of the Hotelkeepers Local optionists seem to take a delicense laws in many years. The Expositor reports Rev. A. E. Lavell sermon in Brant Avenue Methodist Church last Sunday, "the hotelmen say that if we don't allow them to sell liquor in licensed houses, they will do so in blind pigs. Fine law-abiding itizens these liquor men are."

As a matter of fact, no sane hotelman would dare make any such threat, The hotelmen of Brantford have a record for law observance that any class of business men might well be proud of, a record not excelled by even the local optionists. What they do say is that where the law abiding hotelman is forced out of business by local option, the unscrupulous "blind pigger' prings up to take his place.
