COAL CULLER'S HOUSE DAMAGED BY DYNAMITE James Strange Had Been Threatened if He Stayed at Work in Mines.

GLACE BAY, N.S., July 28.—(Special.)—The P. W. A. report a total output of coal from the bank heads and mines of over 11,000 tons. This includes the tonnage lifted by the steam shovel both Tuesday night and to-day. The strike leaders refuse to accept these figures.

Some of the shingles were blown off and the boards loosened from the studding. In the vicinity your correspondent found a piece of broken pipe about fifteen inches long, with a piece of fuse about a foot long caught in the fracture on the pipe. On reconstructing the engine of war it seemed to be a piece, three inches long, with a hole three feet in length closed at one end by hammering and wren in use filled with black powder and set off with a long piece of fuse. The whole thing would not contain above two pounds of black powder.

Molested by Strikers. The people of the house had a story. They said that in the neighborhood there were four men, including Strange who were working for the company. Almost daily for some time past deputations had come asking these men to stay at home. They say that those men made threats and that the day before the explosion, thirteen men came early in the morning and stood near the house. Two came to the door and asked if Strange was going to work. He said he was and the spokesman of the party then said, that if he did it would not be good for him. Strange says he has been upon by a picket of men every morning and on one occasion was struck by a stone.

WHITNEY ASKED TO SAY WHY HE SHOULD STAND NOT LIKELY THAT FEDERAL AUTHORITIES WILL DISALLOW HYDRO-ELECTRIC LEGISLATION.

Sir James Whitney Reconsiders His Determination About Those Objectors to Power Act.

Premier Whitney has reconsidered his decision to publish the names of the militant members of the Toronto and Montreal stock exchanges, who have petitioned the Ottawa administration against the Ontario power bill.

Speaking to The World yesterday, he said: "In the meantime I shall not give out the names of the Toronto stock brokers who signed the application for disallowance. There are, I think, thirty-four of them. They are good citizens and reputable gentlemen, who would not knowingly put their names to any statement containing untruths. Besides, when all the individuals who are behind their application and urging it on, both here and in Montreal, have been carefully examined and their names put in the paper, I do not care to be the means of making the significance public."

"In the meantime the people of Ontario will not be misled by the very significant fact that outside of the local men, and those personally interested, the proposition to disallow our act, and thus, if possible, give a death wound to our power policy, is endorsed by the National Insurance Association, the Canada Permanent Loan & Mortgage Co., and thirty-four stock brokers in Toronto."

It is also significant that about forty stock brokers of Montreal—one of them, by the way, a member of the Quebec Legislature—have jumped into the arena to take part in the warfare against the desires and intentions of the people of Ontario. However, if one passes over this latter impertinence, one can regard the entire situation as "humane."

List of Brokers. The names of the Toronto brokers referred to by the premier are: C. W. Murray Alexander, Norman Macrae, Aemilius Jarvis & Co., Buchanan, Norman Seagram, S. T. Blackwood, J. TO WARM THINGS UP New Project to Lay on Caloric Like Water or Gas.

A company is being promoted to manufacture and distribute heat among the householders of Rosedale in the same manner that gas is distributed. E. Bradshaw, representing the Dominion District Steam Heating Company, is now canvassing Rosedale for possible customers, and if a sufficient number of householders can be induced to connect, application will be made to the city for a franchise.

The system is already working successfully in Chatham, Ont., and in dozens of United States cities. Two Toronto men, Edmund Burke and E. H. Keating, C.E., members of the Rosedale Association, recently visited Lockport, N.Y., where the system has been adopted, and brought back a report favorable to its adoption here.

From the generating plant the steam is distributed by means of pipes laid underground, and is measured by meter. The great advantage of the system is that it does away with the need of high and low chimneys, and the shovelling of coal, and ashes that go with them.

ONT. FARMS NEED LABOR

At present the Colonization Bureau at the Parliament Buildings has a large number of applications on file, but the average number of hands being sent out are not more than half a dozen a day.

When asked what remedy could be adopted to improve the condition of affairs, Mr. Sutherland thought that the remedy would gradually work out itself. The farmer's son as a rule has gone west to take up land, but many of them who have gone to the cities to improve their condition will gradually drift back to the farms.

No Reason to Desert Farm. "There is no reason," he said, "why the Ontario farms should be deserted. The land is fertile, transportation facilities are good and there is a good market for everything the farm produces. It is surprising how few of the descendants of the early settlers are to be found on the old homesteads."

Another surprise to Mr. Sutherland is the disappearance of the help that was sent a few years ago into the farms of Ontario. When the provincial government had an office in the United States, the province seemed to be flooded with immigrants, hundreds of whom were despatched to the country, and yet the demand for farm help is greater than ever.

The conditions imposed by the Dominion government that every immigrant should have a job when landing in Canada has had a rather bad effect, Mr. Sutherland thought. Two representative agents waited on him and declared that if the government would only pay at least half the passage, any number of farm hands from the old country would come to him and gladly work for the man who get here and have no means of raising it.

At the Labor Bureau. At the Salvation Army bureau, there are also many applications for help and to many replies have been sent stating inability to secure any hands. Those that are sent to their employer from the port of landing.

Other employment bureaus are doing their best towards helping the farmer, but are dealing with the idle men in the city in an effort to get them some kind of employment.

The laboring class are the hardest we have to deal with," said Mr. W. A. Howard of the Free Employment Bureau on Lombard-street, "and I think Canada should do well to go out on the farms."

RAISING PRICE OF A MEAL

Meeting of Restaurateurs Indicates No Widespread Desire. "Fizzle" is the only word that will describe the meeting of the restaurateurs in order to discuss the raising of the price of the 15 cents meal to 20 cents, held in Sanderson's Cafe, on East King-street, last night.

About forty met last Sunday night and talked it over, but they thought there were not enough present to make any decisive move, so they postponed it until last night.

There were 15 men (five of them Chinese) and three women present last night. The convolve was called for 8.30 sharp. They waited till about ten minutes after nine, hoping in vain for enough to make a quorum.

When the meeting was called to order a new chairman was chosen, as F. J. Denny, who was elected Sunday, did not put in an appearance.

"Seeing that every foolish remark we make is published, I think we ought to exclude the press," said the chairman in his maiden speech. "Those who agree, please put up their hands." No move was made for several seconds. Then Mr. Sanderson plucked up courage and hoisted his fist. The chairman's example, The Chinamen were last.

The turnout at last night's session indicates that the raise, if there is one, will not be general.
