Assistant Engineer Cunningham, who by right of succession temporarily presides over the department, has not the intimate to remit to him the sum of $700 still due on his sessional allowance for last year, which stopped when Mr. Tarte made his charges. Public opinion would ask the Government to carefully note the address to which McGreevy wished the money directed and then would be true though the late engineer were less competent than he admittedly is.

In defeating Ald. McMurrich's motion those sixteen aldermen took a position which appeared to be one of undisguised opposition to the man, Jennings, on any terms. That metion provided that the late engineer be reengaged for the balance of the year on conditions that he would not attempt to tamper with the salaries of his subordinates. It was

This bird is getting too fresh with the fowler. Does he not know that the sergeant-at-arms (the royal falcon) has just nicelycomposed his wings after a fruitless pursuit of him? The prosecution of McGreevy and all the others guilty of a busing their positions and conspiring to defraud the country should be begun forthwith. The ability and inclination of the Government to do right will not increase as popular indignation subsides. But though that indignation may subside in sound it will not diminish in strength, and the Government should do right for its own sake as well as for right's sake. It should commence well as for right's sake. It should commence the work of prosecution at once and silence those who say the Government will shirk an important duty to which the Premier is repeatedly pledged.
