Strangled with Asthma is the only expression that seems to convey what is endured from an attack of this trouble. The relief from Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is beyond measure. Where all was suffering there comes comfort and rest. Breathing becomes normal and the bronchial tubes completely cleared. This unequalled remedy is worth many times its price to all who use it.

They tell of a strange case in a small Missouri town. A man complained of pains in his heel. His physicians removed his teeth, but the pains continued. They removed his tonsils, and still the pains remained. As a final resort they removed his shoe and the X-ray revealed a long-embedded needle in his heel.

ON FEEDING CHICKENS

Helpful Counsel From a Wise
Known Poultry Expert.

Don't Overfeed at the Start—Feed Sprouted and Cracked Grains—Give Them Plenty of Grit—Feed Less Frequently Later—Millets Sown at Different Dates.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

No feed is given until the chicks are nearly three days old. Water may be given to drink if the chick is taken off. The chicks are given the feed upon clean boards about eight inches wide. There must be plenty of boards so that there is room on the board for every chick. A board three feet long and eight inches wide will give room enough for five chicks on the start. So says Prof. W. L. Graham. The chicks for the first few weeks should be fed about six times daily at regular intervals. Give the first feed in the morning as early as the chicks can see to eat and the last at night as late as possible. If growing chicks in February one feed may be given at night using artificial light. Don't Overfeed at the Start.

Many chicks are overfed on the start. We have adopted the plan for the first five or six days in the brooder of weighing the feed. An experienced feeder may not need to weigh the feed, but the beginner generally does better by weighing it. We allow one ounce of the dry mixture for every five chicks at each feed; that is, no chicks for their first five days in the brooder, get more than six ounces of dry feed to fifty chicks in one day. The plan followed is to moisten the first feed with canned tomatoes, the second with eggs, and the third with mixed liver, and then begin the series over again. The above amount will not satisfy the chicks' appetite. They will create a great noise at every feeding time, but it gives a chance for the chick to absorb completely the yolk in the body. After the first period one should feed two or three times each day all that the chicks will eat.

We begin giving a drinking vessel each of water and sour milk, when the chicks are about a week old. Many give sour milk to drink at the start, but we have obtained slightly better results by not giving the milk for the first three or four days.

Feed Sprouted and Cracked Grain.

When the chicks pass the second week, sprouted grains may be fed, also a little cracked grains. The change should be made gradually from tomatoes, eggs and liver over to sprouted grains, tender green grass, a little grain, a little water. If in weakness ½ noted, the tomatoes and sprouted grains should be increased or the chicks put out of doors on clean tender grass.

It is best to keep the chicks on new ground each year, and never to brood two lots of chicks on the same ground in any one year. Many chicks are sent for examination each year that have troubles due to land infection.

It also will be found advantageous if feeding chicks from trough or brooder out of doors to move the boards or troughs a little every feed. Likewise it must be remembered, when the chicks are fed indoors, to keep the feed boards clean.

Give Them Plenty of Grit.

Grit is always in easy access of the chicks. It is advisable and necessary to add a little oyster shell dust or fine particles to the ration daily. A certain amount of lime is necessary. Mouldy feeds, dirty feed boards, and musty litter are to be avoided. Moulds kill large numbers of chicks. Be sure your house is clean and the dirt not under the feet. Do not use cut barley or rye straw as litter for baby chicks, because the beads may get into the chicks' eyes. Good clean alfalfa makes the best chick litter we have used. When it gets soiled or dirty remove and replace it with clean litter.

Feed Less Frequently Later.

As the chicks get older the number of feeds per day may be reduced, so that at an age of seven weeks three or four feeds per day are sufficient; in fact, after the second week hoppers of crushed oats or dry mash may be used in the pen. The feeds of moist mash are continued at what ever amount the chicks will clean up.

Millets Sown at Different Dates.

The question is frequently asked regarding the best dates for sowing millet for hay production. For several years in succession an experiment has been conducted at the Ontario Agricultural College by sowing millets on each of six different dates, starting on May 15th and finishing on August 1st, allowing about two weeks between each two dates of seeding. The average results have shown the highest returns from sowing on June 1st. Naturally, varieties use the Japanese variety and the Japanese variety require to be sown earlier than the Hungarian Grass which requires a shorter season for development.

Keep the brood sow in good thrifty and healthy condition. Allow her plenty of exercise. Feed her green food in the winter. She is very fond of alfalfa hay and mangel beets, with one feed per day of middlings and milk. Give her a dry comfortable straw bed, also plenty of fresh water, and she will winter in prime condition.

Someone has said that the best teacher in a community isn't always the one in charge of the school as superintendent or teacher, but may be some progressive farmer who wakes up the community to new possibilities and who develops a new line of thought and starts a new enterprise.

Maori Retains Native Customs

Above—Pakenett Harbor, Dusky Sound, first discovered by Captain Cook in 1770. It was here that he repaired his ship the "Resolution."

The earliest days of settlement of New Zealand's wonderful fame of New Zealand's wonderful scenic attractions has spread abroad and they are now regarded as without equal by their kind in the world. Within the compass of the two main islands are found virgin forests full of remarkable sub-tropical vegetation with many rare and beautiful flowers; wonderful thermal regions cover a wide area in the centre of the North Island where volcanoes, geysers, boiling springs and countless other manifestations of nature's titanic hidden forces are manifest. The lakes and forests of the South Island are of an unimaginable grandeur and magnificence, and the country provides excellent sport for the fisherman or big game hunter, with its trout and salmon filled rivers, and the fine deer herds of the interior. At Rotuma, on the Northern Island, may be studied many interesting phases of Maori life, for here the Maori still retains most of the old customs and traditions of his storied past, and all through the country one comes upon him paddling his canoe up or down the wonderful rivers, much as his fathers did before the advent of white men. Little native villages of carved homes dot the river banks and roads. Auckland is the chief port of the Northern Island and is the calling place of the Canadian Australian line of steamships. The South Island is rich in scenic attractions, and its marvellous fjords are unsurpassed by those of any country in the world. The great range of Southern Alps running from north to south through this island, is capped by many superb peaks, and huge glaciers, rushing snow-fed rivers provide a never ending source of enjoyment and pleasure. The city of Dunedin, with its busy shipping port possesses many attractions for the visitor and is next year to be the scene of the New Zealand Exhibition. This Exhibition will embrace all industries and resources of the Antipodes, many international features and will attract visitors from practically every corner of the world.
