Green Corn.

As Spring on summertime approaches, the day of roasting ears approaches; this subject now the poet broaches with wholesome glees; at other times the bard supposes it's up to him to sing of roses and so he hands out generous doses of ecstasy. At other times he sings of lilies and maidenhair and daffodils until his hearers have the willies and reach for bricks; but if you ask him now to chirrup on winged steel, with foot in stirrup, a song of flowers, he's sure to rear up, and answer "Nix!" For roasting ears are now pervading the haunts of men, and we are wading into the piles so quickly fading "neat" eager hands; oh, roasting ears, we give you greeting! You are the treat, when gods are treating! You fill (we feel, when we are eating) all sane demands. Let epicures express their wishes for shredded fowls and scrambled fishes, the pampered dears; we common folk, with common stomachs, won't emulate the pampered lunkums; we only ask for pies and hummocks of roasting ears. We take the ear and spread the butter, and chew it with the crowd before; when filled we leave the groaning table, and walk six times around the stable, and then come back, as fast as able, and eat some more.

CUB'S FOOD.

They Thrive on Grape-Nuts.

Healthy babies don't cry and the well-nourished baby that is fed on Grape-Nuts is never a crying baby. Many babies who cannot take any other food relish the perfect food, Grape-Nuts, and get well.

"My baby was given up by three doctors who said that the condensed milk on which I had fed her had ruined the child's stomach. One of the doctors told me that the only thing to do would be to try Grape-Nuts, so I got some and prepared it as follows: I soaked 1½ table-spoonfuls in one pint of cold water for half an hour, then I strained off the liquid and mixed 12 teaspoonfuls of this strained Grape-Nuts juice with six teaspoonfuls of rich milk, put in a pinch of salt and a little sugar, warmed it and gave it to baby every two hours.

"In this simple, easy way I saved baby's life and have built her up to a strong, healthy child, rosy and laughing. The food must certainly be perfect to have such a wonderful effect as this. I can truthfully say I think it is the best food in the world to raise delicate babies on and is also a delicious healthful food for grown-ups as we have discovered in our family."

Grape-Nuts is equally valuable to the strong, healthy man or woman. It stands for the "true" theory of health. "There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pink.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Inter-Brigade Sports Yesterday

Very interesting items were the tug of war contest between the C. C. C. and Highlanders and the one mile race in which E. Robertson came near defeating Marshall, who covered the course in 4 minutes and 56 seconds.

Considering the condition of the field, the time in the different running events was exceptionally good. The C. C. C. won all the cups competed for. The Coronation Cup won three years in succession by the C. C. C. is now their own. The presentation of the prizes won will take place in the C. L. B. Armoury during the autumn season.

The points secured were:—

C. C. C. . . . . 47

C. L. B. . . . . 5

Highlanders . . . . 5

To the officers of the different Brigades as well as Messrs Curran, Ellis, Henderson and Dowden, credit is due for bringing the sports to such a successful issue.

Just Go Out

And Murder.

"Eskimos never wash themselves," says a missionary stationed at a tiny settlement on Great Whale River in the far north. "I have often seen an Eskimo woman washing her young children like a cat does a kitten—by licking them all over. Their only means of livelihood lies in catching seals. They are always on the look-out for seal holes in the ice. They eat the blubber—that is, the fat of the seal—and clothe themselves or at any rate make their trousers out of sealskin. It is very cold—45 degrees below zero as a rule—and we Europeans have to keep roaring fires going in every room of our houses.

"The people don't live in villages, but separately in families, so as to have as wide a field for hunting as possible. They are a revengeful people. A short while ago an Eskimo was out hunting and saw a black dog in the distance on the ice. On approaching he was certain that it was a seal just protruding from a seal hole. He fired and hit it, but when he got up to it he found that he shot a man. He called on the widow, said how sorry he was, promised to help the woman and asked for her forgiveness. The son of the dead man entered, and when he heard rushed off and killed all the unfortunate hunter's family in revenge. In retaliation the hunter killed all the dead man's family, and so the feud began. When we were informed of this and came to investigate we found that there was only one man surviving out of two families and about 17 persons. We could do nothing but lecture the survivor.

"There are no native laws. They don't steal, but think nothing of murder. When they are 'put out,' as the saying goes, they must take a life. They don't mind whom they kill when they are angry, as long as they kill some one. There is no sort of punishment for the crime."

Nearly Drowned.

To-day a boy named O'Toole, of Brazil's Square, while swinging himself out of a boat moored at Mullaly's wharf, went in under the shores and dropped in the water. Men working with Shipwright Taylor tried to get him, and some of them leaping into a boat together almost turned it over. The boy was hard to get at, and Mr. Taylor himself was thinking of diving into the water and going to the rescue when a young man managed to reach the boy and rescued him in an exhausted condition.
