Sir,-I notice several writers in the Planet and Banner-News give their views on electric railways. I thought

Mr. McFarlane writes from Dover telling the people of Chatham' ages on the route, I would be afraid I would be laughed at. Does Mr. McFarlane think that the mayor and aldermen of the City of Chatham, are not capable of looking after the interests of their city. If Mr. A. McKay's scheme of electric road in Kent is all right, but, if we wait until all these branches are built at one time, I fear it will be a good many years hence.

Lieut.-Col. Rankin gives his opinion that the proposed southern route that the proposed railway from Windsor to Chatham would injure their city and build up Charing Cross and other villages on the route, while the people of those villages are afraid that it will take trade from them to Chatham. Now, how are we to reconcile their views? If I wrote against an electric road through Dover, and stated that such a road would build up Dover Centre, Dover South, Mitchell's Bay, and other vilages on the route, I would be afraid a distance of about 39 miles of thickly settled country in the county of Kent. The local travel will divide at the line between Essex and Kent. The Essex people's business will naturally take them to their county seat, and the Kent people along their 39 miles within the county of Kent will be drawn by their business to their county seat, Chatham.

Now the people of the city of Chatham have been for years trying to get electric railways to come to the city. Now, when there is a good prospect of having one enter the city after running through 39 miles of the county, I think they should do all in their power to encourage it.

Yours truly, WM. HICKEY. P. S.—I believe a system of street railways within the city of Chatham could be established in connection with the proposed road, at a great deal less cost them by having it

THE BROWNING LARCENY CASE

Geo. G. Martin, counsel for Mr. and Geo. G. Martin, counsel for Mr. and:
Mrs. Browning, states that there was a gross miscarriage of justice in the conviction of Constable Browning and his wife for the alleged stealing of wood last November from Mrs. Aldis; and that Judge Houston is now convinced of the fact, and will do all he can to have the conviction removed.
Mr. Martin represented the facts to the Minister of Justice, asking that Judge Houston be instructed to order Not one of the sciences but is related, or may be related, to agriculture. Mr. Martin represented the facts to the Minister of Justice, asking that Judge Houston be instructed to order a new trial, and have the case reopened. The Minister has replied when he receives the report of the Magistrate no doubt a new trial will be ordered. Judge Houston could scarcely do otherwise than convict on the evidence for the prosecution at the trial, but this evidence will be shown to be untrustwarthy. There is now, ample proof that Browning and his wife were many miles out in Chutham township at a wedding the whole of the night the alleged stealing took place, and the evidence for the prosecution will be badly shattered otherwise.
