From the Niece of Thackeray

"A Convert's Reason Why," by Miss Alloe J. Hayes, is steadily making friends wherever it is read. As an friends wherever it is read. As an illustration of the appreciation it elicits we quote the following comment made by Mrs. Blanche Warre Cornish, a niece of Thackeray. Writing to the author, Mrs. Cornish says: And now to tell you that on lonely Exmoor your book came home to me with a force which I can not describe to rear adequately. Your work is the very you adequately. Your work is the very book I have been seeking for. Your preface expressed the very purpose I have longed to see put in effect. I have already seen a result on a young woman of supremely apt but prejudiced woman of supremery apt but prejudiced mind. The passage you quote from the Newcomes had entirely escaped me. I intend to order your book at once for friends and I shall not part with the copy you so kindly sent me. Mrs. Cornish is the wife of an Angli-

Mrs. Cornish is the where a Margh-can minister, but has been a Catholic for some years. She had the happiness also of seeing her daughter and the latter's husband, the late Mr. Reginald Balfour enter the Church.

It is gratifying to note the extension It is gratifying to note the extension of a good work, and the Review trusts that Miss Hayes' missionary book will continue to comfort and h=lp those who need the message it brings. We who are born of Catholic parents, receiving the Church's trachings as our heritage the Church's teachings as our heritage should have the deepest, kindliest inter-
