B. OTHER MULTILATERAL FINANCING SOURCES

1. The United Nations Development Program

Overview

The United Nations Development Program (UNDP), a multilateral development institution affiliated with the United Nations, is the central planning and funding agency for technical assistance provided through the UN system. It is supported by some 130 different countries whose voluntary contributions are in addition to their regular UN contributions. Through a network of specialized international agencies and development banks, it offers technical assistance in almost every area of economic activity.

The UNDP disperses grants worth some $700 million per year to its less developed country members for the financing of technical expertise in the field, training fellowships, and the hiring of consulting firms on contract to its various affiliated agencies. Working closely with the appropriate government agencies of the recipient countries, the UNDP prepares five-year program reports for each country which establish sectors of concentration and the approximate funds available for the period. Individual projects are designed by the field offices of UNDP, in consultation with the local government, After UNDP approval, the projects are assigned to the appropriate agencies charged with their execution. The executing agency will then seek out individual experts, consulting firms and equipment suppliers as required for the project. Interested firms should maintain a close relationship with the particular agencies of interest to ensure that they are short-listed since work in this field has now become very competitive. For short term single consultancy contracts, however, contact should be made directly with UNDP in New York.

Business Opportunities

The most significant contract opportunities offered by the UNDP are those involving consultants, either on an individual basis (i.e., the hiring of an expert for short or long-term assignments in the field) or to the firm as a whole through sub-contracts. Equipment suppliers as well, however, should not ignore the UNDP. Since the program finances pre-feasibility and feasibility studies which eventually lead to projects with a significant capital goods content, the UNDP's activities can be of use in identifying future markets. Canadian equipment suppliers may also find it useful to associate themselves with consulting firms already doing business internationally, although most executing agencies procure needed equipment directly and not via consultants. Since pre-feasibility and feasibility studies are the first steps towards the realization of large projects, the UNDP should be valued both for immediate consulting contracts and for follow-on opportunities for downstream business (e.g. forestry studies leading to the design and engineering of complete pulp and paper mills).

How to use the UNDP

There are basically two sources of marketing information which interested consulting firms should use in pursuing UNDP subcontracts. These are personal contact with the appropriate affiliated agencies and with the UNDP office in New York; and the five-year country program reports.

Personal contact is highly valued because the international market for services is so competitive. A firm should
