John Chariton said providence deserved some credit for the prosperity of the country, but the government would deny that. If preferential trade was all that they said it was, he asked Mr. Blair why, under its influence, trade with Great Britain had only increased 121-2 per cent., while with the United States it had increased 59 per cent. (Cheers). According to Blair all the great men of Canada were in the liberal cabinet. The speaker assured the prosper it was necessary to be on good terms with the C. P. R., whose terminal facilities we had assisted to build in order to compete with Portland. What had we to do with the Grand Trunk, all the export freight of which went to Portland to benefit the workingmen there at the expense of ours. He wished Blair to state why he had made himself an active ally of the Grand Trunk to cripple the C. P. R. His agreement with the Grand Trunk allows that railway to haul freight to Montreal from a distance of say, 740 miles west, from which they get full pay, while the I. C. R., for hauling it from Montreal to St. John, another distance of 740 miles, got paid for a haulage of only 375 miles. The C. P.
