plained Monday morning that it is ow anticipated that before the end of this week arrangements will be made for a mass meeting in East London, at which different speakers will present the "annexed school problem" as they view it. It is not unlikely that similar meetings will be staged at other points throughout the city when this and other questaxpayers will be discussed.

Officials of the Labor party announced Monday that they have received communications from representative citizens requesting that steps be taken to inaugurate these gatherings, certain of the latter being in no way connected with the labor movement.

That Mayor Wilson's 10 per cent reduction is one of the desired subjects for discussion is evidenced by the fact that Sunday afternoon, members of the car workers' and other unions as well as a delegation of city employees gathered at the Labor Temple under the impression they explained, that a general oper meeting had been called to consider the impending reduction.
