POPE PIUS X.

BANS MODERNISM

Tells Bishops to Tear Bad Books from the Faithful.

"Synthesis of all Heresies" in Movement
He Condemns—Rigid Censorship
His Remedy.

ROME, Sept. 18.—A special, enlarged edition of the Observator Romano, published tonight, gives the Latin text of the Papal encyclical, it occupies more than seventeen columns. No Papal utterance of Leo XIII. carried with it greater discouragement of advanced thought, Pius X. indeed contends that he is but following in the footsteps of Leo, whose public acts are liberally quoted in the encyclical. The clause enjoining the establishment of college censors in each diocese for the revision of the Catholic literature or output is especially drastic. The words of the Pope in connection with this subject are very impressive. "The books or newspapers of modernist tendency may be left in the hands of any pupil in the universities or seminaries. He adds: "Everything must be done to banish from your diocese every pernicious book. The Bishops are to be above all human fear, to trample all feebly ingratitude under foot, and heedless of the outcry of the wicked, are to renege their proscription and to give the faithful all bad books and all bad writings. This is not only a right conferred on them but a duty we impose on them."

At the end of the encyclical the Pope says he foresees that the enemies of the church will represent it as the enemy of science and progress. "To this accusation," says the Pope, "we will reply by our actions." "We have decided to act with all our power toward the foundation of a private institution which shall group together the most illustrious representatives of Catholic science. It will be its object to favor and help, with the progress of everything that can be called true science or erudition."

There is much speculation as to whether the encyclical is aimed at the country more than another. Some regard it as specially directed against France, while others hold that it may be doubted whether the Pope was influenced by any national considerations.

Modernism has great vitality in Italy itself, where many learned priests have been removed from favoring it, chairs in recent years for favoring it, although without any apparent effect in suppressing it. It is gravely questioned by sincere Catholics whether the present document has reached its mark. There are many who hold that if the encyclical is rigidly enforced it will lead to schism.

A summary giving the principal features of the document was issued earlier in the day. According to its terms, after saying that modernism is a most serious danger to the church and that the Pope must provide against it, the encyclical examines the different aspects of modernism in philosophy, faith, theology, history, criticism and reforms, especially radicalism, as tending to destroy dogmas, the hierarchy and doctrine. Hence modernism is a combination and synthesis of all heresies and must lead to heresy. It is unlimited curiosity, presumption, individualism, ignorance and disrespect of real Catholic science and discipline that have introduced modernism among the clergy and others.

The Pope recalls the work of his predecessor in stamping out these errors and finally orders that scholastic philosophy and theology be taught in all seminaries and universities in an eminently Catholic spirit. Bishops, the Pope says, as delegates of the Holy See, must also direct the clergy and believers from the modernist press and effect the establishment of a college of censors in every diocese to revise Catholic publications. Pope Leo XIII's prohibition of ecclesiastical directing publications without a permit from their Bishop is confined and all collaborators are to be subject to censorship.

Seriousness of censures are prohibited, with rare exceptions, and when modernism, presbyterianism and hissem are excluded a council of vigilance is to be established in every diocese against the diffusion of the errors in vogue and Bishops are to send reports to the Holy See. The encyclical condemns modernist aberration, not modern studies that are not in opposition to the church.

Pope Pius X. in this encyclical completes and puts into execution the work of defense and restoration his predecessor began. The encyclical also orders the dismissal from seminaries any output is especially drastic. The words of the Pope in connection with this subject are very impressive.

BAD SMASHUP LAST NIGHT NEAR MONTREAL

Brakeman Killed, Fireman Hurt, and Three Trains Mired up.

MONTREAL, Sept. 18.—One brakeman was killed and a fireman badly injured at a rear-on collision near Vaudeville station at 2.30 o'clock tonight. The collision was caused by three freight trains, one of which was mired up, six or seven cars damaged and one knocked into the river off the Vaudeville bridge. That the collision was not greater is due to the fact that the train which caused the rear-on collision was not going quickly and her engine did not leave the track. The dead man is Brakeman Robertson of freight train No. 883, which was moving east up to Vaudeville station, which dashed into the rear of the 1243 which had stopped on the Vaudeville bridge and was just starting up again. At the same time No. 86, the fast Toronto freight, was stationed on the adjoining track, having stopped for a hot box. None of the cars attached to engine 883 left the track after collision, but the freight train ahead, but four or five cars of the later train were derailed and knocked against No. 86 on the adjoining track causing one car attached to the later train to be knocked into the river.

Robertson, the brakeman who succumbed to his injuries, had both legs severed and died before he could be brought to Montreal on a C. P. R. train.

Fireman William Meier, of Montreal was caught between two cars, but is not thought to be fatally injured.

WELLMAN EXPLAINS.

Unusually Bad Weather Saved the Pole From Discovery by Balloon.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—A despatch to the Daily Mail from Tromsø says that Walter Wellman who has arrived there, says that when the North polar expedition of which he was the leader, was organized, he announced that it might continue for three years. He did not expect to achieve anything the first year beyond establishing a plant. He did hope to reach the pole the second year. He would have been able to do so except for the phenomenonally bad weather.

It remains to be seen whether the third trial will be favored by normal conditions.

LONDON TIMES MAN HAS

GOOD WORDS FOR CANADA

MONTREAL, Sept. 18.—A Canadian A. P. cable from London says: "The Times publishes the first article of its representative who has returned to England after a tour through the Dominion of Canada with the journalists' party who traveled under the auspices of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The article deals with immigration.

Commenting editorially, the Times refers to the ignorance of Canada still prevalent here, and adds that there is probably no country in the world wherein conditions of life are so completely within the reach of any man or woman who will grasp them.

The Times also refers to the labor question, and says in as well as old countries, men who work with their hands seem sometimes in need of being reminded of the fact that they are not slaves, and who also work with their brains. After dwelling on this point, the paper concludes: "If the Canadian ship of state is to make a prosperous voyage officers are fully as essential as the crew. If they were not forthcoming the vessel would be a constitutional crisis, and it is probable that the regained votes of the rebels disfranchised after the war, will be sufficient to defeat Dr. James Coates' party, and South Africa will be politically Dutch from Rhodesia to Table Bay. The election to the legislative council occurs in November, and to the house of assembly in February.

The Cape Colony parliament will be dissolved tomorrow. The continuance of the council's blocking
