CANADIAN JOURNALISM.

In his lecture on "Canadian Journalism," delivered on Saturday at Victoria College, Mr. J. S. Willison places journalism on a high plane. He believes with him that the press can do more than the politicians and even the pulpit to mould public opinion and to keep the body politic sound and healthy. Above all we agree with Mr. Willison that there never was a time in the world's history when the press was greater need for a courageous and independent press. "There are ominous signs," says Mr. Willison, "that our civilization is breaking down at many points. Old things are passing away, and it depends very much upon the courage and candor and honesty of the press whether we shall rise to new conditions through confusion and anarchy, or through peaceful and well-ordered constitutional development."

We heartily agree with Mr. Willison in his advocacy of a courageous, candid and honest journalism. The anxiety that Mr. Willison anticipates is more likely to eventuate from the oppression of the people by capitalists, plutocrats and corrupt politicians than from any other cause. The unequal division of wealth is the underlying cause of a great deal of the discontent that characterizes modern civilization. When the fortunes of America's great millionaires are analyzed it is generally found that they have been acquired by despoiling the people of something that belongs to the people. Lately there has been a decided tendency towards organization on the part of the people, and the attacks made upon their property and their privileges by the great social parasites of the day, otherwise known as millionaires. If we watch contemporaneous history, as it is being made from day to day, whether in this city and country or in any other country, we will see that the biggest part of it is concerned in a struggle between the people on the one hand and corporations and individuals, who seek to exact toll from the people, on the other. The people are engaged. They are highly organized, they impress into their service the brainiest and frequently the most scrupulous men that can be found. Hitherto the contest between the people and the big corporations has been a decidedly unequal one. We have only to review what occurred in our own city last week to see how helpless the people really are. The people of Toronto are not anxious to pay 10 cents for a ride on the street cars, and the Railway Company is willing to convey them there for nothing at all. As a matter of fact the people are anxious to get rid of this ferry tax. But the people cannot have their own way in this matter. They are a corporation that collects toll from everyone who goes to the Island. This corporation put up a fight, as all corporations do, to prevent the public from freeing themselves from this toll. The corporation came to the City Council, and succeeded in getting the Private Bill Committee to endorse an unsound and dishonest economic principle. According to this principle the people who supply the funds that make up the Toronto Railway Company's income have no right to say how the percentage that comes to the city shall be spent. This privilege, it has been decided, belongs to the property owners. Now we hold that this is an undemocratic and vicious principle. It is manifest injustice of this kind that will lead to the confusion and anarchy that the editor of The Globe anticipates for the future. We have mentioned this particular case to show how helpless the people really are when organized capital puts up a fight to defeat them. Scores of other local instances might be given, but the citation of one is sufficient to establish the fact that we wish to impress on the public mind which is this that one of the most serious and threatening signs of the times is this ceaseless attack by wealthy and powerful corporations on the rights of the people.

Who is to champion the cause of the people? Who is to organize the people and lead them on to victory? This, we take it, is the principal mission of the press at the present juncture. But to accomplish this most desirable end the press must be candid and honest. The press must have courage. The people have not the ability of a bench of judges when deciding on the merits of a public question. The people have not the time to master the details of every question that comes up. They must rely to a large extent on the candor and honesty of the press in the formation of their opinions. The press has it in its power to lead and to follow. It is up to the press to lead the people to victory or to hoodwink and deceive them.

The people, the stability of the social structure, rests with the press more than with any other institution. But, as Mr. Willison says, the press must be candid and honest. There must be no duplicity; no prostitution of the columns to capitalists, land grabbers and charter mongers; no surrender to electric light and gas monopolies. The press must be candid and honest. We thoroughly agree with Mr. Willison. We will go further. A theory that Mr. Willison supports is a merely academic way in a practical fashion. We are ready to expose and have exposed those who are bringing the good name of Canadian journalism into disrepute. The World does not place much faith in the enunciation of abstract principles. We believe in the practical application of those principles to the everyday affairs of life. We not only believe that the press should be candid and honest, but we propose to take a hand in making it candid and honest, even though it may be necessary to occasionally expose an editor who has gone wrong or a newspaper president who is manufacturing public opinion at the bidding of monopolists and land grabbers.

AN ELECTRIC FREIGHT SERVICE.

The present is an opportune time for discussing the problem of utilizing the city and suburban trolley cars for the distribution of freight. The suburban lines will be extended in nearly all directions this summer and the question of handling garden, dairy and other farm produce will be forced upon them. The Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific have just discontinued the issue of half-rate tickets to the market towns on certain days of the week. These half-rate tickets were greatly appreciated by the country people, especially by farmers' wives and daughters, who were in the habit of coming into the cities once or twice a week with butter and eggs. The railways have decided to cater no longer to this class of business. What they have rejected the trolley lines will gladly welcome. It is just this kind of thing that there is the milk trade, which is the legitimate business of the electric cars. In addition to this there is market garden stuff. In the aggregate there is an enormous amount of business that may be profitably handled by the electric cars than by horses and wagons. It is as much in the interest of the people of Toronto as it is of the farmers that all this freight should come into the city by electric cars. It is a matter of common sense that the people of Toronto should be able to get their goods more cheaply transported than by rail. The city government should be divided between the inhabitants of the city and the country. In addition, the city will be benefited by getting rid of the large number of wagons that make the city streets so expensive to operate. It is to be hoped that the Toronto Railway Company will be able to make a satisfactory arrangement with the Metropolitan and the other suburban lines, whereby an electric freight service will be inaugurated. The city of Toronto, of course, have to be a party to any deal of this kind. The city will be entitled to a certain percentage on the freight just as it is entitled to a percentage on the passenger traffic. It is an opportune time to consider whether it would not be good policy on our part to organize the Lawrence Market by adding to it the ground on which the City Hall now stands, as that building will be vacated during the present year. We know of no other purpose to which this site could be put.
