

:: WOLFE ::

He breast the lines the hero fell, in the thickest of the fray,

And he whispered near him not to fall, till victory crowned the day:

As he lay upon the greensward slope, with anguish in his eyes,
His soul still bounded, winged with hope, to grasp ambition's prize.

