Some of the day ever come when the ancient feather beds of our grand-mothers will be utterly vanished from our homes, when it will be counted no prize for the fittle grand-daughter to have handed down to her 'grand-mughter to have handed down to her 'grand-mughter to have handed down to her 'grand-mughter to have handed and all its belongings. I know a house that holds a baker's dozen of these valuable relice of the dark ages, and I am confident that some of these geese from whose breasts those feathers were plucked quascked at the close of the last century.
