

BOYS AND THE HOME.

Be business-like, boys, about even the little things. Do not toss down your hats, for mother and the girls to pick up, or put your books on the parlor table, or leave your slippers by your chair. Be mannerly, and make your ways pleasant and agreeable to others, and your company to be desired. Home life is made up of these little things, and they are not, in reality, as small and trivial as some think them to be. When not attended to properly, they mar and undo what others accomplish, and by them many a mother's back is made to ache, and many a sister's unending care increased. You have no right to stalk unheeding through the house others are trying daily to mould into a home. The wide world over our boys need walking up on this subject. They are indulged to much in careless thoughtlessness, and the excuse, "Oh, well, they are only boys," thrown out for them. Now, lads, do you need such a cloak thrown over your acts—you, so sturdy and strongly knit? Let the girls, rather, be sheltered, we should say.
