

manner—It shall be the duty of Presbyteries to furnish to the Home Mission Committee, during the Session of Synod, a list of the Ministers without charge, Probationers, Catechists, or other Missionary Labourers, whom they can certify as available and efficient for the work; and also such a list of the sanctioned charges and preaching stations as may indicate their respective importance and claims upon supplies from the Home Mission, and guide the Synod's Home Mission Committee in the distribution of Missionary Labourers. Any addition made to the number of Missionary Labourers and vacant charges sanctioned by Presbyteries, to be intimated without delay to the Home Mission Committee.

IV. That Presbyteries be recommended to inquire without delay into the case of such Ministers as appear from the statistical returns before the Synod, to be inadequately supported by their congregations, with the view, if they see meet, to release such Ministers from their pastoral charges, and, if deemed suitable and efficient for the Home Mission Committee, that their names be added to the list of Missionaries.

V. That it be the duty of the Home Mission Committee to look out for additional suitable labourers for the Home Mission work in this land, and to correspond with other churches, representing the existing destitution of an able Gospel Ministry.

VI. That it be the duty of the Home Mission Committee, in concurrence with Presbyteries, to fix the salaries of Missionaries at present in the field, and that in the hope that the Synod's Home Mission Committee may be able to obtain, at least for a time, the services of Ministers of eminence and approved efficiency for this work, that they be vested with a discretionary power to make such provision for them as circumstances may require.

XI. That as soon as any Presbytery shall have taken the preliminary steps respecting any applicant for admission as a Minister or Probationer, into this Church, so as to be prepared to address the circular letters to the Presbyteries recommending the reception of such applicant, such Presbytery shall at the same time intimate their procedure in this respect to the Home Mission Committee, that the name of such applicant may be placed on the Roll of Missionaries at the disposal of the Home Mission Committee.
