Prayer for Restoration-Powerful Appeal for a Renewal of Spiritual Ties and for a Rekindling of Spiritual Astivities—Review of the Years Shows Only Character Remains, All Things

Los Angeles, Cal., April 9.—To the indifferent, and especially to the back-slider who has gone back to the world and its pleasures, this sermon makes a powerful appeal for a renewal of spiritual tes and a rekindling of spiritual activities. The text is Psalm II, 12, "Restors unto me the joy of thy salvation."

tion,"
Oh, hew quickly the wheel of fortune may whirl around! What we are to-day is no earnest of what we may be to-morrow. Rich and affluent, prosper-cus and happy new, that does not prove that we shall be rich and happy and prosperous, with a multitude of friends hanging around us, next week or next menth or next year. The night follows the day as well as the day the night. The peeple living in the South American republic of Chile reckon histery by this or that or the other earthquake, which has made the heaving earth rock down homes and destroy whole cities and towns and villages. Some of us may reckon the passing some of us may reckon the passing Some of us may reckon the passing, away of our lives by the epitaphs which are chiseled upon the tombstenes of our buried hopes.

"Year of 1872," we say. "Oh, that was the year of America's awful black was the year of America's awful black heav, when my fortune like a snow-te melted away in an hour. Year of 1. That was the year I lost my stotler or wife or mother. Year of 1905. That was the year I was injured in a railroad accident. On account of that broken hip I lost my position at the store and had to give up my life insurance nolicy and become a poor. insurance policy and become a poor, helpless invalid, a burden on my friends. Ah, I am not as I used to be. Once I had enough for myself and for others. Now I have less than nothing. I am dependent upon those around tam dependent upon those around the."

Better days! Oh, yes, scores of you have seen better days in your body, your preperty and your families! But, las, many of us, like the writer of the words of my text, have seen better days in our spiritual condition. I do not know whether this author held, as do the Methodists of our day, that a good man might lose his hold on salvatien, but one thing is sure—he knew that he had fallen from grace. He had once tasted the joys of divine sonship. He had once waded ankle deep, knee deep, waist deep, chin deep, into the great depths of God's love and had drunk of those living waters. But now he has slimbed out of those depths and stands shivering upon the jagged rocks of evil in the cold, bitting winds of sin. Thus we find him crying out in the words of entreaty: "Oh, God, bring back to me the happiness and the exhilaration and peace of my past gospel life! Restore unite me the joy of thy salvation!"

Have not some of us need to offer the prayer of the psalmist? I know tur-

the prayer of the psalmist? I know that there are many whe are in the position of this psalmist. I know, furthermore, that if you will only return you may taste again the gospel joys, and they will be sweeter to you than they ever were before. An eminent minister of the cross a short time ago teld me that the greatest blessing of a revival of religions was not found in introducing strangers to Jesus, but in bringing back to his service those who had once been found at the foot of the cross. "And," said he, "when these wanderers return they make the very best workers in our Christian churches." May God help me to prevail en some of you backsilders again to taste the gespel joys! the gospel joys!

But I never did like praying for verything in general and for the uni-in particular." In order to be the explicit we would divide the palmist's prayer under three or four distinct headings. In the first place, I woule have you make the prayer. "Return unto me, O Lord, the joy which I experienced when I first began to realize the heights and the breadths of thy sacrifices for me. Restore unto me the loy which came to my soul when years ago I first approached the communion casse and sate, 'Loru, I believe; help thou mine unbelief.'" Then the tidal wave of haspiness rolled ever us in surges. Then we said to ourselves: "Saved by grace! Saved by grace!" Once our souls were asiame with gratitude for what God had done for us. No sooner were we converted than, like the pasimist, we cried out, "Evening and morning and at noon will I pray and cry aloud, and he shall hear my voice." But after awhile our joyful enthusiasm began to cool. We grew indifferent. We turned our backs upon God. We now find reading the Bible a bore and praying a drudgery and talking te Christ and waiting for Christ to talk to us a task instead of an endless pleasure. Oh, my friends, do you want to feel again the exhibaration which came ever you on the day of your conversion? Then make the prayer of my text. Make it day in and day out. Make it and centinue to make it as you rehearse all God has fone for you by the sacrifice of Jesus Christ. Oh, that to-day we could have the thrill which surged through us when we first feit that God had purged us with hysep until we were clean, that he had washed us until we were whiter than mow!

But gratitude to God for what Christ

But gratitude to God for what Christ has done for us is not the only joy of salvation that is buried and needs to be renewed. One of these joys that needs to be resurrected is the one we used to find in Christian service. No sooner were we converted than immediately we went forth to try and save some one else. Then when we brought a brother or sister to the cross there came over us another joy which we had not hitherto conceived, the joy of saving men and women for Christ. There is no joy on earth greater than that.

is no joy on earth greater than that. Not even the jey of being saved ewselves can be compared to the joy of knewing that by the grace of God we have been able to save some one else from perishing.

The man of the world who has never apparently the joy capacity understand.

The man of the world who has never experienced this joy cannot understand it. The exhilaration of it is couched for him in mystical and unknown tengues. For years and years I could not understand what Paul meant in his letter to the Romans. I felt he did not mean what he said. I believed he was only using an exaggerated oratorical figure of speech when he said, "For I could wish that myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren my kinsmen. wish that myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren, my kinsmen, according to the flesh." The more I studied that passage the mere I felt and do feel to-day that Paul literally made this prayer, "Oh, Christ, if there is no way to save my brothers, my sisters, my friends, my people, but by blotting my name out of the book of life then destroy me for their sakes!" In other words, Paul said, "Destroy me if by my spiritual death others might spiritually live forever in thee," And yet is not this joyful willingness to be sacrificed to save others experienced by the new convert always?

Oh, apostates; oh, ye negligent and

Oh, apostates; oh, we negligent and slothful church members, standing idly about in the market places when God's viaeyards are filled with the ripest clusters just ready for the plucking, you have known in the past the joy of salvation in the saving of souls? Why, I can see even now the reflection of a past joy upon your faces as in the time when you used to labor in the Sunday schools and bring little children te Christ. I can see you now smiling as you used to do when you brought your friends to the revival meetings and labored with them to accept Christ. I can see you now going up to your minister and earnestly and rapturously saying: "Pastor, keep on praying. We will get them. They are bound to give their hearts to Christ-We will get them yet." But now the world and the flesh have crept in. You do not work for souls as you used to do. You do not have the old joy of saving souls, Oh, my friends, will you not pray that this joy may come te you again: "Lord, God, give me the old thrill of being saved by thy sacrifice. But do mere than this, Lord. Give me the joy of saving some one else for thee. If it be necessary in order that others may spiritually live, that I must spiritually die, then, as Paul wished, let me die for thine honor and glory." But in this psalmiat's prayer we would find another joy. It is this: "O God, restore unto me the joy of Christian fellowship with Christions! O God, about in the market places when God's vineyards are filled with the ripest

God, restore unto me the joy of Christian fellowship with Christions! O God, make me again love church services and the prayer meetings and the missionary gatherings and the convocation of the young peeple of the Christian Endeavorers and Epworth leagues and the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip!

Christian life is to be found in the desire of a Christian to be where other Christians are. Yet, if I mistake not some of you never go to the midweek prayer meetings or to Sunday schools er to our cottage prayer meetings. You leek upon these meetings as a bere, a drudgery, a tiresome hour, wasted for duty's sake. When you go to these meetings you do so under protest.

"Yes," you answer, "I do look upon these religious gatherings as a bore. But I am not responsible for my likes and disilikes any more than I am to be blamed because my favorite color is blue, my favorite flower a carnation, my favorite musician Beetheven, my favorite novelist Thackersy, my favorite artist Rubens and my faverite poet Longfellow or Tennyson. I like what I like and disilike what I disilike, and I cannot help it. Now, if I disilike, and I cannot help it. Now, if I disilike to associate with the class of people whe make up our distinctively religious gatherings, such as are found in the missionary society, I am not to blame. I am no more to blame than I am because I disilike cedfah or mackerel and like apples and grape fruit."

Ah, yes, my brother, you are to blame. You are individually responsible for your likes and disilikes. If you do not care to associate with Christian people in Christian gatherings then it is high time that you learned to enjoy do not care to associate with Christian people in Christian gatherings then it is high time that you learned to enjoy their society, and the quicker the better. Because I do not leve them now that is no excuse why I should not learn to love these people. Supposing I was a dyspeptic, supposing I had for years been living on lobsters and veal and ham and pork and cabbage and highly seasoned salads and rich pastries, supposing on account of my dystres, supposing on account of my dystres. highly seasoned salads and rich pastries, supposing on account of my dyspepsia I was sent to a sanitarium, what would be the first order of my physicians? "Put that man on the simplest diet." Because I tell my physician I do not like plain toast and milk and cold bread and good, wholesome beefsteaks and potatoes would that make any difference? No. My physician would reply: "Then the sooner you learn to like them the better. You must develop a healthy appetite for good, wholesome, simple foeds."

Now, my Christian friend, by the

develop a healthy appetite for good, wholesome, simple foeds."

Now, my Christian friend, by the same law you may have a diseased spiritual appetite for spiritual association. If you cannot find enjoyment in communion with Christian people, then the sooner you learn how to enjoy their society the better. You are exactly in the position of the frivolous girl or the dissipated boy growing up in a Christian home. Such children are never happy unless they are off at some party or visiting some neighbor or attending some theatre. But after awhile they will find that the sweet, gentle fellowships of a Christian home effer the best kind of enjoyment. The quiet reading of a book by the glowing hearth in the sitting-reom is one. The loving reading of a book by the glowing hearth in the sitting-reom is one. The loving caress of a mother's or a wife's hand is another. The playful prattle of a little child, the quiet prayer, the sweet memories of long years that are past, are others. The hopes of the years to come, being talked over, offer the highest loves this side of heaven. O man est joys this side of heaven. O man, do not think that associating with men of the world offers to you the acme of of the world offers to you the acme or pleasure. If you cannot find any en-joyment in the fellowship of Christian people, then the sconer by the grace of God you kill your diseased spiritual appetite the better for your own en-joyment and the better for your life.

That you can govern your love for the good and your dislike for the bad or the indifferent was illustrated to me by the experience of a lady member of my church who is a very fine musi-

or the indifferent was illustrated to me by the experience of a lady member of my church who is a very fine musician. Her brother was a happy ge lucky young man who seemed to have no ear for good music. Every popular air, every music hall jingle, every negro melody that had a jolly ring to it he knew by heart. All the sorted college songs he could sing until the very rafters echoed. But the deeper, sweeter, holler calls of the great musical masters fell unheeded upon his dull ears. This brother, who was a fine athlete, had his leg broken and was brought home from college and had to lie in bed for about six weeks. During those six weeks his sister had to continually practice for a difficult performance which she was about to give before a famous ngusical society of the city. At first the brother protested. He wanted to hear her play some of the popular airs. But as the language of the musical masters kept pouring their thoughts into his mind and heart through the vestibule of his ear there was born in his soul a love for the truly great music. The old songs which he once loved he now despises. The truly beautiful music he ence despised now he lives. My friends, if you do not love the society of Christian people there is something wrong in your life. You have a diseased spiritual appetite. The sooner you go with the truly consecrated people the sooner you will learn to love their society. Do not make the prayer of my text, "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation," unless by constant association with Christian people you do all in your power te develop that, spiritual Joy. But in order to fully grasp the beauty of the psalmist's prayer you must remember that it is given with the absolute knowledge that in his own atrength he was nothing, but that in God's strength he could be everything. David at this time was standing under the shadows of his past sins. God hadblessed him again and again, yet just after these many manifestations of the divine love he had fallen back into sin because he had depended upon his own duagmires and the bogs and the fith of evil."

It is only by doubting and continuing to distrust our own strength that we are led to rely entirely upon God's protecting power. I would have us feel our dependence on God when we make this prayer exactly as the little adopted daughter of a dear friend of mine feels toward her father. Some months ago this little girl was in a foundling institute in one of our large cities. By this institution she was sent west and put into a low Mexican's home of ignorance and filth. There my friend found her and said: "She shall not remain here. She shall come and be my daughter and live in my home." He took her west. Then he and his wife washe? the little girl and put clean clothes upon her and put her into a dean, while bed. They surrounded her with all that wealth and Issue central sive. Yet, though that little sirk is new only about two and one-half years old, she lives in continual terror of being taken back to her past surroundings. Every night before she goes to bed she calls her foster father to her side or crawls up into his lap and puts her little arms about his neck and says, "Papa, you won' let them come and take baby away, will you?" And the great, swong man, with tears in his eyes, says: "No, baby; no, daughter! will add let them come and take you away from me and mamma! Ge to sleep now; papa will keep you safely by his side!" So David, as a heartbroken sinner, just reaches up and puts his arms up in plea to Ged and says; "Oh. Father, keep me. Don't let me go back to sin as I have done in the past. Keep me, Lord. Keep me, Eord. Heep me in the power of thy love." Have you not, oh, man, sinned after God has restored to you again and again the jey of salvation? "Can you not say to him new: "Keep me, Lord. Keep me, Father. Keep me."

Thus, my friends, because you have again and again come to Christ and fasted of the joy of salvation and then fallen away do not let your broken resolutions keep you away from the fallen away do not let your broken resolutions keep you, brother. He will be a continuous prayer for every morning, noon and night. Let this be your prayer: "O Ged, keep me, keep me!

OLord, keep me every step I go!" And God will keep, you, brother. He will keep you under the shadow of his wings. Will you unake the prayer of my text now? Will you continue to make the earnest prayer, "Uphold me with thy free spirit," until at last he delivers you forever from all sinful temptations at the great white throne of heaven?

One of the bravest of our generals is trustee of the Newton estate, near the Village of Newton St. Cyres. On going over the estate on a recent occasion, he came in contact with a tenant who falled to recognize him, and who was full of complaints. On finding out the identity of the general, he requested him to visit his house some little distance away, and his wife would show him some dilapidations that urgently required attention. On reaching the cottage, the general was confronted by the female occupant, who invited him to enter. She showed him over the premises, pointed out the requirements and waxed wroth because the visitor wishes. Then she threatened that if she could not get the work done should go and see "Mr. Buller" about it. Grasping the situation, the general inquired if she would know wiffer Buller" about it.
