DESCENT OF THE BARINGS. History of a Great Commercial Family Extending Through Centuries.

Two centuries ago there lived at Bremen, in Germany, a pastor of the Lutheran church named Franz Baring, or Baering. In those days, says Spare Moments, the ministers of his order might be men of great learning, but their circumstances were at the best moderate. His son, John Baring, went to England and established himself as a clothmaker near Exeter, in Devonshire. From the ranks of the cloth drapers and the linen drapers, quite as often as from among the goldsmiths, the merchants and bankers were then recruited. John Baring's son, Francis, born in 1740, was sent at an early age to learn the "art, trade and mystery" of a merchant, and before he died he made himself, by consent, the first merchant in the world. He was a director in the Honorable East Indian Company, then one of the highest rewards to which a merchant might hope to attain; for a time he was the great company's chairman; for twenty-two years he sat in parliament, then a far more exclusive body than it has become under the extended suf-frage; in 1793 he was made a baronet; in 1810 he died. But his first title to honor is that he founded the house of Barings. His sons were the first Baring brothers. Davy Crockett's Monument A monument is to be erected over the remains of Davy Crockett, the famous Tennessee hunter, who killed 108 bears and performed various other deeds of valor. It is now more than sixty years since this picturesque old character was buried. The shaft will be of Tennessee granite and over twenty-seven feet high. At the front base of the column
