QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Veterinary.

PARALYSIS IN DOG.

English setter has lost power of her hind legs. She has been this way for about four weeks. She eats well, and appears healthy in other ways.

W. H. M.

Ans.—This is paralysis, and it is very doubtful whether she will recover. Purge her with 4 drams jalap and 5 grains calomel. Follow up with a tablet containing one-twentieth grain strychnine three times daily. If this causes well-marked twitching of the muscles, reduce the dose to one-thirtieth grain. Feed on bread and milk, potatoes and gravy, etc. Give very little meat.

of your valuable paper, where I may ert street, Toronto, mentioning "The

POULTRY FEED HOPPER.

I would like to try hopper feeding for my hens, and have searched back numbers of "The Farmer's Advocate" for a description of one, but failed to find anything in that line, so am writing this to ask if you would give dimensions, etc., for making one. We have about 70 pullets. Our chicken-house has an earthen floor, and the litter gets damp in less than a day, so thought we would try all grain fed in a hopper. Thanking you in advance.

E. M. A.

Ans.—On page 595, of the April 6th, 1911, issue of "The Farmer's Advocate," there was illustrated a poultry feed hopper for outdoor feeding. The exact dimensions and amount of all materials required in the making were given. This hopper is quite suitable for inside feeding as well, provided you have a large pen and a large flock. In case you have lost the issue containing this illustration, you can get a bulletin entitled "Farm Poultry," by Prof. W. R. Graham, of the O. A. C., which contains this and other very valuable information.

COWS FAIL TO CONCEIVE—PO-TATOES ROT.

1. All the cows in this neighborhood, with the exception of a few, failed to conceive this season. The bull, a Shorthorn, feeding well, was kept tied in the stable all the season. This was his first year's service. Would you advise keeping this animal for the same purpose next summer, if he was given plenty of exercise, for instance, loose in a pen, and more liberal feeding?

2. A considerable quantity of seed potatoes rotted in the ground last spring.
Nearly all of these were planted in drills, directly on the manure, the drills having been made several days before planting.
Where the potatoes were plowed in under the manure, very few missed. It appears planting under a hot sun favors development of rot. What might have been the cause of the potatoes rotting? Please state a good way of planting potatoes.

N. S.

Ans.—1. The bull may possibly have been overworked. Lack of exercise and proper feed may also have had something to do with the cows not conceiving. If he is of valuable breeding, he could be kept for another season and given a change of feeding and abundance of exercise. If of no particular breeding value, he might be fattened off and another procured to take his place. If kept, and he does not get the cows with calf after careful treatment, dispose of him.

2. The ground may have become very dry, and the hot sun may have killed the sprouts or eyes of the potatoes, after which they would rot. Good results have been obtained by dropping the potatoes in furrows and plowing them down about four to five inches deep.
Drop the cuts about 1 foot to 18 inches apart. Planted in this manner, and at this depth, they require no hilling.
Planting in hills, and also in drills, has also given good results.

SAVE-THE-HORSE

SAVE-THE-HORSE BOOK is an encyclopedia of practical and complete references. It is the latest, most reliable and highest authority. It is scientific but not technical. Takes in every scope and character of diseases causing lameness.

Tobias, Neb., June 4th, 1911.
Troy Chemical Co., Binghamton, N. Y.—A year and a half ago I had a bottle of your spavin remedy. I cured my horse with it and then gave what I had left of it to a friend who had a mule with a spavin, which veterinarians had failed to cure.
My friend today says, "It's certainly a sure cure." Find $5.00 for another bottle. Very truly, Thos. Ransom.

When discriminating, cautious, hard-headed bankers, farmers and business men write for information, and then select "Save-the-Horse" from the mass of remedies presented, and these are the kind of men our testimonials are from, is there need to ask why?
