SIR JOHN ROSS ON PARLIAMENTARY

REPORTING IN CANADA.

The Select Committee on Parliamentary Reporting continues to take evidence. On the 12th inst. the following witnesses were called.

Lord Everley, formerly Speaker of the House of Commons for 18 years, examined by the Chairman, said that he did not think that the influence and authority of Parliament would be increased by a verbiage of official reports of the deliberations of Parliament. The proceedings were at present reported very fully, and with wonderful accuracy, and the accuracy seemed to be an account of the competition among newspapers. An objection to official reporting was that everything would be noticed by the public. Mr. Carver's re-

PRIZE LIST.

In the House of Commons Mr. Mitchell

Henry called attention to Sir James Ingham's report on the prison treatment of the late Fenian prisoner Sergeant Mc-Carthy, and moved for the appointment of a Royal Commission on the treatment of prisoners of his class. Considerable sympathy was expressed for the circumstances attending the death of Mr. McCarthy. The Solicitor-General defended Sir James's report, and contended that a fresh inquiry could only go over the same ground. Mr.

Cress reversed Mr. McCarthy's case, and while expressing his willingness to accept suggestions of improvement on the condition of prisons, he declared that the mission was already in existence, and as the visiting committees were always ready to investigate cases, grievances, he could not assent to the motion. Mr. Mitchell declined to withdraw it, and on a division it was rejected by 101 to 35 votes. After the adjournment the House adjourned at twenty-five minutes past five.

The Exco publishes in a special edition of Gladstone's speech on the Bulgarian inhabitants of Bourgas, expressing the deepest gratitude for his energetic labours on their behalf. In a reply, dated July 13th, Mr. Gladstone said that his duty and his pleasure to contribute in any humble measure to the defeat of oppression had been a brilliant one. It would

THE DEATH OF QUEEN MER-

CEDES.

(FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.)

MADRID, June 23rd, 1878.

The Queen of Spain was never very strong; from her marriage day she had been frequently ill with colds and headaches. The fatal illness began on the 1st of this month, but it was not thought serious until the 10th, when the doctors gave out that she had a sort of intermittent fever. Next day the Princess of Asturias did not go to a concert to which she had been invited, but remained with the sick

Queen. On the 21st the Queen got worse, and lists were put up in the Mayordomia, as well as bulletins issued by the doctors.

It was Coryza Obstru, a day on which the entrance of a young girl of eighteen years into the Mayordomia was always held in Madrid. Again the Royal Family did not appear; this made the public think more seriously of Her Majesty's health, as it has always been the custom of the members of the Royal Family to visit from the balcony of the Gobernacion (Home Office). On Friday she was so much worse that the King telegraphed to the Duke and Duchess of Montpensier, who were in Normandy.

They set out immediately, and the Duke
