HOW THE TORIES PUT LOUISBURG MAN OUT OF SUB-COLLECTORSHIP

Summoned To Trial on Two Hours Notice for "Political Partisanship" and Ousted for No Apparent Good Cause

(Sydney Record.) Captain Porter J. Wilcox, sub-collector of customs at the port of Louisburg, N. S., was dismissed for political partisanship, and James McPhee, merchant, of Louisburg, took over the position on October 23. And thereby hangs a tale.

Captain Wilcox was one of the best and most successful ship masters sailing from Cape Breton ports. About twelve years ago he was forced to leave the sea on account of the serious and continued illness of his wife.

The government appointed him preventive officer at Louisburg with nominal salary. His wife died, leaving him two children of tender age to look after. He also had to take care of his father, an old man, now more than ninety years of age.

Captain Wilcox received the appointment of sub-collector on the death of E. S. McCallpine. He holds a commission under the great seal of Canada, signed by Earl Grey, confirming him in the office of sub-collector in His Majesty's customs, dated May 22, 1907, recorded May 8, 1907; Lib. 12, Vol. 272.

Captain Wilcox was never an offensive partisan. He seldom voted before he left the sea, as he was usually away from home election days, and has been particularly careful since receiving his first appointment in the customs service.

To his surprise and the surprise of nearly every person in Louisburg, Grey and Tory, the official headman of the present government arrived at Louisburg one day last February, and gave him two hours' notice to appear for trial.

Two men besides the parties looking for customs positions were subpoenaed. One swore he never heard Captain Wilcox talk or interfere in politics at any time. The other said he was working for him shortly before the local election, and had asked Captain Wilcox what he thought about the election. They had a few words on politics, but it was so unimportant he could not remember what was said.

The man who has taken Captain Wilcox's position was then called, and swore he saw Captain Wilcox handling lines and hoisting flags on the customs building the day after the dominion election of 1908. This statement was not true. A photograph taken that day shows the building and no flag on the customs part of it; and it can be easily proven that Captain Wilcox did not look or assist to hoist any flag on the building on the day mentioned.

Joseph O'Toole, the present preventive officer, who took the place of A. L. Bates in June last, swore Captain Wilcox offered to let him money on the last election, and a good deal in each other's company for years past, and often foolish and nonsensical talk, in a joking way, and that he was around when they were in company. This day Mr. O'Toole asked him if he wanted to bet on the election. He replied, "No, I don't want your money."

Mr. O'Toole also swore he saw or heard Captain Wilcox read evening news in the Sydney Record last September about Sir John's meeting in Sydney, and on evidence such as this Captain Wilcox was dismissed from his position.

He was a good and efficient officer, a man who held his tongue and attended to his own business.

This sale of reserved seats will continue every day this week and during the week of performances. Tickets are on sale in different parts of the city, and from the children who are participating. The response to this most enjoyable form of contributing to the public playground movement is general and generous, indicating a broad spirit of progressiveness on the part of the people of St. John. Intricate dances, ensembles, marches and singing the latest airs, whilst the story of Alice's wonderful journey runs through the piece, the whole effect is sure to be most charming.

THE COMMON COUNCIL

New Rates for Coachmen Ready Next Week—New Fancy Light Pole For Prince William Street

The city commissioners held the weekly council meeting yesterday afternoon in the committee room at City Hall. Mayor Frank and Commissioner Wigmore were absent, and Commissioner Schofield presided. Additional supplies for the fire department were ordered to be purchased by the commissioner of public works. It was decided that the floor space in the exhibition buildings should be leased for storage purposes. A catch basin is to be placed in Hammond street, and another in the old Dorchester street extension.

Those present at the meeting were Commissioners Agar, Schofield and McLellan, with the common clerk.

On the recorder's authority that there was no legal objection the council adopted a resolution changing the name of the Marsh road to Rothery avenue. The reports as published yesterday were adopted.

Joseph Weisel, of Union street, asked permission to erect an electric sign on the front of his building in Union street. Permission will be granted on the usual terms.

Commissioner Agar said that he believed that the commissioners should be consulted by the engineer and that the design of the sign should have their approval before it was erected.

Allison & Thomas applied for permission to erect an electric light pole similar to that in front of the store of T. McAvity & Sons, Ltd., in King street, near the curb in front of their office in Prince William street. This matter will be discussed in committee, and it is believed that the request will be granted, as these poles are very attractive and much in use in the larger and up-to-date cities.

Commissioner Schofield reported that no tenders were received for the shingling of the piling at the ferry floats, and it was decided to do the work with city workmen, but he found it impossible to secure the oak sheathing and the work will have to be undertaken at some future time.

Commissioner McLellan said that he was unable to have the new rates for the hackmen ready to submit to the meeting, but he expected to have them completed for the next week. He was sure that all the hackmen were willing to submit to the regulations in regard to lights, and he thought that all the carriages would be equipped on November 1. The changes in the by-law would be submitted to the hackmen for approval before they would be brought before the commissioners.
