenilworth Castle is somewhat disappointing, and it is accessary to invest the reddish stone structure with all the romance that Sir Walter Scott has created before its real charm and inspiration car be felt. In many places the protect-ing ivy has thrown its green mantle over decapitated towers and broken columns, and rendered beautiful the remains of a once imposing castle.

It is as old as the time of Henry L, and fell into the hands of various noble families. At one time a church and priory were established here, and the castle also became a royal jail, of which Simon de Mont-fort was the keeper. The priory is said to have been destroyed by said to have been destroyed by Henry VIII., who mercenarily sold the materials of which it was built. When Queen Elizabeth came to the throne of England she gave the grant of Kenilworth Castle to her favorite courtier, Dudley, Earl of Leicester, and by him it was altered and much improved. It was here that his unfortunate wife, the beautiful Amy Robsart, was hidden for a time, from the outside world, until carried away to Cumnor Palace, where she came to her most untimely end. The shadow of this dreadful murder has always rested heavily upon the character of the "Lord of Kenilworth," whether he was, as some claim, in-nocent of any knowledge of it, or whether he secretly instigated it, in-spired by the ambition to become the husbard of Elizabeth, and so King of England.

The Queen's visit to the castle is a

The Queen's visit to the castle is a matter of history, and she was received and entertained there with great splendor and hospitality. At the time of the visit the battlements of the great high towers were covered with giant guards, with clubs and warlike implements, representing soldiers of King Arthur's time. The royal pageant is said to have approached the castle by the broad highway, which, for more than two miles, afforded lovely views of lake and towers. This was in the year 1575, and as the little town of Stratford is not far away, it is thought that Shakespeare may have witnessed the princely welcome which the Earl of Leicester gave to the Queen at Kenilworth.

Many years after these scenes of romance and tragedy, the Castle of Kenilworth came into the possession of the Earl of Clarence, and afterward his descendants.

MEXICAN HOUSES.

Little Wood Used In Them, and They Are Practically Fireproof.

There is a minimum of wood use or house construction in the cities of Mexico, and there is absolutely nothin to burn except what furnishings the houses may contain. The walls are solidly built of stone and brick or in the less costly structures of adobes, which are thickly plastered inside and out with mortar or stucco. The floors are of brick, stone or tiles, while the roofs are of brick laid in mortar or in some cities of semicylindrical clay tiles. Many roofs are arched with brick laid flat, not on edge, and it is marvelous how slight a curve some of these arches have. Yet they support heavy weights and have lasted through Flat roofs are supported by 6 by 6 inch hewn pine joists placed eight inch-es apart. These joists are often twenty feet in length. The doors are heavy hanging upon ornamented wrought strap hinges and secured by strong, handmade locks, which have remark ably large complicated keys. Practically the only wood used in construc tion is for the doors and joists which support the roof. The church roofs are invariably of brick arches, usually sev fire traps in Mexico as those mansard roofs of French and American cities or the frail dwellings of China or the universal wooden structures which have made fire insurance so great a burden in the United States and which cause so great and continuous expenditures for fire protection.—Arboriculture.

Speaking and Stopping. The knowledge of when to sit down is invaluable to public speakers and to their audiences. Perhaps the best plan is to secure a candid friend who will pull you down by your coattails. A man "on his legs" is one with whom time gallops; he has spoken for half an hour, and to him it seems but five minutes. The excitement of the brain suggests new and ever new ideals, and the extemporary talker in the pulpit or after a public dinner flounders in pursuit of these will - o' - the - wisps through swamps and thickets of bad grammar haunted by the anacolouthon and other fearful wild fowl. In the pulpit there is no man to pull the preacher down, and many are his "two words more, my brethren." After pub-lic dinners a bored audience begins to disapproval are not marked by the self | wisdom ever on their lips. Girls, be absorbed public speaker. In short, the knowledge of when to sit down is rare and hard to acquire.—Longman's.

It is often noticeable that a young girl will slight a remark made to her by an elderly women to listen animatedly to a giddy girl of her own age. How often, too, is the elderly guest entirely neglected by the younger members of the family that she may visit! A little attention from the young is much appreciated by the elderly, and it is easy to give at least a deferential manner. It is generally wisdom's part to defer to the opinions of the old.
