CANADA WILL GLADLY TAKE BRITISH MEN

Depyright, 1920, by Gross-Atlantic.)

London, Oct. 1a.—Hon. J. A. Calder, Minister of Immigration and Colonization in the Canadian Govarament, wan has apent some weeks in making a survey of conditions in Great Britain as they relate to emigration, wishes to etaphasize the desire of Canada to receive British emigrants in as large a number as they can be assimilated.
Speaking to a Cross-A'-anti represociative he said:

"I same from Canada to make a personal investigation of cadditions in Great Britain from the emigration standpoint. These conditions, during a period of reconstruction, must be somewhat abnormal. I have sought to appraise them at first hand by visiting all the agencies of the Canadian Goverroment Department or lumigration and Colonization here, by meeting representatives of those Departments of the British Government interested in emigration and employment, representalives of the shipping companies, and others, A conference has been held at whigh all the chief officers of my depersonent in the United Kingdom for the first year after the war was greater than from all other countries combined. This combined, must be regarded as high is satisfactory, and is an evidence of the British immigration to Canada area dan foresight which is being applied by the Canadian Department of Immigration and Colonization.

Have Only Welcome.

"Let me make it abundantly clear that Canada welcomes British emigrants, and that any restrictions which appear to be placed in their way are designed for their protection. It would be manifestly unfair to the settler himself to encourage him to go to Canada unless he is assured of employment there at good wages. Such employment there are good wages. Such employment is assured to farm laborery. All others are encouraged by the Department to migrate only when there is assured employment in sight. Farm ers with capital sufficient to enable them to start farming in Canada on their own account, of course, are always welcome. There is practically no limit to the extent to which we can absorb such settlers, and I may remark that the prospects of the farmer who smigrates to Canada were never or the property of the prospects of the farmer who smigrates to Canada were never the for the present on the farmer ways to the prospects of the farmer who smigrates to Canada were never the farmer who the prospects of the farmer who smigrates to Canada were never the prospects of the farmer who smigrates to Canada were never the farmer who smigrates to Canada were never the control of the present on the farmer who smigrates to Canada were never the control of the present of the present of the present of the farmer who smigrates to Canada were never the control of the present of the brighter than they are today.

"Up to the present our efforts have been directed largely to re-establish."
