A WELL MANAGED ORCHARD IS A VALUABLE ASSET ON ANY FARM

There is no surer way of increasing the value of the average farm than by setting a few acres to orchard. In the Western States bearing orchards return profits on an investment of $2,500 an acre. In Ontario land devoted to apples has returned fifteen per cent. on a valuation of $1,000 an acre. This land would be worth only one-tenth this amount if devoted to ordinary farm crops. Valuations such as these, however, are only possible where orchard practice is carried on in its highest form, where pruning, spraying, thinning and thorough cultivation are given first attention. All of the expense involved in first-class methods is brought back to us many fold in the increased value of the crop. The increased value of the land is so much to the good.
