DAVY JENKINS

Jenkins wins by acclamation

U of A Students' Union president for 1962-63, by acclamation, is David E. Jenkins: native Edmontonian, world traveler, model Conservative, father of two, law student, and Gateway editor-in-chief. The last Students' Union president by acclamation was Lou Hyndman in 1958-59.

Last summer Jenkins was a World University Service scholar to Sweden. While overseas he also saw Moscow, Leningrad, East and West Berlin, Paris, London and New York. In Paris he attended a university North Atlantic Treaty Organization conference at NATO headquarters. His qualifications for the scholarship included an academic average over 80 per cent.

This year he is a member of Students' Council and Gold Key Society.

Jenkins has sat in Model Parliament for five years. A member of the Campus Conservative Club, he was vice-president in charge of policy last term.

He has represented U of A students at several student conferences: the NFCUS seminar in Vancouver, 1960; and Canadian University Press assemblies in Toronto, London, Ontario, Saskatoon and Edmonton.

Until Christmas he was Western Region President of CUP. Since then, he has been on the national executive.

Jenkins is a member of Phi Kappa Pi fraternity.

During his years on campus he has participated in intramural sports such as hockey, golf, curling, and cross-country. His favorite sport is golf.

His first two years on campus, Jenkins covered university sports for the Edmonton Journal. His weekly column was titled "Inside the Bearcage." He has worked at The Journal each summer, and stayed out of school one year to work there.

"I think it should be mandatory for every university student to work a years," he says. "It jolts any boy." During the 1957-58 term, his second year, he organized and was president of the mixed bowling club.

His main activity has been The Gateway. In the past he has been managing editor, sports editor and advertising manager.

Mrs. Dreena Jenkins is from Wilkie, Saskatchewan. She majored in English at U of A.

Asked for comment, Jenkins urged students to elect hard workers as faculty representatives to Students' Council.

"The friendliest guy is not necessarily the hardest worker. I have a few ideas in mind that will require workers to carry them out, not people along for a free ride."

The incoming president thanks all those who supported him, particularly his campaign manager John Lauder, Eng. 2.

As near as can be determined by searching through dusty Gateway files, only one other Students' Union president has been a Gateway editor: D. J. Wesley Oke was Editor 1926-27, President 1927-28.

Hyndman has own theories on acclamations

The large number of acclamations for Students' Council positions is explained by as many theories as there are persons discussing the topic. However, one thing is clear: the increasing realization of the past few years that several positions—particularly those on the Students' Union executive—are increasingly hard desk work and decreasingly public prestige may dampen the enthusiasm of many. Nonetheless, there were a large number of likely prospects who had been maneuvering to run if they wished; as it turned out, they didn't. This fact points up the need for a long hard look at a week long, exhausting, campus-wide campaign through 7,500 students.

While the results in terms of student interest would decline, perhaps necessity will soon dictate a turn to the system of many large campuses, which chooses new executives from the returning members of outgoing Councils or Boards.—P.S.H.

I. macdonald to contribute imaginatively

The secretary-treasurer of the Students' Union not only is responsible for a great volume of important routine work—he is expected to contribute imaginative leadership to campus affairs as a member of the students' council executive committee.

In the past year, a highly efficient and ambitious council has set new policies and realized long-standing plans for expansion. Throughout, it has been characterized by an atmosphere of friendly, co-operative relations with the Administration while preserving autonomy of student government.

As secretary-treasurer for the coming year, I shall work towards completion of the projects begun by previous council while looking for new or better ways whereby students might better enrich their University years. I shall do my best to bring new ideas into council while maintaining the high standards of effective administration set by my predecessors.—I.T.M.

KENNETH YOUNG

Young explains his withdrawal

I appreciate the opportunity to explain the reasons surrounding my withdrawing from candidacy for the position of President of the Students' Union. With a great deal of work remaining for Varsity Guest Weekend and the time required to organize a campaign I felt that there would not be enough time to do justice to either.

It was due to the urging of several supporters that on Tuesday morning I let my name stand for nomination. I would like to thank these people and those that had started work on my campaign and to urge all of them to support Dave Jenkins as he assumes his duties.—K.G.Y.

IAIN MACDONALD

Ricker to run men's athletics

I wish to take this opportunity of sincerely thanking those who nominated me for the position of President of Men's Athletics. The job ahead is a big one, but it is one to which I look forward very much. In carrying out the required duties, I shall do my utmost to prove worthy of the confidence which has been placed in me.

In an effort to ensure that students receive greater value from their athletic fee dollar, I will advocate several policies:

1. Establishment of a suggestion box so that student views may be brought to the attention of their representatives.
2. Support of an ever-increasing intramural program.
3. Consideration of possible methods to enable intercollegiate sports to become more self-supporting.
4. Greater publicity for sporting events through an active, effective Promotions Committee.
5. Continued efforts toward a Western Canada Students' Athletic Association to ensure a strong student voice in intercollegiate activities.—O.R.
