A Plea for The Widow.

BACKED UP BY "MARY."

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir, It was with the keenest interest and approval that I read the letter of Rev. Walter R. Smith in today's Daily News. Even before the increase in the pay of the civil servants to my mind the poor widows should have been attended to. But, Mr. Editor, before going farther, I must say that I am not a widow, as my Tom is still hale and hearty, and working away at the Shipbuilding Company, making good money, and we are living well, although everything is so high. You see in that way we are contributing to the general revenue out of which the salaries of the civil servants come.

When I say that the widows should have been attended to before the civil servants I have one or two reasons, and these are (1) that a civil servant-policeman, for instance, who considers his salary too small to give him the necessities, can supplement it by keeping boarders, as some of our police officers find themselves compelled to do. Now, a poor widow whose only income is five or six dollars for three months has not even got that advantage, so to my mind that is one reason why I claim that the case of the widow should have been attended to before those who could keep boarders, or whose wives or daughters could earn quite a large sum monthly by dressmaking or other needle work.

In the second place, let me take the case of a poor old widow who is getting the paltry dole of five or six dollars a quarter. I am thinking now of one who raised a large family of sons and daughters who, while her family were at home, used to go through a barrel of flour every three weeks, together with all the other food, clothes, boots, etc., necessary for such a large family. Of course she was thus adding in no small way to the revenue that helped to pay the civil servants. Is it fair or honest, I say, when such a one is reduced to the humiliating position of having to apply to the Poor Commissioner for help to be handed such a miserable allowance? It must be admitted that $5 a quarter is about the same as one dollar a quarter was before the outbreak of the war. This is another reason why the widows dole should have been increased before the rise in the pay of the Civil Servants.

Now, Mr. Editor, it must not be thought that I am against giving our over-worked (?) civil servants an increase. Far from it. But I am against allowing our half-starved and sorrowing widows to be left longer in that condition, while many with good salaries have their incomes increased. In closing I would tender my very best thanks to Rev. Walter R. Smith for his excellent letter in behalf of the poor widows, and to ask the Government to consider it carefully, and lose no time in giving the widows an increase in their allowance.

Thanking you for space in your valuable paper.

I am, yours sincerely,
MARY.

Destruction of Sheep.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—The people of Carbonear have asked the Government and those in authority for policemen that will carry out the law to its fullness, but nothing has been done to protect them. It is really a disgrace that the Government and all in authority treat this matter of carrying out the law relating to the keeping of dogs, in such a light manner.

There were about five hundred dollars worth of sheep and cattle killed in the month of June this year, and about two weeks ago the dogs destroyed several large sheep, and Friday night past another good sheep fed the hungry brutes.

In Carbonear we have four policemen, but these savage dogs are allowed to run at large, destroying cattle and sheep without a log or muzzle on. Only last week one man had to sell his flock of sheep to the butchers. He would not risk keeping them any longer, and others will have to do the same, or kill them to save their lives.

At Hr. Grace the people keep both dogs and sheep. I am told that one man in that town has a flock of one hundred and forty-eight sheep, and several other people have good flocks, yet not one sheep has been killed by the dogs in that town for a number of years.

A dog with a seven pound log on his neck cannot catch a sheep, so the people of Hr. Grace can keep sheep while they hold police protection.

If the Government or those in authority had the law enforced, when they were first notified, there would have been a number of sheep alive today that have been destroyed by dogs. But it is poor people's sheep that are being killed, and what does the Government care about poor people's interests?

It is the Government that makes the laws, and its duty to see they are carried out, so we sufferers intend taking action this fall, if they do not make a settlement for our losses.

Yours truly,
SUFFERER.

"OBSERVER" ON THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

Of course we kept our ears cocked while at St. John's, recently, to hear political news of any kind. The situation is this, men of all walks of life are heartily sick of the present aggregation. The "Government" apparently consists of Sir P. T. McGrath, and Hons. Cashin and Crosbie, the first named being the real head, with the last named holding a strong hand as well on the reins.

Nowhere did we hear an apology or word of praise for our "National" Government. Remember we went to look for it in no special party circles, but business men, clerks, cabmen and soldiers were all ready to denounce the existing party. It is quite apparent that a very strong feeling exists therefore against the ruling party, but—and here comes the difficulty—there seems no Moses to lead us out of Egypt. The only man whose name is mentioned is Sir Robert Bond. We are told that he is actually in negotiations with the present opposition, but as the price of his leadership he demands absolute control, and the choice of his own candidates. This is the point at which the negotiations are sticking, and there was to have been, we understand, a meeting last week to try and arrive at some conclusion.

However, the present party have voted themselves in till next May, and will probably continue to sit till the fall, so that no elections are at all likely until November, 1919. As for the bye-elections—and one of the worst features of the present misadministration is that one-third of the Dominion is unrepresented—it seems unlikely that either the Government will open the vacant districts or that the opposition has strength enough to force them.

The general feeling of the people of the city seems to be, therefore, that they are heartily sick of misgovernment and graft, but they are content to wait and would prefer to wait patiently for the formation of a strong opposition, rather than risk the chance of a dash from frying pan to fire.

Of course all sorts of rumours are current. One of these says that Baron Morris has written to some of his former supporters in the city in reference to his return to politics, suggesting a platform and offering as one of the planks a reformation of the present prohibition law, so that some of the thirstier souls might more easily procure drinks. This is, of course, only a rumour, but we were assured in all seriousness that it was even so.

As for friend Coaker, he seems hardly to figure. Could he have broken with the government at the time of his return from his trip north in July, he might have even then rallied to his support the waning enthusiasm of his former "stalwarts." But alas for William, the attack on the Executive in the Advocate over the Prospero and Reid freight rates was as quickly silenced as the telephone when one cuts the wires, and much as Mr. Coaker would perhaps have liked to have broken, he found himself too well hamstrung. Nothing sizes up his position any better than our article of two weeks ago—"They greased the floor"—and though it is rumored that Mr. Coaker has handed in his resignation, so far it has not been accepted.

A new element is likely to appear sooner or later. Many of our young men have been over in France, where they have spent their strength, and their blood, and suffered much in hardship and pain. They are intensely angry to come home and find politicians making money at the price of their sufferings. As yet their voice is barely heard, but there can be no doubt that they are a power to be later reckoned with, a power which will insist on purity in politics.—Twillingate Sun, Oct. 5.
