THREE TRIPS A WEEK!

ST. JOHN TO HALIFAX.

Steamer "SCUD,"

FOR DIGBY AND ANNAPOLIS!

From Yesterday's Second Edition.

Nomination and Election by Acclamation of Isaac Burpee and J. S. Boies DeVeber - The Speeches.

THE NOMINATIONS.

A small company of the free and independent electors yesterday wended their way to the Court House for the election of a member for the City and County, and one for the City of St. John. The nominations were made in the Supreme Court Room, The High Sheriff, at 11 o'clock, announced his Court opened to receive nominations. After the usual calls had been administered by Justice Charles Clarke, the Commissions were read by the Sheriff, and the writs under which the elections were held.

The Sheriff then called for nominations, and H. C. Macdonald, Esq., who had been nervously twisting a folded paper, handed it up to him. It nominated the Hon. Isaac Burpee for the City and County of St. John, and was signed by a large number of influential gentlemen of the City and County. The nomination of J. S. Boies DeVeber was then read, also largely signed by citizens.

MR. BURPEE'S SPEECH.

The Sheriff asked for other nominations but none others were handed in, and the Hon. Isaac Burpee, being called upon, came forward. He said the occasion reminded him of the first time he appeared before them eighteen months ago, and asked for support, which, without distinction of party, political creed or religion, had been given him. He little thought that, in so short a time, he would be called upon to pass through such a political warfare, and he considered that allowing him to be a voice from the City and County of St. John approving of his course. The office of Minister of Customs was not of his seeking, nor given for his ability, nor because he was entitled to it. There were many prominent men who fought the battles of the party for years, who had more knowledge, more experience than he had. He mentioned the name of T. W. Anglin, who had faithfully fought for the party, but did not feel the reason why he did not get a portfolio. The compliment in giving him the office was not to himself, but to the electors only. It was given because of their importance, and because it has been held by the representative of the county before. The charges made against him by the press, and by private individuals, were not worth noticing, and in many instances were false and untrue. He had not used any influence of the office he held to aid in bringing out a candidate for the city, nor did he telegraph anything to Ottawa. This has been stated and fully commented on, but it was not his fault. At first he did not support Mr. DeVeber, but not until he found that "men were taking a stand against us and our Government." Then he had supported Mr. DeVeber, not as opposed to Mr. Skinner, because he had not the right to do so, but because his opinions were stronger than his own on the questions of the day, but because he was against the party. Mr. Skinner came out very feebly as a public man, while Mr. DeVeber came out manfully and prominently in support of the Government's fair support. That is all the Government want. They did not agree with the leader of the late Government when he said "he didn't care a damn for any man who supported the late Government." (Laughter.) All they asked was a fair support. The Opposition had spoken of Mr. DeVeber as a Tory and an Autocrat. Confound it. Why the leader of the late Government was not an Autocrat, and the strongest opponent of Confederation, was a man who was more of a Radical than a Liberal, charged with being an obstructionist, and who was a Liberal in politics, and progressive in all things for the benefit of the country. The principal charge against him (Burpee) was that he pledged himself to support the late Government, and the late Minister of Finance, and that he did not do so. He had first voted against the Government on the question of a contract on the Intercolonial, by which one of their friends received some $55,000 of public money. As to the August to receive the report of the Pacific Scandal Committee he considered it was his own and every member's duty to be present. He himself never understood the Premier to say the House would be progressed, and it was not understood in the House. The action of the Government, after that, still further convinced him that he could not any longer support them. Gradually he was forced to come out in opposition to the disallowance of the oats bill and the Government desired to go out as much as possible the investigation. Though the press had ridiculed his speaking on the constitutional question of the question he still considered the proposition one of the greatest blows against responsible Government ever given in the country. The hon. gentleman concluded by promising to support and introduce Liberal measures. He was a Liberal in every sense of the word, as his whole family have been. If a majority at any time gave him to understand that he was not properly representing his constituents, he would resign his seat.

MR. DEVEBER'S SPEECH.

Mr. DeVeber then advanced and made a short speech. He referred to the fact that last election he opposed Mr. Burpee, but now was running with him. He had said when defeated that if again required he would be at the service of his constituents, and he was there to reduce his promise. He would make no pledges, but allow his private life to be a guarantee for his future actions. There was no reason why a man could not carry the honesty of his private life through politics. He referred to the position which Mr. Tilley now occupied, and said he deserved it, having worked honestly to get it. It was a matter for young men to remember that in this country the highest position was open to all. He had not been brought out by the Government as their candidate, and would only support them if they carried on the affairs of the country with economy, progress and honesty. He would demand a full and thorough examination into the Pacific Scandal, so that the guilty should be known and innocent be a sufferer with them. He thanked his friends for their assistance at his two elections, and considered that the press had dealt generously with him. It had been said he was a poor speaker, but he thought he would improve, as Mr. Burpee's able speech of to-day was so much superior to his efforts of eighteen months ago.

MR. PALMER'S SPEECH.

A. L. Palmer, M.P., being loudly called for, came out and spoke for some time, giving his reasons for supporting the late Government. He criticized the action of the members who had voted against the Government, and referred to Mr. Anglin and Mr. Burpee. The former had, from the beginning, been opposed to the Government; while the latter had always voted until the last session with them. (He Palmer) was prepared to support every good measure of the present Government, and would give no factious opposition; but what the measures of the curious conglomeration now in power would be he was at loss to tell. Their different ideas and actions would be peculiar, as there was no common ground amongst them. How Mr. Burpee, working one way, Mr. DeVeber another, and Mr. Anglin another, were to unite on a policy, he could not understand. They were like milk and cabbage, they would not mix. He was glad that there was no contest, but when he again came before the electors, he was prepared to defend every vote of his. The Pacific Scandal was reviewed, and the different points raised by the examination discussed. He was glad that Mr. DeVeber had not attempted to demand a thorough investigation into the Pacific Scandal. Mr. Anglin thinks the Government were guilty of the Huntington charges, but he did not, in his opinion. The main question is, what money did they spend? No one has ventured to assert that any of those charged spent any money belonging to the country, but only their own. He thought the searching inquiry will go further and find out all those who spent money, and when they exposed, he would be better pleased. If thirteen could be found who had been formed into a Government. He anxiously described some of the members Mr. DeVeber would vote with when he got to Ottawa - Huntington, an annexationist, Young, an advocate of independence, and Thompson, who only had one hobby - a redeemable currency. If Mr. DeVeber was liberal in banking, he knew he was conservative in politics. He was pleased to see that all were Liberals and Conservatives, but he did not, and he did not help deceiving that man, however, who followed the bounds only to be in at the death, who took no position, at all, as "Whitely King shall reign till the year of the Vicar of Bray," and wanted to be the upmost man after every fray. He thanked the gentlemen for their attention, and offered, as the other speakers had done, to resign his seat, whenever a majority should satisfy him that he was not properly represented there.

MR. ANGLIN'S SPEECH.

T. W. Anglin, M.P., was then called, but only rose to say that his friend Mr. Huntington was not an annexationist, and that, since the constituency of St. John had rejected him, he had determined to take no part in the politics except as an elector. In another and more appropriate place he would give an account of his stewardship.

DECLARED ELECTED.

At 2 o'clock the Sheriff formally declared the Hon. Isaac Burpee and J. S. Boies DeVeber elected.

Hon. Mr. Burpee has developed into an orator. His speech yesterday, and that lengthily yesterday. He repeated it, will be seen, those exploded constitutional law points that have been laughed over so much. The joke, he evidently thinks, is too good to let die. Mr. DeVeber made a good speech also, a great improvement on his first effort.

Our Ottawa correspondent telegraphs that the Roman Pontiff, according to a correspondence between His Holiness and the Bishop of Three Rivers that is published in the Le Nouvelliste, has ordered his faithful followers in Canada to demand of the Dominion Government the disallowance of the New Brunswick School Act, and forbidden them to vote for any Government refusing compliance with the demand. We suppose the correspondence took place some time ago, as His Holiness must know that the Act cannot be disallowed now. If this supposition is true it accounts for the apparently inexplicable Catholic desertion of Sir John Macdonald and Sir George E. Cartier during the last general election. Sir John refused, as a matter of course, to disallow the Act, and the Ultramontane (that is, all faithful and obedient Catholics - those who allow the Pope to dictate their politics) united to overthrow him. This fully explains, Sir George Cartier in Montreal. The publication of the correspondence will retard the granting of the concessions asked for by the Catholics of New Brunswick.
