It used to be said years ago when making tea that you should put in a teaspoonful for each member of the family and one for the teapot. That was in the old days of China teas, but in these days with MORSE'S, which has greater strength than the old China tea ever had, all you need to put in is one teaspoonful for each member of the family; in fact if you do not want very full strength, even less would do.

THE CHILDREN
One of the largest crowds of the season was present in the square last Thursday evening, when the Newcastle Concert Band, under the direction of Bandmaster H.B. Cassidy, delighted all with a delightful program of music. As on other nights when concerts were held, there were many children who were not present for the purpose of hearing the music, but to play and make a noise which was rather annoying to the older persons. Children will be children, but perhaps if they were only requested to keep order during the time the band is giving a selection the lovers of good music would find the square a more enjoyable resort on band nights.

KEPT UNDER COVER

Why Presumably Solid Citizen Didn't Make a Will.

Really Scemed That Lawyer Wanted to Know Too Much About Matters Entirely Personal.

"And now," said the lawyer, "we shall take up this matter of your will."
I had long thought of making a will. There was a kind of dignity about the whole affair that gave me a pleasant sense of importance. Besides, the thought that I was something to leave, or at least, was conveying such an impression, was quite soothing at the time.

But now that I was face to face with the thing, somehow it seemed quite different. I shuddered mildly. Thomas L. Mason wrote in the New York Sun.

"Perhaps we'd better wait until a little later," I observed. "The fact is, I'm not feeling very well just now and—"

"In that case," he said rather brusquely, I thought, "there is no time to lose. Let's get at this now. Have you made your rough draft?"

"Do people usually do that?" I asked lamely.

"Oh, yes; it's quite customary. Just jot down, rather fully, your ideas—that is, to whom the disposition of your property should go; it is just as well, also, to make a separate list of your securities, stocks and bonds and real estate of whatever nature."

I was beginning by this time to be thoroughly alarmed. The man might discover at any moment how much I was really worth. Of course, that was his real object. He wanted to probe my secrets—strange I had never thought of that.

"I suppose the proper thing to do is to divide it into equal parts," I said, "and then each—"

"Um. You have two children—a boy and a girl."

"Yes, sir. And one wife."

"Well, now, take your children. You might want to leave it to them in trust—say fifty thousand or so when they come of age, and—"

"In bonds?" I suggested feebly.

"In interest-bearing bonds, or possibly first mortgage. I presume, sir, he went on reflectively, "that the bulk of your fortune is already invested in first-class securities?"

"Well, rather!" I chortled joyfully. "And whom would you name as executor?"

"Must I have an executor?"

"Oh, certainly."

I rose to my full height. I crushed him with one eye.

"Then, sir," I replied with all the dignity I could summon, "my course is clear. Considering the present condition of the world, I am going to leave all my money to the government. I shall see the secretary of the treasury about it at once."

"Absolutely destitute. It's the only way. Would I ruin them with wealth? Never! America is the hope of the world. My little pile" (I gestured in the general direction of Wall street), "it is true, is small compared with Rockefeller's—still, just this little addition may save the world. Good morning, sir. I'm glad you brought this matter to my attention. Drop in any time. Good morning."

I bowed him out and then, getting out my trusty savings bank book, sat to figuring how I could, with fair management, pay the next installment on my income tax.

The Unusual.
Terrific mob on the street the other day. First a cop tried to hold 'em in. He rapped for help and the sergeant brought out a platoon.

Some mob! Two women fainted, boy broke leg, man lost his hat, clothes torn. No such excitement seen in 10 or 20 years. Terrific.

Finally the police got the cause of it separated from the tangle and took her to the station, where she was fined $10 and costs for disturbing the peace.

"And the next time you go on the street," said the judge, "see that your face is pointed, eyebrows penciled, skirts are short, hair false and everything, understand? It's all right for you to be old-fashioned, but the public safety demands that you look like the rest of 'em or stay home!"—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

On a Bird or Game Preserve.
In connection with the administration of bird and game preserves under the biological survey, the following acts on reservations have been forbidden by the secretary of agriculture, under date of May 4: Entering any game inclosure without permission; carrying firearms without permission; permitting dogs to run at large; setting fires, cutting, damaging or removing timber or trees; allowing domestic animals to enter without permission; and injuring or destroying signs, fences or other property of the United States.

Would Be Worth Importing.
All of our domestic animals are imports. Kansas farmers are just beginning to breed Karakul sheep. But the Old World still has live stock almost unknown here. Moreover, in the United States are large uncultivated areas where wild and semi-wild creatures of economic value from other continents, like the yak and the alpaca, might be introduced with every prospect of adaptation to physical conditions.

An extra edition of the Royal Gazette contains notice from the Workmen's Compensation Board of an addition in rate of assessment upon employers and industries of Class 2.
