At Osgoode Hall recently Mr. Justice Robertson gave judgment in the noted needle case of Woodfield v. Croft, tried some months ago, deciding in favor of the defendants, W. Croft & Son, the Colborne street merchants, and sons and grandsons of the famous needle manufacturer, John Croft, of Redditch, England.

The plaintiff, William Woodfield, also an English needle manufacturer, sought to prevent the defendants from using the name of "John Croft & Sons."

George B. Salmond and Isabella Stewart have been partners running a book-selling and stationery business at Brantford, Ont., under the firm name of J. B. Salmond. They have now dissolved, and the business will be continued by Geo. B. Salmond in his own name.

At the recent Liberal convention at Ottawa the bookmen of St. John, N.B., were well represented. J. McMan, T. H. Hall and S. Fidd were present. Somebody remarked that the book men in St. John were all Grits, but -

Judge Doyle, of Goderich, Ont., has decided that notes given by subscribers to the defunct Home Knowledge Association need not be paid, inasmuch as such co-operative institutions are not entitled by law to do a credit business. This decision should have some bearing on the Halifax cases.

Here is what Peter Cooper said of a newspaper: "In all the towns where a newspaper is published every man should advertise in it, if nothing more than his card stating his name and the business he is engaged in. It does not only pay the advertiser, but lets people at a distance know that the town in which you reside is a prosperous community of business men. As the seed is sown so
