A Surprise. It was nearly half-past four yester ay when Crown Attorney Curry an ished his argument. His Lordship at once delivered judgment. "I think an offence and a conspiracy has been proved under section 520 of the criminal code," he said. "I find the defendants guilty of the offence charged."

The Judge's Reasons.

New York, Dec. 7,—The resignation of United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew as a director of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, was one of the most interesting developments yesterday in the situation growing out of life insurance investigation. The Senator's resignation was tendered to President Faul Morton of the Equitable Society The Judge's Reasons.

"As the matter may go to appeal," he continued, "and there is a special provision for an appeal in these cases, it may be desirable that I should mention some of the grounds which have Paul Morton of the Equitable Society Paul Morton of the adultative society in a brief note, in which no reason for the action was stated.

The report was published last night that President John A. McCall of the New York Life Company will resign led me to the conclusion that the defendants are guilty. All is intelligible from the minutes, which subsequently had reference to an a creditor of both roads, and was agreed to by the defendants, in an-swers admitting the principle charges agreement, the exact nature of which s not disclosed. However, negotiations is not disclosed. However, negotiations were going on perfecting the agreement until the final one now before us was reached on May 6, 1903. For some time previous to that an agreement was evidently understood, although not perhaps explicitly stated. In April, 1903, ard for any case of Catarrh that haps explicitly stated. In April, 1903, discussion took place about not all the members charging the 20 per cent. Increase, and of the secretary trying hard to get them into line. On April 27, 1903, we find notices sent out to the effect that after May 4 all tenders must be submitted to the secretary before going to the public.

After this the committed formed for the purpose of promulgating the agreement was discharged—an intimation that their work was finjshed; that the agreement had been concluded. It was one of practically the same, only, a little more perfect than the one of the year prior. It provides that the Supply Association should deal exclusively with the members of the Master Plumbers' Association, it meant a practical shut-out for the non-members.

"It is interesting to note the complaints against the members of, the Supply Association of selling to non-members of the Plumbers' Association, the excuses that were made and the action taken in the cases. Yet the agreement was carried out very successfully. It is said the agreement was carried out very successfully. It is said the agreement was carried out very successfully. Same Objection Continued.

When a man is generous to a continued. In the minutes of the proceedings of the supply men in August, 1905, it was clearly shown that the object of incorporation was to restore something of the disturbed felicity of the arrangement of these two associations. It was owing to a representation made to the Minister of Customs, that men in the trade with a legitimate place of business were unable to get goods. The Supply Association gave offence to the masters plumbers in trying to get away from the danger so manifest if the duty was removed.

"How was that to go around? How was it to be done in order that they might be able to reply that they could sell to any plumber and so avoid the aw? The plan was that the Master law? The plan was that the Master Plumbers' Supply Association as incorporated pass a resolution known as the Chicago trade association, agreeing to sell to all legitimate plumbers. The plumbers would have none of it, unless, that is, they were given the advantage of being the only plumbers. This proved the existence of the combination. It is most absurd to say that it was cancelled, for both relied upon it and were relying upon it while a pretence was being made down at a pretence was being made down at Ottawa that every plumber could get "It was feared that the association would lose the preference established over American goods. They, however, were still thinking by what end they could compass their end by supplying only the Master Plumbers' Association. The scheme was ingenious and the streement was reached with a great agreement was reached with a great deal of skill and care. It was decided that the master plumbers be paid 71-2 per cent. on all purchases made from the Supply Association by members of the Plumbers' Association and 5 per ent in addition on all sales to out

Worse Than Street Robbery. "The Central Supply Association was responsible, as all was done by them responsible, as all was done by them to favor the Master Plumbers' Association. They may not have had knowledge of the methods of the Plumbers' Association in conducting their tenders, but they aided them effectually in carrying out their ends. The disclosure made that reputable firms—at least hitherto called reputable — were in the habit of meeting around the table and dividing money received from the public in a most disreceived from the public in a most di honest manner is crushing. I think that if a man was to knock another down on the street and rob him by force it would be less offensive than the one disclosed. Here there was a system of misrepresentation and fraud in an attempt to prove to the public that the tender was honest. From the first to the last it is freely admitted that there was not one honest tender through that association.

"Haying come to an estimate of the relaying come to an estimate of the proper amount of time and material to be put on a job the tender was submitted to the committee. Additional sums were added to tenders to cover the time and trouble of the men of the assembly, who raised them considerably. This was divided; so much plunder—I cannot find any other name for it—among the members, who had no more right to it than you or I. In addition to this unfair division the 5 per cent, on purchases of the non-associa-tions was also divided. Similar asso-ciations on the other side, while not affiliated, were in close touch with the one here and prevented any competition. Restrain Trade. "The object of the two associations now incorporated was to do the very thing that the statue was made to prevent. The effect of it was to unduly limit the supply and did restrain and injure trade on articles manu-factured or sold in Canada and did un-reasonably enhance the price. There was no competition. The price was fixed to suit themselves. It was only limited by the danger of placing the price too high and forcing the importa-tion of goods from the United States. price too high and forcing the importa-tion of goods from the United States. "All right, your lordship," answered Mr. Riddell, "I have no hesitation in advising my clients to plead guilty. It was all done in perfect innocence, under competent legal advice, which, of course, is no excuse or defence entertainable for them."

The address of Crown Prosecutor DuVernet, which lasted for nearly six hours, finished yesterday afternoon

This "vacation" idea was suggested by the letter of a eminent lawyer in Chicago. Read what he says: "I was engaged in the most momentous undertaking of my life in bringing about the coalition of certain great interests that meant much to me as well as my clients. ### PROFIT-SHARING.

Success of the System In Lancashire

nefits to employer and em ploye of a system of profit-sharing was the topic upon which Mr. Theodore Cooke Taylor, member for the South-east Division of Lancashire in the British House of Commons, addressed the members of the Canadian Club at Toronto recently.

Mr. Taylor inherited a woollen manu-

Mr. Taylor inherited a woollen manufacturing business which had been in his family for four generations, and which employed 600 hands. He considered that his employes had certain claims upon him, and these claims he set about meeting by introducing the profit-sharing system. At the end of each year a proportion of the profits was given to the workers in the shape of £1 shares of stock, which carried of £1 shares of stock, which carried no voting power, but upon which divi-dends were paid. Mr. Taylor said he had studied in every way to make iden-tical the interests of capital and labor in the business.

After 13 years' experience with the profit-sharing system, he was completely satisfied with its success, and could recommend it as both scientific and sane. He would not advise those whose sole object was to make money to adopt such a system, for they would be disappointed. His own motive in in-stituting profit-sharing was altruistic, but he found he had not lost money by it, while he had gained immensely in Profit-sharing was not a panacea for all industrial evils; it could not make a bad business goo but it would make a good business bet-ter. It repaid the employer, and it dig-nified and glorified the employe's life.

If the young men of the upper classes in Great Britain, said Mr. Taylor, realized that they would be serving their country as well by taking an intelli-gent part in industrial progress as they do by taking up military service, a new form of patriotism would be developed It was not from the rank and file tha industrial reform would come. Labor unions and employers' associations were all right in their place, but they were antagonistic, and warfare was costly and wasteful. It was only by working together that progress made. Profit-sharing was one or simplest and surest means of estab-lishing good-will between capital and
