

And thou art free—so spake the ancient seers—
And soaring far above all earthly things,
Communion hold with universal laws.
Then thou shalt learn in that great school
divine,

What sages fain would know : unfettered, thou Shalt rise high in the empyreal heaven, till in
The distance, which among the infinity
Of worlds is called eternity, thou come
To perfect stature, "full of grace and truth".

Thus, O man, thine honor is unlimited,
Thy joy supreme. This is thy future being,
The glorious way that leads to Paradise,
Home of the blessed.
