TROUT MEZZWORK

The undersigned have received from Mr. Nash of Maine the agency for New Brunswick for his famous trout mezzwork. A trout mezzwork is one half the fish mounted upon a convex elliptical panel as to stand the fish out in bold relief, giving the effect of an oil painting or a life-sized fish, with the real thing to show at your pleasure. The process of preserving fish in this artistic way was discovered by Mr. Nash in 1900, and patented by him.

NORTHWEST MOUNTED POLICE
PERILS IN THE FAR NORTH.

A Record of Splendid Endurance by a Northwest Mounted Policeman—Almost Without Food and Lived on Frozen Meat.

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—The qualities of the men who compose the Royal Northwest Mounted Police have often been demonstrated, but rarely have fidelity, devotion to duty, fearlessness, unselfishness, and indomitable determination been manifested in greater degree than was displayed last winter in a journey made by Constable Seller, amounting in all to about 995 miles. The trip was made in company of Interpreter Ford and an Eskimo named Tupealok. It was undertaken for the purpose of locating the whereabouts of a Scottish ship, the Ernest William, and ascertaining her liability to the customs duty for supplies imported. Constable Seller probably receives pay to the amount of about a dollar and a half a day, but, without a murmur, he entered upon and successfully accomplished a journey attended by great hardships, and which many an explorer would have been proud of relating. The recital of Seller's trip is contained in a diary, which has just been received at the Mounted Police Department. Nothing more modest or unaffected than his account of the long journey and the difficulties met with and surmounted could be imagined.

Constable Seller, with his two companions and a dog team of ten, left Fuller-on, on the west coast of Hudson's Bay, on February 21st last. They returned on April 19th, having been exposed for two months to the rigors of an Arctic winter. The only casualty was a frost-bitten leg of one dog that was left behind at Lyon's Inlet. On the way to their destination and back intensely cold weather was encountered, and many blizzards. At night snow houses would be built for shelter, called by Eskimos "igloos." Herds of deer were seen, and several were shot for food. For a couple of days, however, both men and dogs went on short rations. Had it not been for falling in with a party of natives they would at one time have been in desperate straits. For a great part of the journey the FOOD HAD TO BE EATEN FROZEN, because the alcohol and wood gave out.

Here are a few extracts which show the nature of the hardships encountered on the journey: "We have only fifty pounds of deer meat, two pounds of pemmican, and six pounds of boiled meat for ourselves and ten dogs, so we must find natives. Very cold day. I had both my feet badly frozen. My footgear is in a very bad state—wet and worn out. We were compelled to break up some barrels to cook food, as we had been subsisting on frozen meat for the last three days.

"Terrible snowstorm. Impossible to go out looking for natives. Our dogs are getting hungry, as they have had nothing for three days. We cannot possibly give them anything out of what small supply we have for ourselves. My feet are very sore, the result of frost burns.

"Bad storm, but not nearly so bad as yesterday. I sent Ford and Tupealok out to look for natives. They returned at 5 p. m., bringing us information that cheerer us quite a little. The ship they learned was at 'Melachuseetuck.'

THE PLACE WHERE GHOSTS CHASE WOMEN.

They brought some meat for the dogs, and said the natives, who belonged to the Nitaluk tribe would come in the morning with as much meat as they could spare.

"Still storming. Eaten up all our meat for breakfast. About noon the natives came in, bringing about 400 pound of meat, which I purchased from them. It was nearly all seal meat. We found it rather high all by itself, but hunger is a great sauce.

In due course the party reached the vessel for which they were searching, and received a hearty Scottish welcome from his commander, Captain Murray, who fitted them out with stores for the return journey.

Here is the last item in Constable Seller's diary
"April 19th. Broke camp at sunrise (about 4 a. m.) and made the detachment about 2:30 p. m. Some few miles from barracks I noticed the flag at half-mast, which told me plainly that what I feared had come to pass. On arrival my thoughts were confirmed on hearing that Staff-Sergeant Hayne had passed away the night before. We were just in time to attend the funeral.

OPERATIONS AVOIDED

Two Grateful Letters from Women Who Avoided Serious Operations.—Many Women Suffering from Like Conditions Will Be Interested.

Margaret Morley Mrs. R. Glenn

When a physician tells a woman, suffering from female trouble, that an operation is necessary it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart. As one woman expressed it, when told by her physician that she must undergo an operation she felt that her death knell had sounded.

Our hospitals are full of women who are there for just such operations!

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but such cases are much rarer than is generally supposed, because a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after the doctors had said an operation must be performed. In fact, up to the point where the knife must be used to secure instant relief, this medicine is certain to help.

The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, have escaped serious operations.

Mrs. Robert Glenn of 434 Marie St., Ottawa, Ont., writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so well and widely known that it does not need my recommendation, but I am pleased to add it to the many which you have in its favor. I have suffered unduly for nearly three years, and the doctors told me that I must undergo an operation, but as I was unwilling to do this, I tried your Vegetable Compound, and I am only too pleased that I did so, for it restored me to perfect health, saving me the pain of an operation and the immense bills attending the same. I pray accept my hearty thanks and best wishes.

Mrs. Margaret Morley of 2534 Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Loss of strength, extreme nervousness, severe shooting pains through the pelvic region, cramps, bearing down pains, and an irritable disposition compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor, after making an examination, said that I had a serious female trouble and advised an operation as my only hope. To this I strongly objected—and I decided as a last resort to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

To my surprise the ulceration healed, all the bad symptoms disappeared, and I am once more strong, vigorous and well, and I cannot express my thanks for what it has done for me.

Some feminine troubles are steadily on the increase among women—and before submitting to an operation every woman should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been curing the worst forms of female complaints, all functional troubles, inflammation, ulceration, falling of the uterus, displacement, irregularities, indigestion and nervous prostration. Any woman who could read the many grateful letters on file in Mrs. Pinkham's office would be convinced of the efficiency of her advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

PHILADELPHIANS RISK LIVES IN MOOSE HUNT

Society Young Men Have Experience in New Brunswick.

Seasoned hunters that they are, and accustomed to roughing it in many rough places; James L. Pequignot and Philip A. Castner, two young men of the Philadelphia smart set, have just returned from "the" adventure of their lives—a moose and caribou hunting expedition into the wilds of New Brunswick.

Accompanied by one guide, they penetrated 100 miles into a trackless wilderness, where even the guide had never been before. They established headquarters near the source of the Miramichi River, where the country is dotted with small lakes, and where it is usually cold, even in the middle of summer.

"Moose" are the wariest game in the world, with the possible exception of the Rocky Mountain sheep, said Mr. Pequignot, "and we dared not light fires. As a consequence, sleeping on the ground, as we did, we suffered a good deal from cold. There were some terrific gales, which uprooted great trees, and several times we had hail and snow.

"We got many moose, and then started for the home of the caribou making for the headwaters of the North Pole River. Never having explored that region, the guide had to trust entirely to the compass and to his woodcraft. We crossed the moss-covered barrens described by hunters who had been there three years ago.

Although caribou were not plentiful, neither hunter came away empty handed, and a buck that

Mrs. A. "You appear pleased, my dear."

Mrs. Z. "Indeed I am. You know while I was in the country George went fishing and the neighbors said that he came home with a beautiful 'skate.'

Mrs. A. "And is that why you are so pleased?"

Mrs. Z. "Certainly, my dear. I looked in the encyclopedia and found out that a 'skate' is a large fish."
